Inflation Check Forecast In Budget White Paper

Russ Rule Out Berlin Takeover

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times reports today that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has assured the United States there would be no East European threat to West Berlin in the foreseeable future.

In a dispatch from Washington, The Times says "responsible West European sources" reported Gromyko made the pledge in New York Oct. 6.

He is reported to have told State Secretary Dean Rusk that the Soviet government recognizes that the United States, Britain and France regard their rights in West Berlin as a matter of "state interest"—a diplomatic term used by Soviet officials for matters of the highest national priority.

The West European diplomats told The Times Gromyko's remarks mean that the Soviet Union will not permit East Germany to provoke a head-on confrontation with West Germany.

"When Mr. Gromyko says there's no Berlin crisis in the offing, he's also talking for the East Germans," one is quoted as saying.

The Soviet assurance was considered part of a Kremlin effort to cool the political climate in the wake of the Czechoslovakia invasion, The Times says. In a United Nations speech Oct. 2, Rusk warned that the United States and its Western allies would not tolerate the threat or use of force against West Berlin or West Germany.

Recreational Area Bypassed By Rail Route

VANCOUVER (CP) — An alternative rail route, which would bypass the Boundary Bay recreational area, was proposed today to link the planned Roberts Bank deepsea port to Canadian Pacific Railway lines at Mission.

The route was outlined in a report prepared by J. F. Broadbent, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

He said capital costs of his proposed route would be $7,000,000 less than two other proposed rail links, one outlined by the British Columbia Power and Hydro Authority and the second advocated by the Lower Mainland Regional Planning Board.

The report was requested by Premier Bennett following criticism of the Hydro-proposed route, which would traverse the Boundary Bay recreation area.

INDUSTRIAL LAND

The planning board had suggested a route that would go through land reserved for industrial purposes along the South Arm of the Fraser River.

Mr. Broadbent, who announced his proposal at a news conference attended by the premier, said all three routes were of equal length. His suggested route would bypass the Boundary Bay recreational area favored by Hydro and would eliminate costly construction of low level swing bridges required if the route followed the South Arm of the Fraser River.

Premier Bennett said there are "a lot of good points in the report and the government will study it."

"I am sure the people will too," he added.

Premier Bennett said he expected the government would "act very quickly" on the report.

"We want action on the railroad and we want to start construction in one or two months."

Journey Raises Hopes

By ERIC WENTWORTH
The Washington Post

North Vietnamese sources described Tho's journey as a routine matter. Nonetheless, his departure at what could be a critical time in the long-stalled talks was bound to arouse speculation: either Tho was on some delicate diplomatic mission, or conversely he saw no immediate hope for bargaining progress here.

Hanoi delegation spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said nothing about Tho's departure at his news conference Monday morning.

Meanwhile, members of the U.S. delegation were beginning to show interest in what they regard as a possible new lull in enemy combat activity in South Vietnam.

There was nothing Monday to suggest the Americans viewed such a reduction in Communist ground action over the past week as having diplomatic relevance as yet.

KEEN SEARCH

But their interest, if nothing else, reflected their keen search for any evidence of Communist willingness to de-escalate. Such a move could lead President Johnson to halt the remaining bombing of North Vietnam and thus, hopefully, break the Paris bargaining deadlock.

RELUCTANT CZECHS SIGN

FIRST-DAY RESPONSE GOOD

Victorians responded well on the first day of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal's door-to-door canvass, an appeal spokesman said today.

"We haven't any figures yet, but the over-all response was good."

He added that the first total for the residential canvassing division will be available Friday.

"It's too early to feel pessimistic and it's too early to feel confident," chairman Robert Hutchison told his campaign division chairmen at their first major report meeting Tuesday.

He said although the campaign has collected more than $220,000 much more effort will be required to reach the "awesome" $655,000 target.

Most of the division chairmen, however, expressed optimism in their reports.

Jim Strong, Corporation Division chairman, reported the chartered banks section has surpassed its suggested goal—the first section to do so this year.

Dr. Jack Mercer, Individual Advance Gifts chairman, reported his division will likely reach its $63,500 objective by mid-November.

And William Henderson, General Firms chairman, said his division, which accounts for $41,900 of the objective, is making good progress.

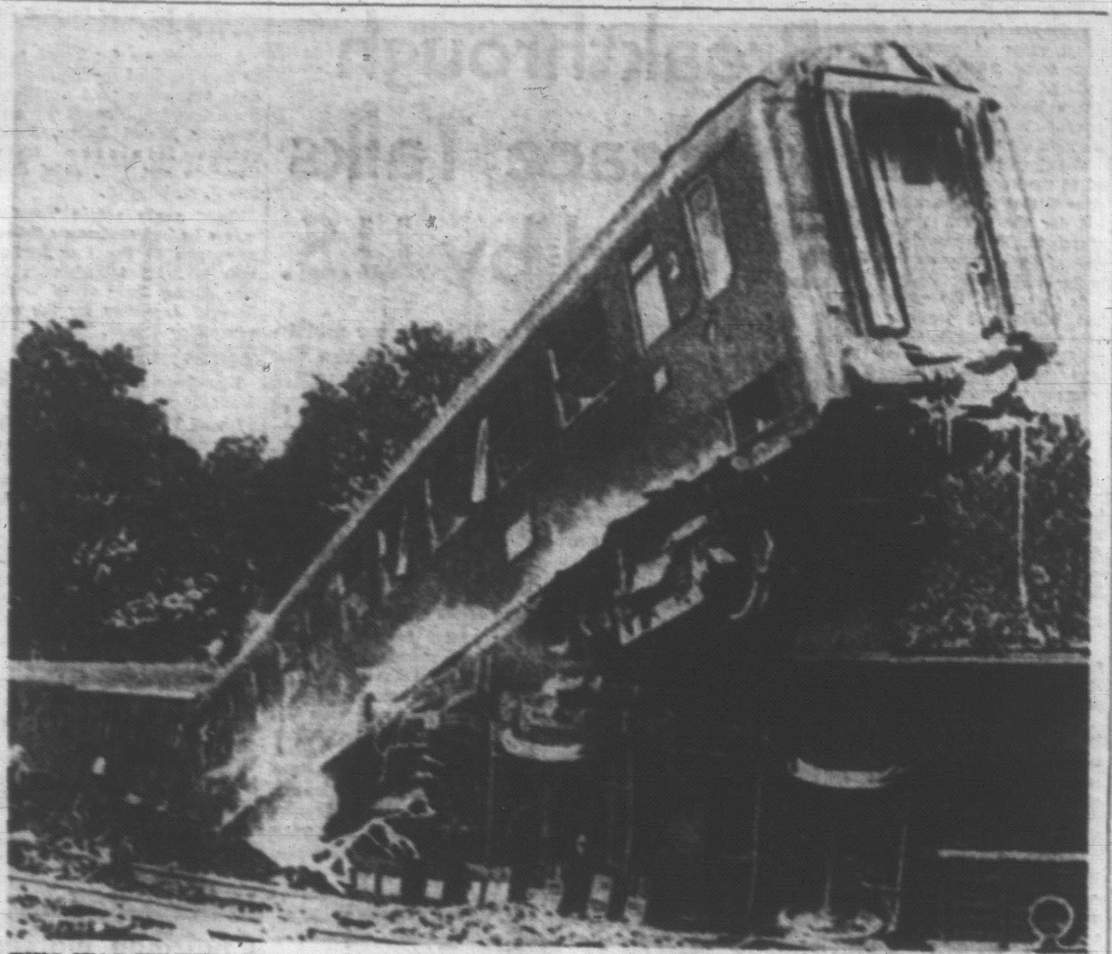
He said his division has collected about $35,000 but quite possibly it will not reach its $50,000 quota.

Mr. Hutchison agreed that Federal division had a tough goal and said if it is not met the other eight divisions will have to take up the slack.

He added that there are enough community-minded people in the area to reach the $655,000 mark but they must be approached individually.

"We have to get out and talk eyeball to eyeball with those people," he said. "If we talk to enough of them we'll reach our target."



THIS WAS WRECKAGE today of the Frankfurt-to-Paris express train which derailed Tuesday night on a switch near Kaiserslautern, West Germany. At least one passenger was killed and 20 injured.

Increase Due In Production

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Continued growth of the Canadian economy, with less inflation and more production of goods and services, is forecast in the pre-budget white paper Finance Minister Benson tabled in the Commons today.

The 220-page economic white paper, which forms the basis for the tax-setting budget speech he delivers Tuesday, Oct. 22, said the gross national product should increase at about the same rate in the next nine to 12 months as it is growing this year.

"However," it said, "more of the increase should be in quantity, and less in prices, than in 1967 and 1968."

The gross national product was running in April, May and June this year at an annual rate of $66,396,000,000, an increase of 6.8 per cent over the same period last year. The total value of all goods and services produced in the country, at current prices in 1967, also ran 6.8 per cent ahead of 1966.

SEE STORIES ON PAGE 10

Price increases this year, the report said, have been somewhat less than they were last year. But inflationary pressures have not been completely checked.

The white paper contained the principal figures on last fiscal year's federal government revenues and expenditures as announced Sept. 9: Revenues $9,076,589,447, and expenditures $9,868,991,666, leaving a budgetary deficit of $792,402,219, the highest in peacetime.

In his June 1, 1967, budget speech, former finance minister Mitchell Sharp had forecast a $740,000,000 deficit based on revenues of $8,960,000,000 and expenditures of $9,700,000,000 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

Mr. Sharp's last estimate of revenues and expenditures for the current fiscal year before becoming external affairs minister was for revenues of $10,185,000,000, expenditures of $10,225,000,000 and a $40,000,000 deficit.

Mr. Benson has since said he wants to hold spending this fiscal year to $10,300,000,000 and balance the budget. But the government has already tabled spending estimates totalling $10,670,930,596 and must write off $138,000,000 as the federal government's share of the Expo 67 deficit.

How Mr. Benson proposes to raise taxes or otherwise meet the government's spending commitments will be the key part of his budget speech. Because of the form of Canadian personal and corporation income taxes, federal government revenues tend to rise rapidly with increases in the gross national product, or GNP.

The white paper said that during the last 18 months, the Canadian economy went through a period of adjustment. While some economic indicators turned downwards, others remained buoyant, so that the adjustment could not really be called a recession.

However, the outlook now was for continued moderate growth. The United States would feel the delayed effects of its tax increase and spending cut, but this should not seriously affect Canada.

"A rapid increase in GNP in the first two quarters of 1968 is expected to give way to more moderate rates of increase in the third and fourth quarters of the current year," the white paper said.

"While it is too early as yet to forecast the full year 1969, there are indications that moderate rates of growth will persist in the first half of 1969."

Business investment in new plant and equipment is expected to be up about three per cent this year. Total public and private investment is expected to increase six per cent. Housing activity will be greater in 1969 than in 1968, and an easing of interest rates will encourage it.

Personal expenditure on goods and services, which accounts for more than half the GNP, should continue to be strong in the year ahead, contributing to the strength of the whole economy.

The white paper gave more

Current growth rate of gross national product to be maintained for next nine to 12 months.

Price increases moderating but rate is still unacceptable and better performance is crucial.

Net national debt climbs to $16,757,400,000 or $809 per capita at last March 31, compared with $795 a year earlier.

Exports, housing, centennial and Expo spending all helped keep economy out of recession in last 18 months.

Labor force growth tops most industrialized countries, but new jobs fail to keep pace.

Canadian dollar shared effects of international monetary disturbances in last 12 months but sense of crisis now past.

Pupil Revolt Falters; Two Schools Re-Open

MONTREAL (CP) — A week-long student revolt was faltering today following a warning from Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal that students will have to start their school year over again unless they return to classes shortly.

Students at two Montreal junior colleges, in the northern Ahuntsic and the northeastern Rosemount districts, voted Tuesday night to end their occupation of the buildings. Votes were being held in other colleges today.

Still in student hands were eight of the province's 23 new post-secondary colleges. Sympathizers boycotted classes in other institutions, but this type of support appeared to be crumbling.

At the University of Montreal, students of the philosophy and social science faculties were occupying their departments, but others returned to classes.

At Loyola College, where students had voted 874 to 617 in favor of study sessions to support the demands of junior college students, the administration refused to cancel classes on grounds that the vote was not representative of the 3,000-member student body.

The student revolt began last week at Lionel Groulx College in Ste. Therese de Blainville, 20 miles north of Montreal, when dissatisfied teen-agers took over the building.

The youthful strikers complained about a lack of university facilities and a revised student aid plan that includes a cutback in scholarship funds and higher interest rates on student loans.

They say there will not be enough university space to accommodate most of them when they complete the two-year junior college course next year.

Education Minister Cardinal has said that a promised second French-language university in Montreal will open on schedule next September, but nothing can be done about the student aid program because of a lack of money.

College administrators originally maintained a hands-off attitude toward student takeover tactics, but three of them indicated Tuesday they are adopting a get-tough policy.

In the Saguenay River city of Chicoutimi, administrators of the student-occupied college announced that classes will resume next Monday and students who do not show up will have to start their school year afresh.

U.K. Tries To Bypass Paris Veto

PARIS (Reuters) — The Western European Union today passed a resolution seen by observers as a warning to France that progress towards European unity can no longer wait for it.

The assembly of the union—a discussion forum for legislators of the six European Common Market nations and Britain, voted 36 to 2 to endorse a new attempt by Britain to outflank a French veto on its efforts to join the market.

French delegates abstained in the vote which called for a political conference to strengthen co-operation in foreign relations, defence technology and in any other field not covered by the Common Market treaty. Two Italian delegates voted against the resolution.

WIRE BRIEFS

Outline Proposals

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Premier Ian Smith conferred today with his full party executive and briefed them on new British proposals for ending the Rhodesian independence dispute.

Island Pounded

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fidel Castro's "island of youth" was pounded today by the strongest winds in tropical storm Gladys as the 60-mile-an-hour gales gained strength and moved towards parts of Florida already on hurricane watch. The Isle of Pines, a colony of the young 50 miles south of Cuba, has about 30,000 residents.

Thousands Marching

Carrying banners and placards calling for "one man-one vote" and "freedom of speech," some 3,000 students paraded from Queen's University through the city centre.

Replace Leger?

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal newspapers say in stories from Paris that the federal government has decided to name Paul Beaulieu as ambassador to France, replacing Jules Leger. Mr. Beaulieu is a member of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations.

Blast Rips Ship

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) —An explosion ripped through the hull of the 2,000-ton freighter St. Norman P. Clement today injuring 11 men, one seriously. The men were working in the ship's bow.

Plane 'Wedged' in Mountain

STEWART (CP)—A pilot flew his light plane straight into the side of a mountain during a blinding snowstorm Monday—and escaped with only a minor facial cut.

The aircraft wedged in a crevice, 3,500 feet above the ground, and pilot Ayliffe (Pat) Carey, a Terrace magistrate, watched the engine tear loose from the fuselage and sail away into the snow.

The pilot and aircraft were left stranded on a snow-swept ledge.

Tuesday night, RCMP described the crash near this community 500 miles north of Vancouver as fantastic after Mr. Carey was rescued by mountain climbers and a helicopter.

"He flew right into a wedge-shaped gully about 3,500 feet up the mountain," said an RCMP spokesman.

"The plane went on until the wings bent and jammed. The motor went on by itself for another 100 feet into the gully.

"He was left on a tiny ledge with a 2,000 foot drop behind him. Ten feet either way and he would have been killed."

Mr. Carey was reported overdue after he failed to arrive at Leduc, 40 miles northwest of here, with a cargo of five drums of fuel for Granduc mines.

He was spotted by a helicopter crew 500 feet above the snow line on an 8,000-foot peak six miles from his destination.

They were unable to reach him, but four mountain climbers flown in later got a rope to Mr. Carey and then lowered him down the mountain face to a spot where he could be reached by helicopter.

He was flown to Stewart and then to Prince Rupert to have his cut treated.

U.S. TO SLASH CANADIAN BUYING

OTTAWA (CP) — The bloom is off the boom in Canada's export sales to the U.S. this year, says the pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons today by Finance Minister Benson.

The U.S. can be expected to scale down its purchases "substantially" from the first half of 1968 now that tax increases and government spending cuts are taking effect there.

The remarkable increase in sales to the U.S. — 25 per cent in the first half — more than compensated for declining sales to Italy, Japan and some other major buyers.

But the budget papers are not pessimistic about the trade balance for the year despite the expected slack in American buying.

Canada's merchandise trade surplus for the first half ran at an annual rate of more than $1,000,000,000, double the level of the same period last year.

Lower exports at year-end will offset only to an extent other favorable developments in the Canadian economy, such as easing price and cost pressures, inventory buildup, and rising business and housing investment.

Casting back to the 1967 export performance, the review says a recovery of sales in the fourth quarter was "extraordinary."

Wheat exports were in a slump and automotive sales affected by strikes. Other exports, however, rose about 13 per cent in the quarter as foreign demand increased, especially in Europe and the U.S. Sales of copper, iron and steel increased, reflecting strikes and potential strikes.

Export figures available since the budget papers were prepared show that the anticipated decline in sales to the U.S. had not taken hold to the end of September.

Sales during that month were up 26 per cent over the previous year. For the nine-month period, they were up 25.7 per cent.

Exports to all countries were 33 per cent higher in September and 18.4 per cent higher between January and September at $9,882,000,000.

Czechs Lose Democracy In New Pact

By KENNETH AMES
Special to The Washington Post

PRAGUE—If there still persist any doubts over true Soviet intentions toward Czechoslovakia, they should be dispelled by the full text of the secret Moscow "protocol" supposedly signed by the Czechoslovakian leaders.

It is this document which is the basic program for Soviet domination of Czechoslovakia. Any military treaty signed this week will be an appendix.

The 15-point protocol was originally signed by Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek and other Czechoslovak leaders under considerable pressure Aug. 26.

The full import of the protocol, until now, has been kept secret and the more recent visit by Dubcek to Moscow (Oct. 3-4) was merely to endorse this original "treaty," which puts the whole onus of action of the Czechoslovaks and binds the Russians to nothing.

HOPELESS

On the basis of this agreement, it is abundantly clear to observers here that Dubcek, in his address to the nation last Friday, was making the best of an almost hopeless situation — still attempting mild evasion and resistance to Soviet Diktat but admitting to the population that they have no serious alternative.

Perhaps the most sinister provision of all in the protocol is paragraph 14, which stipulates that "for the sake of Soviet-Czechoslovak friendship it is agreed that all contacts between respective leaders after Aug. 20, including the present talks, shall be considered as strictly secret."

It was agreed that the Czechoslovak party presidium shall "review normalization of economic issues and the standard of living. They will reinforce party and state management and release those persons whose activities do not correspond with present requirements of these agreements."

"Priority," according to paragraph 4, "is to be given to control over mass media which must fully serve the cause of socialism." It agreed that the mass media shall discontinue anti-Socialist pronouncements and that an end will be made to activity of "groups advocating anti-socialist activities . . . the requisite personnel changes will be made in mass media and Soviet leaders expressed full solidarity with these measures."

Reports emanating from Moscow that the bulk of Soviet troops are expected to leave within the next few weeks are clearly not supported by paragraph 5 of the document, which is the basis for all subsequent decisions.

"Command of allied troops and the Czechoslovak army will immediately discuss questions concerning departure and movement of military units from towns and villages where local authorities can ensure public order." This is already an "escalation" of the originally professed intentions.

"The number of troops involved," the protocol continues, "their organization and deployment will be discussed with Czechoslovak army leaders."

GOVERNMENT LEVEL

Then follows the significant provision: "Supplies and medical services for the troops will be stipulated in an agreement with the ministries of national defence and foreign affairs. Major disputes will be settled at the government level."

The Soviet military command is already complaining that troops are being boycotted by the Czech and Slovak population, being denied food supplies, water and kindness. The implication is that these factors are now regarded as prerequisites for "normalization" of the situation.

Or, as some diplomatic sources put it, Soviet troops will not consider leaving until they have adequate proof that they are loved and accepted by the Czechoslovak civilian population. One Czech writer commented: "we should live so long."

Russians Insist On Purge

By The Washington Post

PRAGUE—In what appears to be a drive to gain political and operational control over the Czechoslovakian armed forces, the U.S.S.R. is pressing for removal of the present chief of staff and his replacement by a staunch Soviet henchman, it has been learned reliably.

At the same time, the Soviet Union is reported demanding a reduction in the Czechoslovak army of one-third. If the curtailment is conducted by a new pro-Russian commanding officer, it would doubtless provide for the discharge of officers known to be strongly sympathetic to the present regime of party first secretary Alexander Dubcek and the promotion of those with opposite leanings.

The Soviet plan, it is understood, calls for the restoration of Gen. Josef Rytir to the post of chief of staff which he held in the regime of former party leader Antonin Novotny. A few months after Dubcek toppled Novotny last January, he replaced Rytir and the then defence minister, Bohumil Lomsky.

Both men were known as undeviating co-operators with Kremlin military policy. Since their ouster last spring, they had remained out of the public eye.

Accountancy Student Wins Medal, Cash

Gordon A. Kallberg, 3074 Rutledge Street, has won the B.C. Institute of Chartered Accountants silver medal for the highest standing in B.C. intermediate exams.

He also won a $125 prize from the C. A. wives' association.

Seventy-one students from all over the province who have successfully completed their course will be presented diplomas at convocation ceremonies in Vancouver Saturday.

This year's gold medal, awarded for the highest standing in B.C. final uniform examinations, went to Brian Dennis Peets of Burnaby.

. . . INFLATION

than usual attention to the domestic and international factors affecting the economy. Until recent years, it has been mainly a factual accounting of past experience, rather than an outlook for the future.

Some highlights:

—Productivity has improved this year in manufacturing and construction industries.

—Canada has had a startling increase in exports so far this year, and this rate of growth is bound to moderate.

—Revenues of all governments—federal, provincial and municipal—have risen rapidly in recent years because of economic growth and tax changes. Government expenditures rose too, but there now are signs of moderation in government spending.

The higher levels of unemployment in the last 2½ years are mainly the result of exceptional rates of growth in the labor force, 3.3 per cent in 1966 and 3.7 per cent last year. There now has been a turnaround in the movement of workers off the farms.

The financial accounts appended to the economic white paper showed that the $782,400,000 deficit for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1968, brought the net debt of the country on that date to $16,757,400,000.

At that time, the government had bonds and treasury bills outstanding totalling $20,329,875,034 and costing $1,042,143,800 in annual interest.

. . . ROUTE

The port link, which would be administered by Hydro, is needed for the multi-million dollar export contract of coal from the East Kootenay area of British Columbia to Japan.

POTENTIAL VALUE

Mr. Bennett said the coal contract is only one per cent of the port's potential value to the province.

The route proposed by Mr. Broadbent, described by the premier as an independent authority although he is an official of the crown-owned PGE, covers 36 miles from Mission to the port site.

It would require the Canadian Pacific Railway, which has the contract to haul the coal in fast unit trains, to divert from its main line at Mission and join Canadian National Railways tracks for 12 miles.

The line would then go east to the port on 22 miles of new track and the remainder on existing Great Northern and Hydro lines. It runs between one and two miles further north of the Boundary Bay recreational area than the proposed Hydro route.

BYPASS TOWN

Another advantage to the new proposal, Mr. Broadbent said, is that it could be used by Great Northern to bypass White Rock, where GN's tracks run through the beach area.

Other criticisms of the Hydro route listed by Mr. Broadbent were that it goes through the business area of Langley, creates a need for several overpasses and much of the roadbed would have to be laid where weak soil conditions exist.

The planning board's route was criticized because the needed swing spans over the Fraser would disrupt marine traffic, cause congestion, and the line would displace commercial fishermen and Ladner residents.

Grits Welcome 'An Old Friend'

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester Pearson received a round of applause today when he dropped in to the regular weekly meeting of the Liberal parliamentary caucus.

The handclapping broke out when the Liberal MPs and senators spotted the former prime minister coming through the door of the caucus room in the Parliament Buildings.

He was escorted by his successor as Liberal leader, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who succeeded him as prime minister April 20.

Grant Deachman, caucus secretary, said Mr. Pearson came as "an old friend" at the invitation of the caucus. Since he is neither an MP nor a senator he is not a caucus member.

Mr. Pearson, 71, jaunty and smiling, sat between Mr. Deachman and his old friend and colleague, Paul Martin, government Senate leader, at the head table.

Mr. Pearson's chief current task is his role as head of an investigation into international aid for the World Bank.

Breakthrough In Peace Talks Denied by U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House said today there has been no breakthrough in Vietnam war negotiations, despite widespread reports of a United States proposal to halt completely the bombing of North Vietnam.

"The position of the United States with respect to Vietnam remains as set forth by the president and the secretary of state," presidential press secretary George Christian said.

"There has been no basic change in the situation: No breakthrough," he added in a mid-morning statement prompted by reporters' queries following reports of a possible major new peace move from here, Paris and Saigon.

Meanwhile, in Paris, U.S. spokesman William J. Jorden said there had been some progress at the peace talks. He refused to elaborate.

A senior South Vietnamese political official said in Saigon earlier today the United States has proposed a full bombing halt and was discussing the proposal with the Saigon government.

South Vietnamese diplomats told reporters they understand the United States had made the proposal as an attempt to further peace negotiations.

ACKNOWLEDGE TALKS

Washington officials, although declining to say whether a final settlement has been reached, acknowledged the United States and North Vietnam have been discussing for several weeks a package plan to end the deadlocked talks in Paris.

The Washington officials said a key element of the package is North Vietnam's military restraint in return for a bombing halt.

Also being discussed, they said, is the way the South Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front—political arm of the Viet Cong—would be brought into the second phase of the Paris talks.

The report from Saigon followed two meetings today between U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu. Later Bunker met a third time with Thieu who, meanwhile, had met with his cabinet and top political, legislative and government figures.

The Saigon source said Thieu told top members of his regime the enemy must guarantee they will not escalate the war if a bombing halt is ordered.

NO BREAK SPOTTED

There was no indication during today's 26th meeting in Paris between U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators of any breakthrough in the talks.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, top U.S. negotiator there, told reporters after the session there had been no talk of the bombing issue.

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy declared: "The 26th meeting was just like the 25 preceding ones." During the session itself Thuy repeated Hanoi's formula for progress in the talks: a total, unconditional halt in U.S. attacks on the North.

The United States has insisted on mutual restraint by North Vietnam as a condition for a full bombing halt. Hanoi has yet to give any word or hint that the recent decline in its military activity is due to a deliberate decision to de-escalate the war.

There now is another of the periodic lulls in ground fighting in Vietnam and U.S. military estimates show the infiltration of men from the North into the South dropped roughly one-third last month from the summer high of 30,000.

Gaglardi Speaks Monday Night

Philip Gaglardi, minister without portfolio, will address the annual meeting of the Saanich and Gulf Island Social Credit Association Monday.

The former highways minister will speak at 6:30 p.m. before the annual banquet. He will discuss "B.C. in 1968." The banquet will take place at the Ingraham Hotel.

Christmas Moon Flight Gets Boost From Apollo

HOUSTON (AP) — Bearded, restless and feeling better, the Apollo 7 astronauts presented a televised lesson in space-age cooking and plumbing on the Wally, Walt and Donn Show today and then sped on toward the halfway point of their marathon space mission.

As they swept into their sixth day in orbit, their space chariot was performing so well that plans were being formed to send three men around the moon Christmas Day.

For the third straight morning, the tediousness of the flight was broken by the daily television. The TV show was shortened to nine minutes today from 11 minutes because of initial reception trouble at a receiving station at Corpus Christi, Tex.

MEET THIS WEEK

Top officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration scheduled a meeting later this week to lay plans for sending Apollo 8 on a swing around the moon.

The Apollo 8 spacecraft already is in place atop a mighty Saturn V rocket on a Cape Kennedy launching pad. It originally had been scheduled for an earth orbit flight, but the early excellent performance of Apollo 7 has prompted officials to consider the moon test, which would be a vital step toward a U.S. manned lunar landing next year.

One drawback is that the crew of Norman, Capt. James A. Lovell and Maj. William A. Anders has had only limited training for a lunar fly-around. Sources said they would undergo extensive training to get ready.

The plan could be wiped out altogether if something serious should go wrong in the final half of the Apollo 7 mission.

Move to Bolster UN Backed by Big Four

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Signs pointed today to Big Four acceptance of Secretary-General U Thant's proposal that their foreign ministers meet to discuss ways of bolstering the United Nations as a peace force.

However, UN delegates generally felt no date for a meeting could be set until after the Nov. 5 U.S. presidential election, noting that President Johnson could not commit the next administration to any such parley.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart of Britain told a news conference Monday he did not foresee a Big Four meeting before next year.

A spokesman for Thant said he had received unofficial reactions that were "not negative" from Stewart, French Foreign Minister Michel Debre, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and U.S. chief delegate J. R. Wiggins.

Thant made public Tuesday letters he had sent more than a week ago to the four foreign ministers. He talked with all four during their visits to the General Assembly for the current policy debate.

DISCUSS MIDDLE EAST

Elsewhere in the United Nations:

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Gunnar Jarring, Thant's Middle East envoy, talked at length Tuesday on Israel's nine-point plan for a Middle East settlement.

An Israeli spokesman said Eban gave Jarring a comprehensive account of Israel's views on points outlined in the foreign minister's policy statement before the assembly last week.

The head of the UN refugee agency in the Middle East said in his annual report to the assembly Tuesday that efforts to establish peace in the area will be jeopardized unless prospective contributions for refugee aid are increased 10 per cent.

Laurence Michelmore, commissioner-general of the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA), said his agency's financial situation remains precarious and the outlook bleak.

Labor Relations Chairman Named

Michael J. Griffin was re-elected chairman of the Mechanical Industrial Relations Association Tuesday night.

The labor relations arm of the Mechanical Contractors association also elected a new board of directors comprised of R. H. Johnson, A. F. Rawlings, B. T. Sprague, John T. Welham, H. J. Heighes and W. G. Meakes.

The elections were held at the annual dinner meeting of the association held at the Century Inn.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A violent storm in the Gulf of Alaska rocked the Queen Charlotte Islands with southeast gales this morning. Winds gusted as high as 70 miles per hour at Sandspit. A disturbance moving out of the storm centre will sweep rain and strong winds across the south coast by noon today.

Skies in the interior regions were mostly clear this morning under the influence of a strong ridge of high pressure. However, the disturbance is expected to drive the ridge into Alberta and spread precipitation into all regions by early Thursday morning. Cloudy showery weather will follow the disturbance on Thursday. Afternoon temperatures will range from 50 to 55 degrees in southern regions and from 40 to 50 in the north.

Ministerial Question Time Stirs Debate

New-Broom Trudeau Methods Place Speaker on Spot

By CARL MOLLINS

OTTAWA (CP) — Lucien Lamoureux is the man on the spot at the moment in the increasingly-raucous Ottawa debate over the new-broom methods of the Trudeau administration in Parliament.

Mr. Lamoureux, Speaker of the Commons, asked the House Tuesday for time to make up his mind on whether to allow a full-dress debate on the government's program to excuse some ministers each day from the Commons question period.

Opposition and government collided in an hour-long debate about the ministerial roster system, which the government defends as an efficiency measure and its opponents contend detracts from Parliament's rights, privileges and dignity.

Speaker Lamoureux, 48, the urbane Cornwall, Ont., lawyer who represents Stormont riding as an independent and whose office demands traditional impartiality, said after the debate he was impressed by arguments on both sides.

He added that other issues involved include whether the challenge to government practice—formally raised as a question of member privilege by Conservative Donald MacInnis (Cape Breton-East Richmond) for referral to a Commons committee—should have been brought only after 48 hours' notice.

Mr. Lamoureux, Speaker since January, 1966, said he would examine the issue more thoroughly, "and perhaps seek the guidance of the Holy Ghost," before giving a decision. A Speaker's ruling on such matters cannot be appealed.

At issue is a ministerial roster system for question period in operation for little more than a week. The question period is at the beginning of each day's sitting and lasts from 30 minutes to an hour.

Of the 28 ministers seated in the Commons—Paul Martin, the 29th is in the Senate—11 are listed to attend Mondays, 13 Tuesday, all on Wednesdays if in Ottawa, 18 on Thursdays and 24 Fridays.

Prime Minister Trudeau said the object is to make more efficient use of ministerial time. Solicitor-General George McIlraith said it was ridiculous for the opposition to demand the presence of all ministers for all question periods when the average number of questions directed at a minister works out at two in a month of 23 sitting days.

Mr. MacInnis and his backers didn't see it that way.

Mr. MacInnis noted a revised roster would effectively rule out questions Mondays on trade and financial matters since all four ministers concerned would be absent.

On Fridays, he noted, both the ministers concerned with foreign affairs—defence and external affairs—and both with jurisdiction over legal matters—justice and the solicitor-general—would be away together.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said the change in practice violated the spirit of a provisional standing order and long tradition, reduced House privileges and affronted Parliament's dignity.

John Diefenbaker denounced the system as making "a nightmare of parliamentary rules" and the government was attempting to make itself arbiter of long-standing parliamentary rights.

Stanfield Prods PM On Superport

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday the federal government intends to exercise all its normal federal responsibilities in the development of the new Roberts Bank superport on Vancouver's southern outskirts.

He was replying in the Commons to Opposition Leader Stanfield, who asked about the division between federal and provincial responsibilities.

Mr. Stanfield asked whether the federal government agreed that the province should operate a railway linking the new port with existing railway services under federal jurisdiction.

Mr. Trudeau said Transport Minister Paul Hellyer will deal with this point later.

Observer Team Member Will Testify

OTTAWA — Canada's representative on the international observer team in federally-controlled Nigeria will return to Canada next week to appear before the external affairs committee of Parliament.

Maj.-Gen. William Milroy is expected back Monday and will probably be available to testify on his observations of the war the following day.

Members of the committee have been anxious to question him on the reports issued by the observer team which to date has consistently maintained no evidence has been found of genocide by federal Nigerian troops against the Ibo people of Biafra.

The team's third report was issued Tuesday and contained a request that its members be given swifter access and unrestricted freedom of movement to battle areas so it can effectively observe the condition of the local populace.

Although the representatives from Canada, Britain, Poland, Sweden, the United Nations and the Organization For African Unity report excellent co-operation in their travels, they said they have not been able to get to the areas of reported incidents quickly enough.

They recommended that certain members of the team be allowed by the federal authorities to remain permanently in various areas where the fighting is taking place.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said that he had immediately ordered such a request to be made to the Lagos government.

The team's report contained the following observations from its recent five-day mission in the southern area of Nigeria:

- No evidence supporting the allegation of genocide by federal forces against the Ibo people. A number of them were alive and well behind federal lines, but a majority had not yet come back in from the bush.
- A large number of the civilian population, including small children, are suffering from malnutrition. Although about one-half of the persons seen by the team in refugee camps were in fair health, relief resources are already overtaxed.
- There is a shortage of doctors in the area visited and the overall supply of drugs and assistance is inadequate. The food supply is holding up at present but will not be sufficient unless a more rapid return of people to their villages can be arranged.

CBC Net Draws Caouette Blast

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Real Caouette, leader of the Ralliement des Creditistes, won a burst of applause from a handful of Liberal backbenchers Tuesday when he attacked the French network of the CBC for giving too much television coverage to the weekend founding convention of Rene Levesque's separatist "parti Quebecois."

Mr. Caouette, whose party also held a convention Thanksgiving weekend, said the CBC "gave twice as much time to those who wanted to destroy Canada as it gave to those who want to strengthen Canada."

The Creditiste leader was the guest Sunday evening on the regular half-hour interview program "Deux Plus Un."

Monday evening the Levesque party convention was the subject of an hour-long program. On this program, however, the guests were political commentators who were often critical of Mr. Levesque and his movement. Much of the program was devoted to film sequences of convention highlights and an assessment of the convention results.

Support among Quebec Liberals for Mr. Caouette's complaint echoes a long-standing belief among Quebeckers in federal politics that the CBC French network is overly kind to separatists.

Jean Marchand, minister responsible for regional development, has been among the CBC's most severe critics on this issue.

'FATAL TO GOOD GOVERNMENT'

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's plans to limit Opposition questions in the House of Commons could reduce Parliament to a one-party system, Eldon Woolliams said Tuesday night.

Mr. Woolliams, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Calgary North, told the annual meeting of the York West Progressive Conservative Association he will undertake a cross-Canada campaign to muster public support against the procedural changes.

"My great fear . . . is that in the guise of needed parliamentary reform, we are destroying the institution of Parliament, silencing the Opposition, throwing away its effective tools and reducing this country to a one-party state," he said.

"You are going to be told that it is being done in the interest of expediting business—well, Hitler expedited a lot of business."

SET TIMETABLE

Earlier this season, the government set up a rotating timetable of House duty for cabinet ministers, so that only certain cabinet ministers are available for the question period on any particular day.

"The planned failure of the government to have the ministry present every day is fatal to good government," Mr. Woolliams said that while he favored a 30-minute limit on the daily question period for four days a week, all cabinet ministers should be in their seats to answer questions from Opposition members, unless they are absent on government business.

He said Mr. Trudeau's plans to turn over government spending estimates to committees for scrutiny would effectively stifle Opposition criticism.

"To give these committees this kind of responsibility is to assign to these committees the role of the Opposition—when in fact, the government controls the decisions of the committees," he said.

Pianist Arrested

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Jazz pianist Alan Haig, 46, has been charged with murder in the strangulation death of his wife Bonnie, 25. Haig, who once played with the Dizzie Gillespie and Charles Parker bands, was arrested Tuesday.

Vive l'Imagination Libre!

LIFE UNDER PRESIDENT RENE Levesque would evidently be a tightly controlled, grimly dedicated affair in which almost every consideration had been sacrificed to ensure the primacy of the French language. While some of the provisions of the Levesque policy for establishing the sovereignty of a Quebec state will appeal to the most enthusiastic French nationalists, the people of Quebec as a whole may be expected to take a more critical view of the type of society which would likely evolve.

Le Parti Quebecois, as formed last weekend, would make one of its first acts, if elected to provincial power, a withdrawal from Confederation. The second act would be to negotiate a common market pact with the rest of Canada. Both endeavors presuppose a compliance on the part of Canada for which there is no present evidence. A province cannot secede from Confederation without following a much more complicated procedure than merely announcing its departure.

There would be, to cite only the obvious, a very lengthy negotiation of costs, for the huge assets of Confederation to be found within the provincial boundaries of Quebec could hardly be given away by the federal government even if it were of a mind to do so. The new state would begin life with a debt which might be insupportable by the province's population, and every province would expect to have a say in the eventual disposition of the portion of the country's wealth which Mr. Levesque's state would wish to take with it.

As to a common market arrangement—this might be difficult to obtain from the rest of Canada, although without it Quebec could be placed in an impossible economic position. Clearly, the declaration of sovereignty would be in danger of being lost among the number of requests which a separatist Quebec would have to make.

Internally, Mr. Levesque's platform of obligatory French language in all relationships, state control of communications and the drug industry, with doctors on a state payroll, and other similarly compulsive measures could hardly be expected to encourage new private industry or attract the professions.

Even if possible to create, the proposed independent state would face acute problems of survival. But Mr. Levesque's new party and its ambitious project should serve the purpose of unifying much of the separatist sentiment in Quebec—although not all—and face the people with some of the realities of separatism in practice. Such a confrontation, if seen without the blinding light of over-zealous French-Canadian nationalism, should convince the majority of the people of Quebec that their future lies with the Canada they helped to found and in which they are now entering upon a new era of recognition and co-operation.

A Familiar Pattern

THERE ARE FEW POPULARLY-elected governments in Latin America and within the space of eight days this month their number was reduced by two as Panama and Peru fell under the grip of the military. The army coup which ousted President Fernando Belaunde Terry in Peru points up the problems facing the area.

Belaunde's downfall was the result of a number of factors, but the principal one is economic. He had been considered a potentially great leader who might show the way to other Latin Americans, but Belaunde's performance did not match his promise. An idealist, he could not find the funds to carry out his dreams, which included a great highway system to open up Peru's jungle areas. His critics said Belaunde lacked the determination to push through needed measures to break up feudal estates, levy heavier taxes on the rich and curb military appetites for expensive modern equipment.

While his management of economic affairs was not always sound, some of Belaunde's troubles were not of his own making. When he became involved in a dispute with a United States-owned oil complex, Washington cut off badly needed aid. This helped precipitate a financial crisis which halved the value of Peruvian currency. The Alliance for Progress has never functioned as well as President Kennedy intended, and Peru may be counted as one of the victims of this failure.

The new army rulers began their regime by seizing United States oil holdings in the country but beyond that their intentions are unknown. Many South American generals have claimed to be reformers but few have been equal to the task. The new situation is likely to play into the hands of Cuba-inspired Communists and the familiar pattern of repression and revolt will follow.

The people of Peru and others in similar circumstances in Latin America deserve something better. If only in the interest of preserving hemispheric prosperity and security, the United States and Canada should examine good-neighbor policies which have fallen short of what Latin America needs.

Classrooms for District 63

SCHOOL DISTRICT 63 (THE Saanich Peninsula) has put its problem squarely before residents of the region. It needs more classrooms to provide adequate schooling for children now in attendance and to meet an expanding pupil population which grew 6 per cent in the last year and is still climbing. At present many children are being taught in makeshift quarters — in activity rooms, on a stage, in a former paint-shop, in lunchroom space.

The question before the residents is simple: Are they satisfied to provide substandard educational opportunity for their young sons and daughters?

If they are not, they have a duty to perform—to vote for the referendum placed before them next Saturday. Its passage will provide the needed classrooms and will make provision for prudent purchase of land for schools required in the near future. The investment has double value. It promises dividends in a better educated population, and it will permit purchases before property prices rise still higher.

How Not to Have a Riot

MR. ROSCOE DRUMMOND, writing in The Christian Science Monitor, has thrown out a useful suggestion that might reduce riot and injury in tense United States situations. He notes with approval that a presidential commission is engaged in studying violence in the country. Then he asks "Why not a study of non-violence?"

The writer cites instances in which prompt action by individuals or groups in regions where violence was imminent has resulted in peaceful settlement of some issues. The argument does not discredit efforts to bind up the wounds of those injured in strife. It does, on the other hand, point to the preferable course of avoiding the physical strife in the first place.

Mr. Drummond's proposal is highly commendable. An investigation in depth of how not to have a riot seems as important as study on what to do when a riot occurs.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By RICHARD PURSER

Kid-Glove Handling for Biafra Problem

THE Nigerian civil war having become a political issue in the Canadian Parliament it dominated news from the UN in the Canadian press last week when two opposition MPs flew here to discuss it with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and others here for the General Assembly's 23rd session. But the Nigerian issue can be placed in perspective by noting that it attracted little attention elsewhere. References to it in the Assembly's opening general debate, as well as behind-the-scenes activities concerning it, have gone virtually unreported in the U.S. Even the New York Times, when it printed lengthy excerpts from the introduction to Secretary General U Thant's annual report, omitted sections dealing with the war.

Purser

Lack of press concern reflected lack of concern in the general debate itself. Of the representatives of 33 nations who spoke consecutively over a five-day stretch of the debate (in which each of the 125 UN members has the chance to make a policy statement), only 11 made any direct reference at all to Nigeria. Even to arrive at that figure requires including such passing references as that of Guyana, whose minister of state simply prayed for "and end to the long night for Nigeria."

Only five of those who spoke at all went beyond the humanitarian issues in the war to the political issues. Two — France and Haiti — were solidly on Biafra's side; Jamaica leaned to Biafra's side by urging that the General Assembly call for an immediate ceasefire; and Ethiopia and Morocco were on the Nigerian federal government's side.

Identifying Word

There is a dead giveaway when a country is on Biafra's side: its spokesman actually uses the word "Biafra" instead of some such circumlocution as "territory remaining under rebel control." Other countries (following a practice which Mr. Sharp later adopted) avoided the word as implying recognition of a state which the FMG (Federal Military Government) does not consider to exist.

The French and Haitian representatives alone used the word "Biafra." Haitian Foreign Minister Rene Chalmers considered the FMG's war against Biafran secession "a true example of genocide" resulting in the "martyrdom of an innocent people."

The French attitude was, as usual, more complex. Foreign Minister Michel Debre, who had the effrontery to call for an end to arms shipments to the area although France is supplying arms to Biafra, saw "the tragedy of Biafra, the martyrdom of the Ibo people" as an example of "the refusal to recognize the right of peoples to self-determination." A solution must be based "on the incontrovertible personality of that people."

He went on in a Gaullist vein that aroused the deep suspicions of many observers, especially those employed by the Canadian Department of External Affairs, but got to the moral as opposed to the legal heart of the matter:

Moral Argument

"Quite often in these halls eloquent voices have been raised to condemn the action of the colonizers at the expense of peoples which claim the right to govern themselves. These voices have requested that the great movement of nationalities which has changed the face of Europe might extend throughout the globe and that the freedom of determining their destiny themselves not be the monopoly of the white peoples.

"The time has come when we must ask our African friends what they themselves, expect to do about this principle and to remind them of what the Europeans have learned from long and painful experience: namely, that among brothers intolerance can reign. To remain silent too long, to remain inactive when blood is flowing and famine is spreading, undermines the new prestige of Africa. It is a constant and faithful friend of the Africans who, from this rostrum, says this with concern, but also with confidence in their forthcoming reaction."

The FMG's External Affairs Commissioner, Okoi Arikpo, later in the general debate, confined himself to declaring it Nigeria's duty as a sovereign state to put down the rebellion in the eastern regions. But the Nigerians are fuming at France behind the scenes, and are threatening to go back to the floor if France pushes too hard, there to denounce France for massive hypocrisy. France has not been so sensitive to the desires of African minorities in assisting former French colonies in Africa to put down tribal dissent.

Canadian diplomats similarly see the French not to have a moral concern with the right of peoples within a federation, but only a desire to wreck any federation of British historical origin.

Inherited Boundaries

Most African countries have boundaries drawn by former colonial rulers without concern for the tribal realities, and they now have to live with the situation. Morocco expressed the fear of 29 of 33 African governments when it urged the secessionist leaders to end hostilities "and co-operate with the federal authorities in order to restore peace and unity in Nigeria within a framework of reconciliation." The reason came in the next sentence:

"Morocco, particularly aware of the dangers which beset or threaten some African states with respect to the integrity of their own territory, can only endorse the efforts made by the federal government of Nigeria to preserve the unity of that country."

In other words, if Biafra gets away with it, someone else might.

Ethiopia, through its position of leadership in the Organization of African Unity (OAU), has taken a lead in seeking a solution to the Nigerian war. The OAU heads of state resolution of Sept. 16 called for a solution within what the Ethiopian representative here termed "one Nigerian sovereign personality." And that solution "should be essentially left to the Nigerians themselves."

Any departure from these principles, he said, "would be tantamount to interference in the domestic affairs of Nigeria; it might also introduce into this tragic situation elements of the cold war and commercial and other rivalries" — something African leaders fear next only to the dissolution of their own states.

Just how a solution will be found "on the basis of the will of the Nigerian people as a whole and of extending justice and security to all elements of the population" is not known here — although FMG military victory or Biafran surrender seem the only answers in sight. It is hoped, of course, that Nigeria will not then oppress the Ibos — a hope so far regarded as vain by the Ibo-Biafran spokesman in New York.

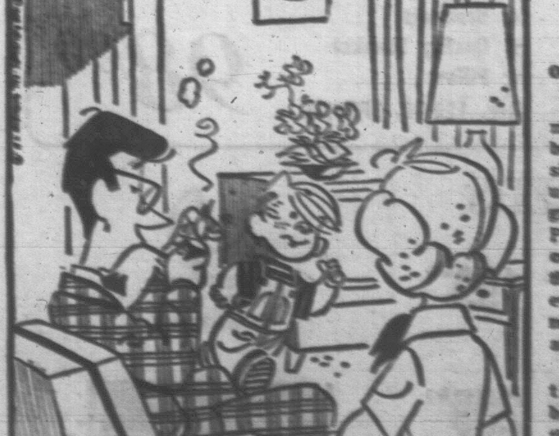
Oppose White Interference

What is know here is that interference of well-meaning white countries is not wanted by Nigeria or most of Africa. Canada, under political pressure to take some move such as proposing that the General Assembly call for a ceasefire — which sounds innocent but in effect would leave the rebels with held territory and thus a bargaining position against the government of an internationally recognized federal state — has canvassed the membership thoroughly. It knows the move would be so great a failure as to be disastrous. It also knows that U Thant, when in his annual report he supported the OAU stand against any action jeopardizing the unity and territorial integrity of Nigeria, spoke for a black Africa pathologically fearful of western intervention in its affairs. It also knows that some African countries are prepared to raise the subject of Quebec if Canada does interfere.

As Mr. Sharp made clear in his speech to the Assembly, Canada is observing the niceties of international legality in this situation. He later told the House of Commons External Affairs Committee why it had no choice.

Yet there is room for lament that international legality may serve to condemn a people who sought to leave a system of borders over whose creation they had no control and within which they feel in mortal danger. Does it solve all problems to cry "Balkanization!" when a people tries to extricate itself from a situation it believes impossible?

DENNIS THE MENACE



"I DIDN'T MISS A THING! MR. WILSON SAYS THE NEIGHBORHOOD WAS REAL QUIET WHILE I WAS AWAY!"

Looking Back

From the Times, Oct. 16, 1968.

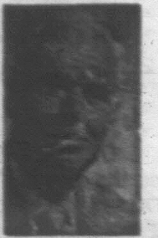
A request was made to the parks board for permission to establish an up-to-date bowling green at Beacon Hill Park. No answer could be given to the request, however, as there was not a full attendance.

William Oliphant, the advocate of bowling, stated there are a number of enthusiasts who are anxious to see the old game establish in the city. The spot asked for is near the Albion Cricket field and the advocates are prepared to provide all funds required.

Bible-Belt Image Going

By JAMES H. GRAY from Calgary

THE race for the leadership of the Alberta Social Credit Party is taking on the colorful high-jinks of the recent national campaigns of the Grits and Tories. Mr. Manning's colleagues are stumping the province in chartered aircraft, the non-candidate ministers are beginning to take sides and, from the press releases of the hopeful, Alberta is soon to be shorn of its Bible-belt image. Several of the candidates are guardedly in favor of booze with meals on Sundays. A couple seem to favor Sunday movies. None has yet come out for daylight saving time but that will certainly be next.



Gray

It must be quite an eye-rubbing experience for Premier Manning to discover what his mouse-mild ministers really believe when they get free of his curb chain. They are in favor of overhauling the whole government system he thought to be nearly perfect. Under their guidance, things will be done better so that there will be no need to raise taxes.

It's only a matter of weeks since the cabinet, with Mr. Manning running things, considered Sunday movies and turned them down. Now there is a report that the cabinet, with Manning gone, is prepared to submit a booze-on-Sunday bill to the legislature.

The Liberalizers

Everybody now seems to be in favor of liberalizing Alberta. The conclusion hence is that only Premier Manning was in favor of keeping Alberta blue. It will be interesting to see how the answers turn out when the candidates get around to daylight saving time, a deep city-versus-country issue in Alberta. Was Mr. Manning also responsible for keeping daylight saving time out of Alberta?

There are now five candidates in the field but the pundits all say the race will be between three — Hon. Harry Strom, the fundamentalist lay preacher; Hon. Ray Reierson, a Rotary type former salesman; and Hon. Gordon Taylor, a school teacher turned highways minister.

Although Premier Manning disavows any part in the choice of his successor, with the people closest to Manning it will be Strom all the way. The egg-heads who did the brainstorming for Manning's book, Political Realignment, are solidly behind Strom. So is a Manning favorite, the minister of youth.

Manning Patter

One problem for the outsider, in evaluating the candidates, is that they all seem to talk, in their press releases, like passages out of the Manning book. They all seem to believe: "Premier Manning's dynamic blueprints in the field of human resources development deserves vigorous and enthusiastic support . . . but we must reaffirm our support of free enterprise principles . . . while we temper our programs to include vital sociological and humanitarian changes . . ."

Such gobbledegook has a curious fascination for Socred politicians, but all are good enough politicians to know that it takes more than double-talk to line up large armies of delegates.

On the level of real-politickery, the man with the edge would have to be the Hon. Gordon Taylor, the minister of highways. He has provided an ear for people with gripes from all over the province. He has laced the province with a first class system of highways and secondary roads. Under his eye, millions have been spent without scandal.

Sunday Drinking

Though a teetotaller himself, he was the first post-Manning voice heard in support of booze on Sunday. He is also in favor of Sunday movies. But most of all he has been the voice of Alberta motorists. He has blasted the insurance companies for their automobile rates. He has warned them that compulsory state insurance could come unless they mend their ways. He is advocating immediate payment of claims of persons injured in traffic accidents. In a wide open election, he would be a powerful candidate.

But this is a delegate election. There will be 25 delegates from each of the 65 constituency associations. The Socred old guard will be very much in control of the machinery of delegate selection. That means that when the vote is taken on December 6, the likeliest choice appears to be Harry Strom. He has a war chest, an organization and the Diefenbaker genius of never forgetting a name or a face.

To the Editor

"Soak the Rich" Fallacy

It is distressing that increasing unemployment should accompany Canada's growing affluence.

It takes a great deal of money, as much as $100,000 or more to provide one new job. This money can only come out of savings either corporate or personal.

To encourage and produce this capital it is suggested that rates of personal income tax should be progressively lowered on all personal income over $30,000 a year, with no tax on all personal income over $50,000 a year.

Nowadays the rich do not spend their superfluous income on Roman orgies, but in finding ways of profitable investment and so increasing employment. If Canada goes any further in a "soak the rich" policy it will ruin her just as it has ruined England. — J. P. Thornton, 913 Wilmer.

It's Either Lenin's Way, or Our Way

The Economist

The one sure thing about this divided world is that whatever else you can do with it, you can't just climb off it.

Lenin

After 20 years of the cold war, it should not need to be said that the single most important fact about the second half of the twentieth century is the division of the world between Communists and non-Communists, and that we are all caught up in the consequences of this division.

Yet it is necessary to say it, because the climbers-off are having a go at it again.

The fact that both the Americans and the Russians are simultaneously unpopular, because of Vietnam and Czechoslovakia, has made quite a lot of people say that they want nothing to do with the great ideological clash that caused the crises in Vietnam and Czechoslovakia.

Can't Stand Aloof

The same sort of thing happened in the 1950s, when a group of Asian and African politicians tried to argue that there was a thing called the "third world" which could stand aloof from the great east-west quarrel. There wasn't, and it couldn't.

It happened again in the mid-1960s, when it was General de Gaulle's turn to try to find the non-existent place away from it all. Now it is happening for a third time, as the young people on the new left wing of politics take up the search for the ideological Shangri La that Mr. Nehru and General de Gaulle could not find.

It was impossible then, and it's impossible now, because there is no third centre of power in the world that is capable of sustaining the search for a third way between the communist and western systems.

Of course, it is possible for individual countries to be militarily neutral. It is possible for them to trade with both sides and even — though this is getting steadily harder — to be given money and food and steel mills by both sides. But it is not possible to be politically neuter.

There are at bottom two ways, and only two, in which countries today organize their economic and political life.

One is Lenin's way, as it has been inherited by the 14 Communist governments in the world, which puts all important decisions in all fields of life into the hands of a single, centralized and highly disciplined Communist party. The other is the pluralist system of the west, which is based on competition between several independent centres of economic and-or political power.

There is no country that does not fall pretty decisively into one category or the other.

There are differences of degree within each group, but they are less important than the yawning gulf between the two sides: for all their differences, Albania and Yugoslavia have more in common, in the essentials of the way they organize themselves, than either of them has with any non-Communist country.

Not All Democratic

It is perfectly true that many countries in the non-Marxist part of the world are pluralist in their economic life without being pluralist in their politics — that is, they are capitalist but not democratic.

It is something that western radicals should be rapping their consciences about twice daily before breakfast. But it does not remove the essential difference between the two parts of the world.

What the Russians have done to Czechoslovakia makes it clear that this difference remains as large as ever. Until August 21st it had been possible to believe, on the basis of what had been happening first in Yugoslavia and then in Czechoslovakia, that a new variant of Communism was taking shape in eastern Europe that would combine the principle of public ownership with a slow but steady progress towards a pluralist system in economics and even, eventually, in politics.

The invasion of Czechoslovakia has smashed that belief. It is only in Yugoslavia that a real attempt is still being made to liberalize Communism, and even in Yugoslavia it has yet to be proved that the Russians will let the experiment continue or that the experiment will actually work if they do.

Until more open-minded men come to power in Moscow — the fact remains that all the world's real working democracies are on the non-Marxist side of the great dividing line.

The evidence is that pluralism in politics, which is what makes democracy possible, grows best out of the soil of a pluralist economic system. It may not be conclusive evidence, but it is what we have to be going on with.

Fundamental Split

What the invasion of Czechoslovakia has done is to remind people that this is the really fundamental division of today's world. It has destroyed General de Gaulle's argument that the difference between Communists and non-Communists in Europe is less important than the difference between Europeans and Americans.

The central issue of the next 20 years is not a matter of what continent you come from, or what color your skin is. It is which of the two rival systems of ideas, Lenin's centralism or western pluralism, most people are going to be living under a generation from now. We have been driven back to the heart of the matter.

This is not the only thing the invasion of Czechoslovakia has done. It has also made people remember where the centre of gravity lies in each of the two great power-systems.

RUSSIAN INVASION of Czechoslovakia made clear that differences between Communists and Western systems is as great as ever, despite hopes that gap had been narrowing. Czechs like these who sat in Prague Square in front of Statue of King Wenceslaus in passive demonstration against Soviet occupying forces had hoped to find middle way but discovered it was impossible.

None Independent

It lies in America and Russia; and it will stay there so long as these two countries maintain their present preponderance of economic and military strength. No other country is wholly independent of one or the other of them.

Every other country relies, to some extent, on one of the two giants for trade, for economic help, for technological stimulus and, in the last resort, for military protection.

The channels of power lead back to either Moscow or Washington. It is not an ideal world, but it is the world we have got.

It will not change until some new centre of power comes into being, in Europe or Japan or China, which can perform the same function. That has not happened yet.

And until it does happen it is as pointless to resent the way the world works as it would be to resent the fact that the earth goes round the sun.

The probability is that the world is going to stay a two-system place, with two dominant centres of power, for a long time to come.

Separate Questions

It therefore matters very much, to those who are concerned about political liberty, how the two superpowers conduct their relations with the lesser powers within their orbit.

This involves two separate questions. The first is under what conditions the United States and Russia will let a country cross the dividing line between one camp and the other without trying to prevent it.

The second is what range of political choice a country can hope to enjoy within the limits imposed by the fact that it belongs to one system and not the other.

Pravda answered the first question for the Russians on September 26th, bluntly and unequivocally. A Communist country is free to do certain things, said the Pravda article, but it is not free to depart from Communism.

This presumably means that even if a Communist electorate were to reject the single list of candidates the party puts in front of it at election time, which in all conscience is unlikely enough, the party would call on whatever force was necessary to maintain itself in power. It is an extraordinary arrogant assertion, and it differs markedly from the American position.

The American say they will do nothing to prevent a Communist party taking power in a non-Communist country if the change takes place according to the democratic forms.

The interventions in the Dominican Republic and Vietnam are not incompatible with this: the Americans sent troops into those countries because they claimed that the Communists were trying to take power by force, and without the consent of a majority of the population.

Of course one is entitled to wonder what the Americans would really do if a majority of Italians or Frenchmen voted a Communist government into power. They might not live up to their promise to keep their hands off. But at least the commitment is there in principle. Pravda's isn't.

How Wide a Range?

In any case, there are not likely to be many countries that are going to risk making the jump from one system to the other. The more important test is how wide a range of political choice is available to the members of each system short of leaving it altogether.

For most countries on the non-Communist side of the dividing line the answer is fairly plain. They can vary their governments over a range that extends from the far right to the middling-far left — up to and including, as Finland shows, a Communist share in a coalition government — without any objections from the United States.

This is not true everywhere. It is a perfectly fair criticism of the Americans that in parts of Asia and Latin America they have been willing to lend their moral (or rather immoral) support to right-wing dictators who give their people no political choice at all.

Army Around Neck

But this shabby politicking is a very different thing from sending armies of tanks rolling across frontiers. By invading Czechoslovakia the Russians have made it plain that they will not let any member of the Communist alliance diverge in any important way from Russia's idea of how a Communist country ought to be run.

Mr. Dubcek was pretty certainly not trying to change the essentials of the Communist system in Czechoslovakia. He was trying to make it more liberal, and therefore more efficient. He got a Russian army around his neck for his pains. The difference cannot be ignored.

The essential political choice for the rest of this century is going to be between two rival systems of organizing a country's life. If the Russians' action in Czechoslovakia is an indication of what they have in mind for their system, the choice is not a hard one.

Does Success at the Polls Justify Corrupt Methods?

The writing and publishing of books on Canadian politics is accelerating. Most of us are waiting impatiently for the coming books of Peter Newman and Judy LaMarsh on the Pearson period.

Fisher

Meanwhile we've just galloped through three recent books, one of which, Richard Gwyn's Smallwood: The Unlikely Revolutionary, is almost a great book, as entertaining as Neil McKenty's Mitch Hepburn, as fast-paced as Newman's Renegade In Power (though not so thorough or comprehensive).

The gift Richard Gwyn showing in the Shape of Scandal (1965) for meshing detail, description of events and persons in a smooth continuity is still evident but the subject here, a rich personality, is a greater challenge and opportunity than the series of disasters which rocked the Pearson government in its first three years of office.

Crowe

The first third of the Smallwood book covers Mr. Smallwood's career to his marvellous accomplishment of confederation with Canada in 1948. This saga is little known to Canadians outside Newfoundland.

●

It may be the weakest in accuracy and the most biased in the premier's favor. We can't judge that but until confederation Joey comes through as every bit the "folk hero", the description which Mr. Gwyn believes the rest of Canada still holds of him.

The gist of the rest of the book (at least to us) is that the folk hero is pretty shabby morally and more distinguished by failures or short-fall successes than his overwhelming electoral triumphs in provincial elections would indicate.

Clearly, Mr. Smallwood cooperated thoroughly with Mr. Gwyn and we don't think the author deliberately set out to degrade or impugn his subject. The details of the Wabush story (iron and John Doyle) and the Churchill Falls story (Jean Lesage, Robert Winters, and the Rothschilds) are gem chapters about a ruthless, resolute, unconquerable spirit.

The following excerpts describing Smallwood, the domineering politician, and his methods are only samples of many which have a cumulative effect. They leave one with the difficult question: Is total political success and a continuing, exciting impact on the people of both Newfoundland and Canada a justification for methods which are corrupt and corrupting?

"In public, he was openly contemptuous of his subordinates. In private, he tolerated no personal relationship except sycophancy.

"Quick to score off others, Smallwood tolerated little humor at his own expense and his colleagues; when they ribbed him, did so with painful circumspection.

"Fear itself is nothing new in the island. For centuries, Newfoundland had suffered the untrammelled power of the 'fishing admirals,' of merchants, of colonial government and of clerics. But systematic intimidation by a political machine which responded to the will of a single man was new and terrifying.

"Political debate, once a bawdy Newfoundland art form, was driven underground, to be voiced only in taverns and private homes ... the miasma of fear pervaded everywhere.

"The Liberal Party's demands for election funds was insatiable, and the penalties for niggardliness were severe.

"The real cost of corruption was moral. Cynicism by government invited public cynicism.

SMALLWOOD

"Like most populists, who love the mass rather than the individual it was always in Smallwood's nature to become a dictator.

"Although a public fund raising campaign brought in less than $1,000, the advance sale of senatorships proved lucrative. The going price was $10,000 and two were purchased, though unhappily one donor became involved in an income tax case and never reached the red chamber."

Two notable Ottawa politicians, Jack Pickersgill and Davie Fulton, fare rather poorly in the book, the Tory for his failure to resign over the decision of the Diefenbaker government not to support him and send RCMP reinforcements into the loggers' strike, the Grit through being cast mainly and repeatedly as the premier's tool in levering more money out of the Federal Government.

●

Both are gone for the moment from active politics and Mr. Gwyn's conclusion is that Joey is almost gone and his like won't be seen again in Newfoundland. His memorial is really the certainty, according to Mr. Gwyn, that the new generation of Newfoundlanders owe their freedom to Joey Smallwood, the man who, paradoxically, denied it to them for so long.

Is the CBC Giving You The Olympics You Want?

By ART STOTT

When the CBC was working on the build-up for coverage of the current Olympic Games in Mexico, it carried three extended programs dealing with previous Olympiads. I saw two and thought they were excellent. One feature of the second, however, left me a little confused. At the end of that presentation two photography critics discussed the camera techniques, particularly those used in the Berlin Games. The criticism left the viewer feeling that the person who handled the photography was artistically lacking.

Stott

To my eyes, the production was splendid. It showed the events as they took place. You saw the competitors in action. You shared their exertions, their triumphs their personal tragedies. It seemed to me that the photography critics had missed the whole point of the Olympics, which is not a show staged for the benefit of the lens. The picture report is incidental and, I believe, adequate if it presents the events as they occurred.

In some of the CBC programs from Mexico I've had the unpleasant suspicion that too much concern is probably being shown by the Canadian television crew for the arty side of the thing. We get frescoes, girls' volley-ball, more girl's volley-ball and weight lifting. The girls look very attractive. The weight-lifters look like weight-lifters, with facial expressions not very dissimilar to mine when I raise the kitchen stove to slip the linoleum under it.

* * *

I would like to have seen Canadian treatment of Harry Jerome in the final of the 100 metres sprint. When the rowing events were staged, it was interesting enough to see the New Zealand eight winning, but something less than satisfactory to me to be told that Canada had a shell in the race that finished far back—out of contention. Possibly Canadian viewers would have appreciated a view of the boat to see how far back it was and to estimate what has to be done to bring our crews up to the standard Frank Read gave UBC.

Nor am I enormously impressed by the picture of a Canadian at a desk carrying a sign identified with the Olympics in Mexico City, reading off Canadian results as easily as a desk man in Vancouver or Victoria could have read the wire copy transmitted at little expense. He's an attractive young man, but I'd rather see Canadian athletes in action.

No doubt the kind of coverage some us hoped for will emerge as the Games progress. We have enough faith in people like Ted Reynolds to expect that. Or maybe we have the wrong idea about the whole thing. Maybe television coverage of the Games is more important from the point of camera technique than from the presentation of what we consider the gut matter—the actual contests, geared by CBC to suit the interest of Canadian viewers. Maybe the art of the picture is more significant than the striving of the athletes.

Of course the problem of TV coverage is complex. Events are staged in different locations. Cameramen cannot be everywhere at once. Transmission difficulties arise. But we take it that the CBC crew is composed of pros who recognize the difficulties involved and can anticipate them.

* * *

On other similar occasions of earlier date Canadians have frequently criticized American coverage. The argument has been that the U.S. cameramen and reporters were overweighting their production to highlight mediocre Americans while giving top-flight contenders from other countries less than they deserved. The reply to that argument was simple: American reporters were providing for Americans the reportage they wanted. Perhaps, without being entirely chauvinistic, we might look for some of that national emphasis from the Canadian television people. Sure, we want to see the winners and the champions. We also want to know what our athletes have been doing and to see it in pictures, not voiced as it might be relayed from the telegraph wire.

I think it can be done. When Andy Gillespie attended the Rome Olympics, he had a zoom camera which he focussed on Harry Jerome in the 100 metres sprint when Harry pulled off the track into the infield. The picture was right there. Andy is not a professional in that field. But he provided what a lot of us wanted to see.

If, in the fulness of time, CBC comes up with an award-winning film on the Mexico Olympics, full of technical excellence and art, so much the better. I'd settle though, for a good, clear paicture of Canadian effort shown as it happens, or immediately after, dovetailed into an overall picture of the Olympiad, with the champions and near champions also given adequate coverage. In a strictly personal assessment, I'd say the medium is not the message at this point.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto Ends Decline

After declining for five straight sessions the Toronto stock market posted a gain today.

Among the heaviest traders were Revenue Properties and Trizec.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Leigh Instruments gained 2 to 43¾, Dylex Diversified 1⅜ to 43⅜ and Levy 1⅜ to 31½. Maclean-Hunter fell 1⅛ to 14 and Imperial Oil 1¼ to 80.

Pine Point rose 2⅝ to 46¼, Preston 1 to 23¼ and Placer ½ to 32⅝.

Canadian Superior Oil dropped 1¼ to 60¾; Charter Oil 1 to 14⅝ and Canadian Gridoil ½ to 15.

Simpsons lost 4 to 37; Levy, 1⅜ to 30; Rothmans, 1 to 25, and Radio Engineering, ½ to 42½. Texaco added 1¼ to 32¾ on 225 shares.

North American Rare Metals picked up 8 cents to 73 cents on 234,000 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

AT LONDON the market continued its recovery on a modest scale today, but the threat of an engineering strike in Britain on Monday, tended to restrict business.

British funds were quietly firm. Equity leaders were mostly better.

Gains ranging to sixpence or so were recorded by ICI, Rank, Hudson's Bay, Courtaulds, Bowater, English Electric and GEC firmed slightly.

Golds were depressed with losses ranging to around 2s. Western Mining, up 6s 9d to 101s on its nickel exploration partnership with Sherritt Gordon Mines of Canada, led a widespread improvement in Australians.

Oils were firm.

Canadian stocks were mixed, although International Nickel gained nearly three points to 112½. Algoma, Alcan, Cominco and B-A Oil advanced about $1 each.

AT VANCOUVER prices of mining issues were mixed in heavy pre-noon trading today.

Dynasty was strong and rose .37 to $10.75 and Benson traded 109,500 shares to show a four-cent gain at .69. Buchanan was another active issue and was up .05 at .41 on 139,700 shares.

However, Arctic dipped .15 to $3, Northlode was down .25 to $3.80 and Magnet lost .08 to $1.77.

Bata traded 42,800 shares in the oils and put on .10 to $2.20, but in the industrials, Neon fell $1 to $33.50, EDP lost .50 to $23, Block Bros. was .50 stronger at $19.

Sweepstake Winner Hit by Tax Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) —In a case that took four years to advance to an Exchequer Court decision, a sweepstake winner recently was ordered to pay $11,000 gift tax on his $150,000 windfall.

It was a rare instance of effectiveness for the gift tax, which the Carter royal commission on taxation has described as "almost useless."

Even in this case, as the tax reporting authority CCH Canadian Ltd. advised this month, the individual could have beaten the tax by drafting a simple document when he put the $150,00 in the bank.

His mistake was to deposit the money in a joint account, without proving that half of it was not intended for his wife.

Lacking evidence to the contrary, the Exchequer Court deemed half the deposit to be a gift and assessed the $11,000 tax against the husband as donor.

The couple said they understood the husband would be the only one to withdraw any money unless he was unable to do so, but the understanding did not hold up in court.

A written statement to this effect, or separate accounts, would have saved the day, said CCH Canadian Ltd.

EASY TO AVOID

The Carter commission report said existing gift and estate taxes are an anachronism. They can easily be avoided through the use of personal corporations, trust and exemptions.

Carter proposed bringing all gifts into a comprehensive tax base and taxing them at full progressive rates like all other additions to income.

Exemptions based on Carter's definition of the family unit and other annual and lifetime exemptions would mean that most people would never pay tax on any gifts or bequests.

But large gifts by wealthy people would be captured in the process and total revenues would more than double to $350,000,000 a year on the basis of 1962 figures.

Automation Helps Pair Build Ranch

PENTICTON (CP) — Two brothers from the United States who compare running a cattle ranch to the automotive industry, have invested more than $250,000 to prove their theories.

"Cars improve every year and so must a rancher's cattle," says 33-year-old Joe Rodgers. "You can't afford to stand pat without improvements to the models, which a rancher must achieve by better breeding."

Joe and brother Barry, 31, own and operate the 80-square-mile Shingle Creek ranch west of this Okanagan Valley city.

With machinery and two hired men, they have begun building an integrated, automated property out of their 51,000 acres, accomplishing in six years what would have taken an army of farm workers to achieve half a century ago.

Their goal, by 1973, is 700 commercial Herefords and a 300-head purebred herd. They now have a 500-head commercial herd and 150 purebreds—developed from 300 head on the ranch when they bought it.

They have put in 14 miles of fence, increased hay production to 1,000 tons a year from 180 tons, cleared land, put in irrigation, built new buildings—including two homes for themselves—dammed creeks, introduced pheasants and grouse, and created a small lake stocked with thousands of trout.

CUSTOMS STRANGE

"I suppose I never realized what I was getting into," said Linda. "When we first came here all there was was an old log cabin. I had never worked over a wood-burning stove and the men we hired wouldn't eat the meat I cooked."

She soon discovered that Canadian cowboys don't like rare beef. The reverse is true in the U.S.

When increasing the size and quality of their herds over the next few years, the brothers also will automate their feeding operation.

Four big silos are planned, and the ranch soon will start buying grain from the Peace River area and do its own milling and processing.

In the six years the brothers have owned the ranch, last summer was the first time Joe had found time to take a holiday.

"I admit that we have over $250,000 tied up in the ranch and to most this probably looks like we are rich," he said. "Most people have a holiday every year, and I wonder how many realize the work that goes into establishing a ranch and then running it. We've just been too busy."

Avon Calling

Third quarter net income for Avon Products amounted to $15.7 million or 54 cents a share compared with $13.37 million or 47 cents a year ago. The company said sales were $139.16 million against $111.36 million.

Chairman Wayne Hicklin said sales and earnings are expected to produce a new record by the end of the year. Nine-month figures were $37.84 million ($1.31) vs. $35.66 million ($1.24) on sales of $354.24 million ($301 million).

HB Mining Merger

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. and Sylvite of Canada Ltd. have agreed to merge for a share transfer. They are involved in Saskatchewan potash mining.

Subject to shareholder approval, HB Mining would increase its capital and buy for 168,138 shares the assets of Sylvite, which would wind up and distribute the shares to current shareholders.

Reichold Chemical

Third quarter net income reported by Reichold Chemical Inc. amounted to $4.489 million or 81 cents a share, vs. $3.674 million (66 cents) last year at the same time.

Sales increased from $105.19 million to $115.17 million.

Bramalea-Steinbergs

Three new shopping centres on Niagara Peninsula are planned jointly by Bramalea Consolidated Development Ltd. and Steinbergs Ltd.

One will be in Hamilton, to cost between $45 and $50 million, and will be started by February.

The others are not detailed, but will be of similar size, including Steinberg Miracle Markets.

Bank of Montreal

An extra three-cent dividend will be paid by the Bank of Montreal Dec. 2 in addition to a quarterly payment of 15 cents, up a cent from the usual dividend.

The payout will bring dividends this year to 58 cents per share, compared with 52 cents at this time last year.

Burroughs Corp.

Burroughs Corp. per share net income rose by 18 cents during the third quarter, ended Sept. 30.

The company reported $7.65 million (93 cents) against $6.11 million (75 cents) last year, based on revenue of $150.88 million compared with $131.96 million.

In the year to this month, net income was $23.4 million ($2.85), which compares with $19.18 million ($2.35) in 1967.

Boise Co. Seagoing

A Los Angeles-based ocean cruise company planning to make Victoria a port of call has been bought by the Pacific northwest corporation, Boise Cascade Co.

Princess Cruises Inc., operating the luxury ship Mv Princess Italia and about to take delivery of Mv Princess Carla, will make several calls here next season as part of its Alaska summer cruise service.

Boise Cascade, primarily a forest industry firm, has been diversifying into construction, packaging, office supply and recreational activities.

Stanley B. McDonald, of Seattle, who visited Victoria two weeks ago to select a docking facility, will remain as president of the cruise line, operating it as a direct subsidiary of Boise Cascade.

A marketing-oriented company sensitive to consumer preferences and trends, Boise Cascade has been increasingly aware of the growing demand for recreational environments. The firm has been developing lands for leisure living and vacation homes constructed around golf courses and man-made lakes for boating and water sports.

The purchase of Princess Cruises, for an undisclosed amount of Boise Cascade common stock, brings to Boise Cascade operations the major West Coast cruise service to such Mexican ports as Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta, Manzanillo and Mazatlan.

Lindley Heads Campbell Soup

TORONTO (CP)—The Campbell Soup Co. Ltd. today announced the election of John M. Lindley as president of the company.

Mr. Lindley was elected vice-president and general manager and a director in 1965.

Two More Named In Bankruptcy

MONTREAL (CP) — A bankruptcy petition filed against two companies involved financially with the bankrupt Corporation Fonciere de Montreal will be heard Oct. 24 in Quebec Superior Court.

The petition was filed Tuesday by R. Victor Barnett, a Montreal chartered accountant named by the court as trustee in the bankruptcy of the Montreal finance company.

Named in the petition was Bienvenu International Corp., which held the controlling interest in Corporation Fonciere, and Corporation Fonciere Metropolitaine, a subsidiary of the bankrupt firm.

Michael Denis, lawyer for the trustee, said the petition was filed because Bienvenu International owed Corporation Fonciere about $612,000 and the other company owed the bankrupt firm about $430,000.

The action followed the granting Sept. 24 of an injunction declaring Corporation Fonciere bankrupt following its failure to meet commitments to its creditors.

The petition against Corporation Fonciere, one of the major companies in the financial holdings of Marc Bienvenu, was taken by the Royal Trust Co., trustee for a number of noteholders, after payment of $2.63 million fell in default.

Mr. Bienvenu, who gained control of the Bank of Western Canada, now under liquidation, and a number of other companies last year, resigned as president of the Corporation Fonciere about a year ago but retained financial interest.

The corporation began running into financial problems about the same time that Westbank was experiencing difficulties.

TO HOLD MEETING

Meanwhile, a meeting of the noteholders represented by Royal Trust will be held Friday to review the financial situation of the corporation—which had assets of about $9 million in 1967—and to be filled in on the action that had been taken.

A meeting of all the creditors of the corporation will be held Oct. 23 so that they can let the official receiver know of amounts owed to them and be advised of measures now under way to collect and repay the debts.

Before being appointed trustee, Mr. Barnett, partner in the firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Co., served as interim receiver when Corporation Fonciere was placed under interim receivership.

Maynard's Bids On Specialties

Victoria's best-known auction house is closing its downtown premises to engage in more specialized auctioneering.

Maynard's Auctioneers (Victoria) Ltd. will hold its last public weekly furniture auction Thursday at 733 Johnson and close the office there next Wednesday.

A spokesman for the firm said the downtown site had been leased for a retail furniture store and probably would undergo extensive renovations in keeping with nearby urban renewal projects.

Maynard's will continue to undertake auctions for specific clients and estates, dealing in such accounts as large marine, automotive, estate and liquidation disposals, renting suitable premises as the need arises.

Recognize Cost of Service

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, CA

(This is a service provided by The Times and the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.)

Adequate service to customers is essential for the success of any business. But excess service does incur additional costs which can seriously reduce profits and may even cause financial failure if those costs are not recognized and controlled.

Small orders may appear to be better than no orders at all but they are rarely profitable. Even a small restaurant cannot afford to serve "coffee only" during its lunch hour rush because it is obviously unprofitable to have a table occupied for a 15 cent sale when it might have earned several dollars. There are many business managers who could learn from their neighborhood coffee shop operator. A special minimum charge may annoy some minimum order customers but it should help to make more service available for customers who want to purchase in more economic quantities.

The same principle applies in many areas of business. Too much diversification to provide too many product lines or service and too large a range of customers has been the underlying cause of failure for many large businesses.

The solution is to know the cause of costs. It is not enough to see the aggregate amount of merchandise purchases or total wages once a year, or even once a month. To completely control a business it is essential to know the breakdown of all significant costs and to relate the detail of those costs to the cause or function which incurred them and, most importantly, to relate them to sales and profit.

For many small businesses this may require more detailed accounting than it is practical or economical to provide. Then it is usually possible for the boss to work out reasonably accurate answers from his general knowledge of his business; but he must think about the problem very carefully and not just assume that he knows all the answers because it has always been so.

Even spot testing for the causes of costs is better than blind acceptance. It is a relatively easy problem to tabulate the direct costs of buying and selling a particular item of merchandise and to add the portion of overhead incurred by that item. Then a simple comparison with the related revenue will show if it is profitable.

Riskiest Smokes Classified by FTC

By VICTOR COHN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—A major cigarette brand—Carlton King Size Filters—is among the two lowest makes in tar and one of the lowest in nicotine in the first U.S. government tar and nicotine ranking of almost all cigarettes.

The rating was made by the Federal Trade Commission and released Tuesday by the senate commerce committee. The first such ranking was made by the FTC in November, 1967, after tests in a new laboratory created at the urging of Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D—Wash.), committee chairman.

There had been time then to rank only 59 brands. That list was led by brands with a small share of the market.

●

Carltons, made by the American Tobacco Co., are a major seller. "It is significant" that at least one major company is trying now for a less dangerou cigarette, a senate commerce committee staff member observed.

Just the same, another American Tobacco brand—Pall Mall king-size non-filters—is among the highest in both tar and nicotine.

Pall Mall filters do seem to show the effect of all the publicity linking cigarette smoking and disease. They have dropped since 1967 from a high 27.1 tar rating (in milligrams per cigarette) to a moderate 19.

Carltons and Marvels (regular filters) are lowest in tar in the new listings, with a 4 milligrain per cigarette. Marvels are also lowest in nicotine.

Highest in both tar and nicotine are English Ovals, king-size non-filters, with 36 milligrams of tar and 2.3 milligrams of nicotine.

Experts on smoking and health point out that low tar and nicotine levels to not make a cigarette "safe", only less risky. Also tar and nicotine may not be the only chemicals that make cigarette smoking dangerous—the role of several others is still being studied.

Just the same the government's national clearing house for smoking and health recommends five steps to cut down on intake of harmful smoke, "if you must smoke" at all:

- Choose a cigarette with less tar and nicotine.
- Don't smoke cigarettes all the way down—tar and nicotine increase in later puffs.
- Take fewer draws on each cigarette.
- Inhale less—it is the smoke that enters the lungs that does most of the harm.
- Smoke fewer cigarettes per day.

Another recent study shows that filter smokers have "somewhat" less risk of disease than non-filter smokers. How much less i uncertain. It may be only 60 per cent as much, but the scientists who did the study were unsure.

Potash Mine Opened

LANIGAN, Sask, (CP) — Premier Thatcher said Tuesday at the opening of the province's sixth potash mine that Canada needs more foreign investment and European capital is particularly welcome in Saskatchewan. The mine at this community 75 miles southeast of Saskatoon has an investment of $50 million.

Sherritt Gordon Enters Agreement

TORONTO (CP) — Sherritt Gordon Mines Ltd. says it has entered into an agreement with WesternMining Corp. Ltd. of Australia to explore the potential of some nickel laterite deposits in Western Australia.

Sherritt will have 49 per cent of the venture and will contibute the first $250,000 in Australian funds. Other funds will be provided on a 49-51 per cent basis.

Reader's Digest Earnings Report

MONTREAL (CP) — The Readers's Digest Association Canada Ltd. says in its annual report that net earnings for the six-month period ended June 30 were $274,474, or 30 cents a share.

The company changed its fiscal year to run from July 1 to June 30 and therefore could not give comparable net earning figures for the corresponding period last year.

The company, whose fiscal year previously ended Dec. 31, reported net earnings for 1967 at $886,966, or 74 cents a share.

TSE Suspends Two Pending Fulfilment

TORONTO (CP) Trading in shares of two small Toronto-based mining companies—New Hosco Mines and White Star Copper Mines—was suspended by the Toronto Stock Exchange Tuesday for failure to comply with TSE requirements.

An exchange official said White Star will be suspended until it holds an annual shareholders meeting. Shareholders last met in June, 1967, and listed companies are required to meet once a year.

The stock was trading unchanged at 29 cents when dealing was halted at 1 p.m.

The New Hosco suspension will continue until the company files an acceptable statement of the latest changes in its affairs with the TSE. The stock was up seven cents to $1.58 when it was halted.

At New Hosco's annual meeting Tuesday, a minority group of shareholders unsuccessfully attempted to adjourn the meeting until details of the company's latest plans were released.

Phones Go Electronic

By JANE BECKER

TORONTO (CP) — Telephone companies may be on the verge of starting a major overhaul of their operations because of something called the electronic switching system.

Essentially a huge computer, it could be the replacement of the present electro-mechanical systems of central telephone exchanges.

Electronic control, industry officials say, makes dialling simpler, quicker and more accurate.

It could make it possible for many more lines to be switched to one number and allow businesses to use extra lines for data transmission.

Electronic systems can also be programmed to trace nuisance calls automatically, connect frequently-called numbers by dialling only two or three digits, and transfer calls automatically to another number from the one dialled.

The systems could eventually be set to perform such services as switching on ovens or lights by telephone.

From a business viewpoint, electronic switching takes only about half as much space as the present systems and requires far less maintenance.

Bell Canada Ltd. installed Canada's first such system at Expo 67. It now is being changed to a regular business exchange in Montreal.

The company plans four electronic switching systems in Toronto during the next few years. Gradually, Bell officials say, electronic switching will be expanded through Ontario and Quebec.

Another company, Automatic Electric Canada Ltd. of Brockville also is in the electronic switching business. A subsidiary of General Telephone and Electronics Corp. of New York, Automatic plans to make electronic systems for small communities with exchanges handling 2,400 lines or less.

SYSTEM TESTED

Automatic has been testing its first system in Whonock, B.C., about 30 miles east of Vancouver, a community with 600 lines, since February.

The company recently reported field tests were successful. It hopes to take orders for its system next year and install its first one in 1970.

The company believes there is a rich market for small electronic systems in Canada's 2,200 indpeeindent telephone companies.

A National Research Council grant was a key factor in Automatic's decision to manufacture the systems in Canada, company officials say.

"We've proved the equipment is practical," says Pat Gleason, Automatic's consumer products manager. "Now our job is to sell it."

Automatic will give no cost details, but Bell says its first Toronto system will cost almost $13 million. Total estimated cost of the four planned Toronto systems is more than $35 million.

Space Experts Meet in Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — A team of six Canadian space scientists arrived here Monday for three days of discussions with French space experts and visits to French manufacturers of space equipment.

The team, led by Dr. J. R. Whitehead, first scientific adviser to the Canadian Privy Council, will discuss possibilities of co-operation in space within the framework of Canada's program to launch a telecommunications satellite by early 1972.

Last July a Canadian scientific mission visited the Paris headquarters of the European Launcher Development Organization to discuss the question of a launcher for their satellite.

Beautiful Italian styling
Careful Japanese workmanship
Extensive testing in Canada

For just $2320, the new 1969 Mazda 1500 Sedan gives you many of the finest things the automotive world has to offer.

Beautiful things like styling by one of Italy's leading car stylists, Bertone.

Sensible things like lots of glass. And lots of room. Things like round, readable instruments, set in a warm woodgrain dash.

Mazda gives you practical things like a gutsy 1500 cc overhead cam engine. And a beautifully smooth four speed transmission.

You get things in a Mazda you wouldn't normally expect in a $2320 car. Like reclining seats as standard equipment.

But for all the good things Mazda offers, perhaps the best is the fact that it is very much a Canadian car. By that we mean it was extensively tested in prototype form for conditions in this country. What we learned shows up in things like the heating and ventilating system. And the suspension.

And it costs just $2320. That's all.

PRICE HIKE SLOWS AS PRODUCTION UP

OTTAWA (CP) — The strong rise in prices in the last two years now has moderated, and there have been productivity gains in manufacturing industry, says the pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons today by Finance Minister Benson.

The white paper studies price changes from the point of view of the whole economy, rather than the consumer retail prices surveyed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics every month.

On the basis of the price factor involved in the national income and expenditure accounts, the white paper says prices rose by 3.9 per cent last year, compared with 4.5 per cent in 1966.

In the first half of 1968, the price rise was 3.3 per cent from the first half of 1967.

"The forces principally bearing upon price changes in 1967 were a continued but much more moderate upward movement of food prices, a rise in the price of services as higher wage and other costs worked through the service sectors, a rapidly developing shortage of serviced land and of housing, and higher indirect taxes at both the federal and provincial levels," the economic review said.

TAXES A FACTOR

It added that during the last two years, increases in indirect taxes, including retail sales taxes levied by provincial governments, accounted for about one-fifth of the increase in prices of goods and services measured by the DBS consumer price index.

The DBS consumer price index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, stood at 156.4 last month, up 3.8 per cent from September last year.

Acknowledging that government figures on the productivity of workers are far from adequate, the white paper said there have been signs of renewed growth after a period of little change.

Output per employee in manufacturing during the second quarter of 1968 was estimated at 1.9 per cent more than in the first quarter, and about 4.5 per cent more than in the second quarter of 1967.

Productivity gains in durable goods manufacturing, and in construction have been healthier in the second quarter of this year — 4.3 and 3.9 per cent respectively.

CANADA DEBT $16.7 BILLION

OTTAWA (CP) — The net national debt rose by $792,400,000 last year to $16,757,400,000—or $809 for each of the 20,700,000 people in the country at March 31, 1968.

The net debt a year previous was $15,964,900,000 or $785 per capita.

The pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons today by Finance Minister Benson shows the net debt as the difference between the gross public debt and the government's net recorded assets.

The gross public debt March 31, 1968, end of the last fiscal year, was $32,926,300,000. This consisted of $20,579,900,000 in outstanding bonds and treasury bills and $12,346,400,000 in other liabilities—mainly the government's liability for annuity, insurance and pension accounts.

The net recorded assets of the government at the end of the 1967-68 fiscal year were $16,168,900,000, up $1,794,000,000 for the year. This is largely the government's investment in Crown corporations and agencies.

Shot Costs $600

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Larry Wilfred Durelle, 48, was fined $600 in county court for discharging a rifle in the downtown area. Durelle, who claimed he fired the gun to frighten a man outside a cafe, was cleared of three charges, including attempted murder, but was convicted of endangering the public peace.

Dollars Flow To U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — A "pronounced and prolonged parting of the ways" of the Canadian and U.S. economies occurred in 1967, says the pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons today by Finance Minister Benson.

Federal economists came to this conclusion after analysing a puzzling loss of short-term funds from Canada during the year.

They now believe that corporate investments in expansion, which normally run about parallel in the two countries, changed course first in Canada and began to decline.

U.S. parent corporations stopped their normally continuous supply of working capital to Canadian subsidiaries, and reversed their advances.

More than $300,000,000 appears to have been returned to the U.S. in the first quarter of 1967, making up most of a flow of $500,000,000 that confounded analysts when it first appeared.

The same factors were at work in the flow of direct investment funds, although the total supply of long-term funds to Canada remained high for a number of special reasons.

The review recorded the curious item almost as a footnote against the serious account of international monetary developments in 1967 and early 1968.

REFLECT CONCERN

An underlying concern about future growth of international reserves to finance world trade was reflected in major developments: Devaluation of the pound sterling, high interest rates, U.S. capital restraints, a run on gold and creation of a two-tier gold system.

Canada endured a brief currency crisis of its own in between January and mid-March, due almost entirely to these external factors although the budget papers say "pessimism about Canada's competitive position in international markets" contributed.

Three developments are credited with removing a sense of crisis in financial markets:

—International co-operation, including an agreement on the new supplemental reserve asset in the International Monetary Fund known as special drawing rights.

—Beginning of talks on peace in Vietnam.

Despite the crisis and tight monetary policy that went with it, more funds have been raised by borrowers in Canadian financial markets during the 12 months to mid-1968 than in the previous year.

"Mortgage approvals, the trend in bank loans and the new climate of cautious convalescence in bond markets indicate that through 1968 the rate of total loanable funds disbursed is being maintained at a high level."

Jobs Not Keeping Pace With Population Boom

OTTAWA (CP) — A labor picture as bright as a five-per-cent unemployment rate will allow was drawn by Finance Minister Benson today in his pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons.

Output has increased and employment has continued to grow, but not as quickly as the labor force, says the review.

Most recently, thousands of young people leaving school have been seeking work.

The white paper says enlarged technical and vocational training facilities for students, as well as retraining and mobility programs for older workers, will contribute to the efficiency of the labor force in 1969.

Canada might be past its most rapid period of acceleration in labor-force growth, but next year it would continue to have one of the highest growth rates among industrial countries.

RATE CLIMBS HIGHER

Canada's unemployment rate rose from an average of 3.6 per cent in 1966 to 4.1 per cent in 1967 and 4.8 per cent in the first half of 1968. At mid-year it was about five per cent.

Employment increased by 227,000 in 1967 and a further 117,000 in the first eight months of 1968, or by 344,000 in the 20-month period. Over the same 20 months, however, the labor force grew by 468,000, adding 124,000 persons to unemployment rolls.

With the return to slack in the labor market, 1967 marked the first actual increase in agricultural workers since 1954.

Another characteristic of 1967, with its centennial activities and Expo 67, was the opportunity provided for women to work. Their numbers increased by almost six per cent, and most entered service industries.

Liquor, Tobacco Figures Surprising

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1967 pre-budget white paper indicated an unprecedented increase in the fiscal year ended March 31 last year in excise duty revenue from spirits and beer. It showed just as spectacular a decline in the take from tobacco products.

It all turned out to be a sort of bookkeeping mirage. Final figures for that year came out in this year's pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons today. Comparison with the preliminary set issued 18½ months ago indicates that maybe $75,000,000 to $80,000,000 in tobacco revenue got credited to alcohol in error.

At the time, excise experts were baffled and unbelieving as they contemplated the figures: $112,200,000 in excise duties on tobacco, down $75,000,000 from the previous year; $360,400,000 in excise on alcohol, up $91,300,000.

USUALLY ARE ACCURATE

In the annual white paper, figures for the last fiscal year are preliminary and incomplete but they rarely turn out a year later to have been so wide of the mark.

The tobacco take, from both excise taxes and excise duties, in the fiscal year ended last March 31 totalled $463,300,000 against $447,800,000 the previous year. Some part of the increase may be due to a 10-per-cent tax boost on tobacco last Dec. 1.

Excise duties on spirits and beer plus excise taxes on wine amounted to $306,000,000 compared with $276,300,000.

The excise taxes on wine showed their biggest increase in years, to $5,300,000 from $4,800,000. It is a minor source of revenue compared with spirits, up to $180,500,000 from $158,200,000, and beer, up to $120,200,000 from $113,300,000.

Minorities Written Off

OTTAWA (CP) — Rene Levesque Tuesday night wrote off French-language minorities outside Quebec and New Brunswick as cultural "dead ducks."

Mr. Levesque said the minorities had appeared in other provinces as "cheap labor" imported to places like Maillardville, B.C., by priests.

They had only survived through close-knit parish groups now dissolving as a result of the mobility of the Canadian labor force.

Mr. Levesque, 46, president of the new Parti Quebecois, formed during the weekend to make Quebec an independent state, was being interviewed on the CBC television network program Twenty Million Questions.

He said "anyone who is educated" in the groups outside Quebec and New Brunswick had told him they couldn't be French-speaking and survive. They had asked for a Quebec "immigration policy" that would draw them to the province.

The new party is made up of a merger between Mr. Levesque's Mouvement souveraineté-association and Gilles Gregoire's Ralliement nationale.

The former Liberal said he is dubious about "rushing into by-elections" but he feels the party has a "serious chance" to win power in the next Quebec general election.

Senate May Probe Complaints

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator David Croll said Tuesday that public servants often are in the position "to make the law, apply it and give final judgment with respect to the rights of individuals and groups affected by law."

He made the statement in moving a resolution in the Senate for the establishment of a special Senate committee.

It would investigate, rectify where possible and report on grievances of Canadian citizens "allegedly arising out of maladministration, error or carelessness on the part of any department, agency or servant of the federal government below ministerial level."

The Toronto Liberal senator said the need for some type of ombudsman to investigate grievances of ordinary citizens already has been recognized in some countries as well as in some Canadian provinces.

He also noted that a Commons committee in 1965 had recommended that the government consider establishing the office of ombudsman. As yet, however, no action had been taken.

LOOKS TO FUTURE

"I shall assume that the major battle has been won and that there now is general agreement to the effect that there exists a real and present need for an institution in the nature of an ombudsman at the federal level in this country, that existing remedies and procedures at law are inadequate fully to protect the average citizen in his contacts with officialdom."

Senator Croll said individual MPs cannot spend all their time acting as ombudsmen for their constituents "without being derelict in their other parliamentary duties."

With divorce now out of Senate hands and senators almost pleading for more useful work to do, the upper chamber was an ideal place to establish a committee at least until the appointment of an ombudsman by Parliament.

If the Senate approved his motion, the committee could be set up for one year only as an experiment.

If it proved successful, and Parliament took no action in the meantime, a permanent committee could be established later.

N-Data Exchange Continues

PARIS (Reuters) — Canada and France have agreed on a five-year exchange of data on heavy water nuclear reactors, it was announced Tuesday.

The agreement is between Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (EACL), a crown company, and the French Atomic Energy Commission.

It will extend Franco-Canadian co-operation, started during the Second World War, in the fields of research, development and information on reactors of moderate power.

It will include information of a commercial nature already discovered or which will be developed during the next five years and will extend to the development of reactors.

Under the agreement, the French commission will pay an undisclosed sum to Canada, representing the difference in value of the initial technological exchange.

Although the two organizations have maintained strong links since the war, their technical co-operation has been limited up to now while France concentrated on developing powerful gas-cooled reactors.

'Strep' Throat Heads Report

There were 21 cases of streptococcal sore throat in September on southern Vancouver Island, it was reported Tuesday.

All the cases were in the Greater Victoria School District, reported the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

In its monthly report on communicable diseases, the board also reported seven cases of infectious hepatitis, five of chicken pox and four of mumps.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, OCT. 16, 1968—PAGE 13

Arthur Mayse

Today, a letter from England with a return address that might have marched straight out of a novel by Charles Dickens. "The Dial House, 5 Ipswich Road, Norwich, Norfolk."

In The Dial House lives an expatriat Victorian, Catherine Jacobson, who sends a fond "Hello" to a city that will one day receive her again. She also encloses an early-October clipping from London's Daily Express.

"Canadians are proud folk, and rightly," the items commences. "So they will be intrigued to learn that their country has been scheduled by President de Gaulle as 'under-developed'."

"Politically, from the French point of view, it is.

"Which is why French scientist Alain Boselli, 26, will be whisked away to lecture there soon after his London wedding next April to pretty Sandra Shaw-Lawrence, 23."

"Alain, son of Count Bernard Boselli, member of one of France's oldest families, has to do National Service. He escapes the duck-green uniform of the French Army because of his special job.

"'Alain's pretty sure we will be spending our early married life in Canada—though it could be Tunisia, as that's also on the under-developed list,' said Sandra ..."

Intriguing indeed, and as one of those politically under-developed Canadians, I trust that our loss will become Tunisia's gain. We have enough de Gaulle developers meddling in Canada's domestic affairs without adding to the number.

Did you know that the familiar arbutus tree is a giant member of the heather family? I didn't, until a neat little book titled 'A Net of Naturalists' landed on my desk.

Publisher is Victoria Natural History Society, and the work of compiling and editing the book's 40 illustrated pages was undertaken by Ruth Chambers.

Most of the telescoped essays on various naturalists and the flora and fauna to which their names are attached were written by Natural History Society members.

Contained in Mrs. Chambers' 'Net' is Thomas Nuttal, an English naturalist so fervent and single-minded that capture by Indians and a close call with death from thirst on a later expedition could not deter him from his wilderness rovings. The Pacific dogwood (Cornus nuttalli) was named in his honor.

You will also find Archibald Menzies, who first classified our familiar arbutus, in 1792.

The book's a pleasant pocket companion. You'll find it on sale at the Provincial Museum and Francis Park nature-house at $1.35 plus tax.

By way of tying off a loose end, I am glad to report that John Thomas is back at University of Victoria as a second-year student.

Mr. Thomas, whose predicament I aired here on August 30, failed his freshman year twice in the early 60's ... a circumstance not to be wondered at, since he was supporting himself as a longshoreman at the same time.

You may also remember that he returned two years later with a woods-earned stake, but by failing to identify himself as a student already on the registration lists, landed on the wrong side of university rules.

Although his status became known to the Uvic administration last February, he was permitted to complete his year, which he did with first class honors. He was, however, barred from returning until 1969: standard procedure for cases of this sort.

In early September, the university senate considered his appeal, and upheld it. Result: a return to the campus on probation, to shoot for a Bachelor of Science degree in physics. Fair enough—and John Thomas, who hopes to become a teacher, may make it yet!

AIRBORNE DUMMY HAWK SCARES OFF FREE-LOADERS

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The B.C. department of agriculture believes it has finally found a way to stop birds from damaging farm crops.

The new weapon is a helium-filled balloon. Attached 30 feet below is a dummy hawk.

Tests were carried out last week on the nursery farm of Geoff Vantreight, Tyndall Avenue, where crows picked iris from their flats as fast as they were planted.

"It was so effective that not a bird was seen for miles around," said Mr. Vantreight.

* * *

Mr. Vantreight lost 20,000 iris bulbs to crows who picked them from their beds thinking they were walnuts. It represented a loss of $900.

"They drop them on the road," said Mr. Vantreight, "and leave them there when they see they don't break open."

Alan Littler, B.C. district horticulturist, brought the rig from England to test it against birds which attacked cherry crops.

The balloon is made of neoprene, a plastic material less porous than rubber. It takes about 11 cubic feet of gas and expands to about four or five feet.

The outfit costs $9—a good investment for farmers who suffer heavy damage to their fruit crops from birds.

Pay-to-Learn Agreement For Ferrymen

The provincial highways department and representatives of its 1,387 ferry employees signed an agreement today initiating a pay-to-learn clause.

The agreement, covering all aspects of working conditions except wages, concluded negotiations which began after last February's two-week strike by officers and unlicensed personnel.

It also provides for up to four months leave with pay for any employees undertaking "sustained study" in recognized courses to further their education or improve their working skill.

The agreement also includes an undertaking by the employees not to strike or engage in work stoppages—but these will be outlawed in any event when the B.C. Mediation Act is proclaimed in December.

CHECKOFF

On its side, management agreed to a union dues checkoff - but this was given to the general civil service union last year by the the cabinet.

Also covered by the agreement are minor regulations concerning promotions, demotions, seniority, overtime and leave.

Juveniles Charged In Rash of Thefts

At least 10 juveniles were charged in family and children's court today following police investigation of a rash of break-ins in stores and residences over the weekend.

Fours persons were arrested by Saanich police Tuesday night and city police apprehended three young persons while investigating a break-in at Moore Whittington Lumber Co., 2614 Bridge, late Monday afternoon.

Nothing was reported stolen from the lumber company Monday and the arrests were made the next day. Police said goods had apparently been left behind in the building following the first break-in.

Another juvenile, age 13, was arrested following a break-in at 1346 Thurlow at the weekend. Police said a radio, valued at $95 was reported stolen. Entry was gained to the house through a window police said.

Test of Tow-Away Right Considered by Aldermen

Ald. Hugh Ramsay wants Victoria city council to check on the tow-away rights of private parking lot operators.

He told the traffic committee Tuesday that he was extremely unhappy with the arbitrary decisions of some private parking lot operators to tow cars away at a cost of $8 to the owners.

"A few nights ago I came out of the Royal Theatre quite late at night to be confronted by a bewildered elderly couple whose car had disappeared," he said.

PRIVATE LAND

"They had inadvertently parked on the commercial lot at the rear and, while it may be true that they hadn't paid the 25 cents required, were now faced with what to them was a tragedy. Their car had gone and they had no idea where it had gone or what they had to do to reclaim it."

Ald. Ramsay was told by traffic engineer Dave Campbell that as parking lots were private property the owners had every right to tow vehicles away.

"You are using their property as a privilege," he said. "They can do what they want."

Ald. Ramsay asked if Mr. Campbell was giving a theoretical answer or an answer based on law.

"As far as I know the right has never been tested," answered Mr. Campbell.

"Maybe somebody should test it," said Ald. Ramsay. "We might have a whole new ball game."

LIKE A STORE

Mayor Hugh Stephen said he didn't feel it within the power of council to control how a private parking lot operator ran his lot.

"It's like a store," he said. "We can't control the way an individual runs his store."

Ald. Ramsay wasn't satisfied.

"Theoretically they may have the right," he said. "But I think they behave in a pretty high-handed and arbitrary way at times. And what is more I do not think there is any necessity for their actions.

"I'm not suggesting that people should be allowed to get way with violations. But I'm sure there's a better way than just the arbitrary towing away of a vehicle at a cost of eight dollars."

Ald Ramsay added that a check of some of the commercial lots in the city would reveal rate signs which are "confusing even to alert people, let alone the elderly."

The city engineer and the city solicitor will examine the situation and report to the committee at a later date.

Court Martial Leaves To Bring in Verdict

Judge Advocate Explains Charges

By JOHN SLINGER

A court martial hearing three charges of negligence against the captain of HMCS Saskatchewan retired today to consider its verdict.

The charges were laid against Commander Norman S. Jackson after his destroyer-escort ran aground September 8 in the foggy entrance to Active Pass. He pleaded not guilty. Testimony of 23 witnesses covered five days.

Before retiring, the court which acts as judge and jury heard a 70-minute direction from the judge advocate, Commander H. C. Ferne of Ottawa. The judge advocate does not sit with the court while it deliberates.

When the ship struck the rock on a return voyage to Esquimalt from Vancouver it sustained damages requiring $15,000 temporary repairs. Extensive repairs will be made when it goes into drydock early next year.

Under sections of the National Defence Act, it is charged that Commander Jackson "negligently hazarded" the ship, "negligently suffered" the ship to be hazarded and "negligently performed a military duty imposed on him" as captain.

Throughout the judge advocate's statement, Commander Jackson, a ruddy-faced 42-year-old, sat expressionless. He looked a little weary of the ordeal since he surrendered his sword to the court six days ago.

There was no indication when a verdict would be reached. There is provision for appeal to a justice of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

'Not One of Perfection'

In directing the court, Commander Ferne explained the principles of law involved in the case and the major points made by the defence. He emphasized to the court, headed by Captain Frederick C. Frewer, that the standard required of officers under Queen's Regulations "is not one of perfection."

He said the alleged negligence "must go beyond an error in judgment," and must include a lack of zeal a measure of indifference or an intentional failure to take proper precautions.

The central defence argument, as stated by the judge advocate, was that the prosecution failed to prove instances of negligence "beyond reasonable doubt."

In summing up the defence case, Commander J. L. Henderson said Tuesday Commander Jackson, as captain of the ship, had been "powerless" to avert the collision.

He said the incident resulted from "sheer coincidence."

"I submit strongly" the information Cmdr. Jackson received "was misleading" and he "was not getting information he should have been getting."

The ship was organized so that reports from one unit were checked by another unit.

"It is sheer coincidence" that at the time of collision, "all checks failed—there was a false report from the operations room and it was confirmed by the navigating officer."

The prosecutor, Major D. W. Ward agreed with defence testimony that Cmdr. Jackson "did all he could" in the last moments before the ship struck ground.

'Hadn't Done Anything Earlier'

"But the reason he had to do anything was that he hadn't done anything earlier" to prepare for the passage from Vancouver to Esquimalt.

He refuted the defence argument that Cmdr. Jackson had not committed the ship to going through Active Pass when it ran aground.

Cmdr. Jackson had testified that when he was "weighing the decision" to turn back from the foggy passage he did not know the ship was off course and in danger.

"I submit," said the prosecutor, "that if the ship had been dead on course it would have been too late" to have made a safe turnaround in the confined waters of the pass.

"It would, in fact, have been a very dangerous manoeuvre."

The prosecution suggested that the accident was largely the "result of deficiencies on the part" of the ship's navigating officer.

The deficiencies arose from a lack of qualifications and experience.

The defence replied that the court must assume the ship's officers were competent, "because they were posted to the ship;" and there was "no evidence of inexperience."

Cmdr. Henderson argued that there was no regulation calling for preparation of a "blind passage" plan for Active Pass.

Saskatchewan's plan was to go through the Pass using visual support and, for clear weather conditions, "the plan wasn't a bad one."

Plan Would Have Worked

He said the plan for going through the Pass would have worked had the ship's junior officers carried out their tasks properly.

He asked the court to remember naval regulations attempted, by giving certain responsibilities to subordinate officers, to leave the captain, in his "command position," free of a "myriad" minor responsibilities.

The prosecuting officer asked why Cmdr. Jackson, as a navigation specialist, had not recognized the "unsatisfactory features" of the planned course through Active Pass.

The navigator was faulted for failing to properly check out the ship's navigating equipment, for failing to take account of tides at the entrance to Active Pass, for failing to use a chart with a scale large enough to properly show the dangers and for failing to advise the captain that the ship was possibly in danger.

But the fact that some members of the crew were "dreadfully inexperienced" was a factor Cmdr. Jackson should "have taken into account."

When the ship approached the Pass and no land was visible, the captain immediately "should have reconsidered" his plan to go through.

The prosecutor said "all these omissions" on the part of the captain fell short of the standard—"a very high standard"—required of commanding officers of ships like Saskatchewan.

Major Ward commended the ship's operations officer for having carried out his duties "efficiently" and "to the best of his abilities" considering the shortage of qualified personnel aboard.

He said the defence contention was that the operations officer, Lieut. Bran Oudshoorn, "should have screamed or done something" to indicate his concern for impending danger.

That was not the way an operations officer was expected to "carry on.

POLL CLERKS SOUGHT FOR OCT. 26

Victoria city clerk Morran Waller is looking for 25 poll clerks to assist in the vote counting for the Oct. 26 $9.3 million hospitals referendum.

Mr. Waller said today that applicants for the available positions must apply at the city clerk's office, city hall, on Monday, Oct. 21 before 5 p.m.

"We do not accept telephone applications nor written applications," Mr. Waller said. "The application must be made in person to myself or one of my assistants."

Polling hours on Oct. 26 are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Jubilee Needs New Labs First

New laboratory facilities are the first priority on Royal Jubilee Hospital's new construction program.

Hospital board chairman Courtney Haddock said today replacement of the existing laboratory is essential if the hospital is to stay abreast of growing demands.

He was commenting on Jubilee's $1,263,870 share of the $9.3 million hospital construction, renovation and equipment bylaw which goes to the people on Oct. 26.

"A new laboratory has to be our number one project," Mr. Haddock said. "Anyone who has ever been inside the present lab and seen the archaic conditions the staff work under will realize that."

BLANK CHEQUE?

"I know that some people are saying it's like voting a blank cheque, but I don't think that criticism is valid. We have to trust somebody and I think the men and women administering the major hospitals in this area are people we can trust. I can assure you none of them are wasting money.

The breakdown of funds to be made available to the two major hospitals if the referendum receives 60 per cent or more of the votes cast, is as follows:

Jubilee: $169,000 for new construction; $468,000 for renovations to the existing plant; $626,870 for new equipment for a total of $1,263,870.

St. Joseph's Hospital: $227,348 for new construction: $347,700 for renovations and $587,329 for equipment for a total of $1,162,377.

Planning and land acquisition costs will add a further $400,000 to acute care cost estimates.

MORE BEDS

Extended care beds will take the bulk of the money made available if the $9.3 million referendum is approved.

Of the $8,650,000 required for extended care the breakdown is as follows:

Site acquisition, $115,000; a total of 450 beds, class "A" construction, $6,111,000; a total of 250 beds class "B" construction, $1,400,000; equipment, $786,000 supplies and working capital $238,000.

Regional Hospital District Board executive director William Long notes that the apparent discrepancy between the totals listed and the $9.3 million to be raised is brought about by the application of federal grants and provincial government equipment grants.

These are included in the total amount to be spent in developing hospital needs, but are not included in the amount to be raised by the referendum.

GRANTS DUE

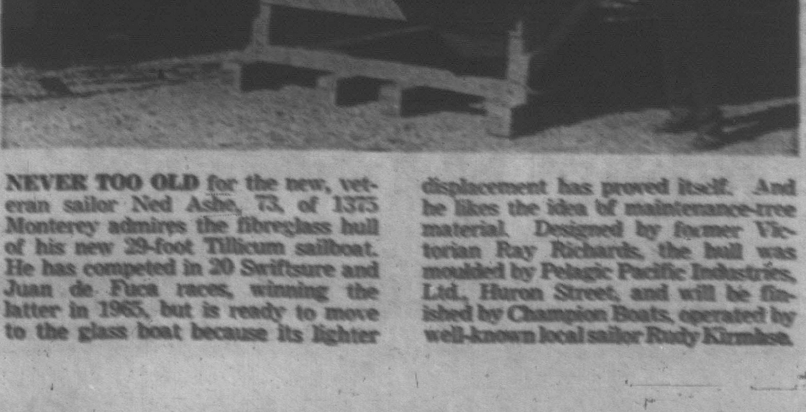
Mr. Long also stressed that of the $9.3 million to be raised the owner-electors eligible to vote would be responsible for only 40 per cent of that total.

With more than 81,000 owner electors eligible to vote advance polling stations will be open between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Oct. 24-25 at eleven locations.

Ask The Times

Q. Recently I was much impressed by Paul Scofield's acting in "A Man for All Seasons." Could you tell me something about his acting background and his address?—W.J.

A. (David) Paul Scofield was born Jan. 21, 1922. He received his early education at the Varndean School for Boys. His specialized theatre training was with the Croydon Repertory (1939) and the London Mask Theatre School (1940). Among the more famous theatres he has appeared in are the Phoenix, Stratford-on-Avon and the Globe. In 1955 he played the part of Hamlet in Moscow. Among his Shakespearean credits are Hamlet, King Lear, Macbeth, Much Ado About Nothing. He made the movie "A Man for All Seasons" in 1966. He has been a member of the Royal Shakespearean Directorate in England since 1966. His address is The Gables, Balcombe, Sussex, England.



NEVER TOO OLD for the new, veteran sailor Ned Ashe, 73, of 1375 Monterey admires the fibreglass hull of his new 29-foot Tillicum sailboat. He has competed in 20 Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca races, winning the latter in 1965, but is ready to move to the glass boat because its lighter displacement has proved itself. And he likes the idea of maintenance-free material. Designed by former Victorian Ray Richards, the hull was moulded by Pelagic Pacific Industries, Ltd., Huron Street, and will be finished by Champion Boats, operated by well-known local sailor Rudy Kirmhse.

Britons, Aussies Surprise Experts

Commonwealth Stars Grab Three of Five Track Wins

By BRUCE LEVETT

MEXICO CITY (CP)—It may look strange to those experts who play up United States and Russian domination of the Olympic Game, but the Commonwealth is winning most of the gold in the track events here so far.

The Olympic 800-metre gold medal will remain in Commonwealth hands for another four years. And there are two new additions—the 400-metre hurdles and the 10,000 metres.

Australian, British and Kenyan runners grabbed three gold of the five awarded in track competition so far.

With 14 of the 172 events on the two-week program completed, the Canadian team still was shut out of the points column.

The Americans picked up 38 points to move well ahead of Russia in the unofficial team standing as well as the medal column.

The United States led Russia 73-35 in points and 8-5 in medals including the most gold—four.

Every one of the four track and field finals Tuesday resulted in Olympic or world records being broken.

As expected, the U.S. retained the gold in the women's 100 metres, won for the second time in a row by Wyomia Tyus, and the men's discus, where Al Oerter scored again.

But nobody figured the U.S. being shut out of the 400 hurdle medals for the first time. A Briton, Dave Hemery, captured the prize and wiped out all listed and pending world marks.

Ralph Doubell of Australia, who had the best time of the heats, won the 800-metre run, breaking one of Peter Snell's records and equalling another.

Bob Finley of Toronto was the only Canadian to survive the heats in Tuesday's track competition, finishing fourth in the 5,000-metre heat won by Kenya's Kipchoge Keino. The 25-year-old Canadian was leading going into the last lap when the atmosphere got to him and he needed oxygen after the race.

Australian Is Threat in 200 Metres

Dave Ellis of Toronto, 27th in the 10,000 metres, dropped out of the 5,000 with leg cramps.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver, who says he is retiring from competition after the Games, finished fifth and eighth in two heats of the men's 200 metres and was eliminated.

They looked for a U.S. sweep of the sprints, but an Australian, Peter Norman, was the darkhorse. Norman, also a double heat winner, clocked 20.2 in his first heat, an Olympic record.

Smith holds the world record of 20 seconds flat and Carlos has a 19.7 mark pending.

Before Miss Tyus won the sprint gold in 11 seconds flat, a world and Olympic record, she had done 11.3 in the semi-finals.

Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver, after recording the two best times of her career in the 100 Monday, finished sixth in her semi-final race and was eliminated.

Her time was 11.5 as she slogged down the water-covered track through a heavy rain. The Canadian teacher had qualified with identical 11.3 times in the two earlier heats.

In the men's javelin throw, Bill Heikkila of Toronto was far off his career best as he finished 22nd in the qualifying session and didn't make it into today's final.

Heikkila, 23, threw the javelin 233 feet seven inches, almost 30 feet off the required distance—262-5¼. His best throw is 257-3.

Karl-Ake Nilsson of Sweden had the best toss of the 29-man field—287 feet even. Russia's Janis Lusis, who has a pending world record of 301-9, was next best with 274-6¼.

Oerter Gets Record Fourth Victory

In the 800 metres, it was a one-two Commonwealth finish as Doubell overtook favored Wilson Kiprugut of Kenya, the bronze medallist four years ago, in a stretch battle.

Both finished under the Olympic record Snell, the famed New Zealander who has retired from competition, set in winning the gold four years ago.

Kiprugut's time was 1:44.5, and Tommy Farrell of the United States took the bronze in 1:45.4.

Hemery flew over the 10 hurdles in the 400 to win by more than three yards from West German Gerhardt Hennige with another Briton, John Sherwood, third.

His 48.1 erased the listed world record of 49.1 by Rex Cawley of the U.S. in 1964 and the Olympic mark of 49 set by another American, Ron Whitney, in a heat here.

Hennige, Sherwood and Jeff Vanderstock of the U.S. all were clocked in the same time—49—but Vanderstock ended fourth. Whitney could do no better than sixth.

Vanderstock had a new world mark pending—48.8—and that mark was wiped out.

Oerter, the 260-pound discus king, is the first to win the Olympic gold four times. He did it the first time in 1956 in Melbourne.

His Olympic record toss of 212-6½ was more than 12 feet better than his best 1964 Games performance. It knocked out the 207-1½ record of Jay Sylvester of the U.S., set in the qualifying competition. Sylvester was fifth in the final.

Silver medal winner Lother Milde of East Germany and Ludvik Danek of Czechoslovakia, the bronze winner, were almost six feet short of Oerter's distance.

In the women's 100, another American, Barbara Ferrell, was second and Irene Szewinska of Poland third. Raelene Boyle of Australia was fourth. All three had identical clockings—11.1.

In cycling, the Dutch team of Marinus Pijnen, Fedor den Hertof, Jan Krekels and Gerardes Zoltemelk won the team time trial in two hours, seven minutes 49.06 seconds. Sweden was second and Italy third.

Foy Takes Shot At Sox Pilot; Goes to Royals

BOSTON (AP)—Kansas City Royals and Seattle Pilots figure they are just about ready to enter the 1969 American League pennant race after mixing age with youth in taking 30 players each at a cost of $175,000 per man in the expansion draft.

AL president Joe Cronin hustled the draft through its six hours Tuesday with the help of a computer which provided data on players in lightning fashion.

The 10 established clubs pocketed $1,050,000 each.

Boston Red Sox picked up $175,000 for third baseman Joe Foy, who was drafted from the Minnesota organization for $8,000 five years ago and has spent considerable time in the managerial doghouse.

Foy has been inconsistent both at bat and in the field with the Red Sox, but figures to play full time at Kansas City.

COULDN'T PLAY BEST

In a parting shot, Foy described manager Dick Williams as "a sneak who delights in hurting people" and said he was "glad to get away" from Boston.

"It's impossible to play your best ball under a man like Williams," he said.

Greenwood Wins Division Title In Squash Meet

VANCOUVER — Mick McGarry of Shawnigan Lake Boys' School captured the men's "D" class championship and Victoria's Julian Greenwood won the "B" title but Vancouver Island's other hopefuls were stopped short of the finals in the Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club's annual invitational squash tournament.

Simmonds Takes Aim At Hoop Point Title

Darrell Lorimer is going to have a rugged battle to retain his scoring crown in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League if opening-night efforts of the new season are any indication.

Pete Simmonds eclipsed the single-game league scoring record of 42 points set by Lorimer last season by firing 46 points to pace Farmer Construction's 103-65 victory over Colony Motor Inn on Tuesday night.

Lorimer contributed only two points to Labatt's 61-58 edging of Red Lion Inn in the other league opener.

COLONY MOTOR INN — Wayne Allen 11, Dave Emery 19, Ollie Goldsmith 6, Terry Greenwood 16, [illegible] 2, [illegible] 5, Ed Hardy 4, Terry Whitman 1, Barry Wilson. Total 65.

LABATTS — Chuck Barnett 6, Bob Brown, Ken Gregory 5, Goudie Jones 2, Ed Kowalik 3, Darrell Lorimer 2, Larry Montgomery, Bill Munroe, John Devlin 22, Joe Patterson 6, Terry Shendon 15, Harold Williams 2. Total 61.

Brentwood Blanks Vancouver Squad

Four players accounted for all the scoring as Brentwood College blanked Killarney of Vancouver 28-0 in an exhibition high school boys' rugby match.

Photographer Blamed For Basketball Ruckus

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Olympic athletes in team sports abandoned rough play for keen competition Tuesday, but the aftermath of earlier battles was still being felt.

It was a valiant stand by the small African country after four of its key players were suspended following a battle on opening day with Israel which Ghana lost 5-3.

And in basketball, Cuba, which has lost three games so far, said there were no hard feelings against the Mexican team which won by one point in a violence-marked clash Monday.

The Cuban delegation said the ruckus after the game was brought on by a Mexican photographer "which a Cuban player logically chased" when he tried to take a picture of a weeping Cuban.

Meanwhile, the United States won its 69th Olympic basketball contest without a defeat, crushing a Philippines team 96-75, and men's volleyball got under way with the U.S. edging Russia 3-2.

POSTS SECOND WIN

In other soccer games Tuesday Israel, tops in Group C with two wins, defeated El Salvador 3-1. France, leader in Group A, defeated Mexico 4-1 and Guinea edged Columbia 3-2.

In basketball, the U.S., Russia, Brazil and Yugoslavia all raised their records to three wins and no losses.

Yugoslavia defeated Senegal 84-65, Brazil topped Mexico 69-53, Russia defeated South Korea 89-58, Poland edged Cuba 78-75, Spain defeated Panama 88-82, Bulgaria trounced Morocco 77-59 and Italy edged Puerto Rico 68-65.

COAST TEAM UNDEFEATED AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—British Columbia's "A" team polished off Manitoba-Saskatchewan, 7-0, Monday to win the Canadian Women's Field Hockey tournament undefeated.

In other final games of the four-day event, Ontario "B" blanked the Maritimes, 2-0, Ontario "A" shutout Quebec, 2-0, and B.C. "B" defeated Alberta, 4-0.

Ontario "A" finished second in the tournament with five wins and two losses; B.C. "B" was next with four wins, a loss and two ties; Ontario "B" was 3-4; Quebec 2-3-2; Maritimes 1-3-3; Alberta 1-4-2; and Manitoba-Saskatchewan had six losses and a tie.

Trotting Selections

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter J. Michael, Billy Haughton, Del Miller and Frank Ervin, four of the leading figures in harness racing, have been selected to the trotting hall of fame.

Harry Had Race With Gate Guard

By STERLING TAYLOR

The Vancouver runner had just been eliminated from further competition in the quarter-finals of the 200-metre race, but the fact that he even got to the starting blocks amazed him.

Jerome, who says he is retiring from competition after the current Olympics, finished fifth in the opening heat of the 200 Tuesday morning.

"They told me the top four qualified from each heat so I figure that was it for me. Actually, I just ran the first heat for fun anyway. I was terribly stiff from Monday's two heats in the 100 metres."

"The quarter-final of the 200 was at 3 o'clock and I though I'd drop over to the stadium and watch it."

STOPPED AT GATE

Harry arrived at the stadium about 2:30 p.m., dressed in a checked shirt with open collar over a white turtleneck sweater and straw hat cocked jauntily over one eye.

"They wouldn't let me in," he said, "because I didn't have a pass and I was in street clothes.

"So I just ran past the guard. He chased me, but I beat him."

Harry was wandering through the crowd when a friend informed him that he was entered in the quarter-final.

"Apparently the fastest time of the runner who didn't finish in the top four during the first round was also advanced to the quarter-final," Jerome said.

That created another problem. Jerome was at the track, but his equipment and his number, which the athlete must have to compete, were elsewhere.

He didn't qualify for the next round "because I really didn't have enough time to warm up."

"I couldn't really run as hard as I should have, but I said I only entered the 200 for fun anyway."

HAPPENED TWICE

It was the second time during the last three days that Jerome had been sure he was eliminated, but was wrong.

The results placed him fifth in the quarter-finals of the 100 metres Sunday, but re-examination of the photo finish showed him finishing fourth. The correction placed him in the Monday semi-final, which he ran in 10.1 seconds to place third and qualify for the finals later the same day.

He was seventh in the final with a time of 10.1.

"I just can't get over the way things have been going all year and especially here," Jerome said.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

Laurie Kerr at Colwood, Claude Heggie at Uplands and Hal Jacobsen at Glen Meadows all came back at the weekend to return as club champions.

Heggie claimed his second title at Uplands by defeating another former winner, Gordie Pellow, 3 and 2. A late charge did it for Heggie. Three down after 21 holes and two down after 25, Heggie won five of the next eight holes to stop Pellow.

HAL JACOBSEN

Jacobsen, like Heggie, also made his big charge after the 25th hole in the all-southpaw playoff at Glen Meadows. Jacobsen and rival Brian Staggett both were even par after nine and again after 18 holes. They were still square after 25, but the defending champion won five of the next seven to defeat Staggett 5 and 4.

Oak Bay's Brian Carbery and Al MacLeod of Gorge Vale claimed club crowns earlier. Still to be decided is Cedar Hill's titlist. Sunday's scheduled playoff between Greg Barnes and Greg Candlish was postponed when the latter was called out of town on business.

The venerable Victoria Golf Club passed a milestone at the weekend by staging numerous competitions to celebrate the course's 75th anniversary.

Major winners in Saturday's anniversary tournament were Bill McColl, Dick Flanagan, Dr. Ray Cranston, John Featherstone, Bill Mearns, Bert Osborough, Sid Maddocks, Hugh French and junior Brent Carbery.

The Rt. Rev. H. D. Martin topped a special nine-hole medal field of seniors while Dr. Cranston teamed up with Dr. Bill Kirstine to capture a best-ball competition.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thompson (low gross) and Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Stoneham (low net) topped all in Monday's mixed foursome competition for the Gibson Cup. Runners-up in the prize parade included Mr. and Mrs. Bill McColl and Les Pope and Miss H. M. Campbell.

* * *

AND ALSO: Gorge Vale's Karl Zwick, carding a fancy 72-5—67, captured top honors in the annual Thanksgiving Day tournament at Uplands .. Another Gorge golfer, Lex Sutcliffe claimed gross honors with a four-over 74 . . . It was Sutcliffe's second prize in as many days . . . He also led gross scorers, with a two-over 73, in Gorge Vale's Maynard Trophy event . . . The silverware went to Jim Vanyo, who scored 82-15—67, his best round ever . . .

The third hole-in-one in Glen Meadows' history was recorded at the weekend by Gary Moore . . . The University of Victoria student scored his ace on the 169-yard 17th hole . . . All three of the aces at the Meadows have been scored on different holes . . . Gorge Vale playing-pro Bill Wakeham returned to Victoria Tuesday after successfully passing the American Professional Golfers' tour trials in Florida . . . The wire services reported Wakeham was 18th among the list of 20 who picked up their tour permits . . . Actually, he finished 14th on the list . . .

Cowichan's Gord Whan and Norm Boden still retain the open buttons, but Gorge Vale's team gets a chance to try for a third straight time .. Whan and Boden finished all square with challengers Laurie Carroll (filling in for Wakeham) and Al MacLeod . . . The third replay is scheduled Oct. 27 at Oak Bay.

Rookie Coaches Search For First NHL Victory

By Canadian Press

Coaching in the National Hockey League is a frustrating business, especially when you have never won a game. Just ask this season's four rookie coaches.

Still waiting for their first big-league victories and probably becoming impatient are Bill Gadsby of Detroit Red Wings, Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of New York Rangers, Claude Ruel of Montreal Canadiens and Fred Glover of Oakland Seals.

Fortunately for this group of nail-biters, the season is less than a week old and their employers will not start to scowl for a few days yet.

Three of the anxious four get a chance tonight to record that first victory. The fourth, Gadsby, has to sweat it out until Thursday.

Tonight's schedule has Montreal meeting the Blues at St. Louis, Philadelphia Flyers visiting New York, Boston Bruins playing at Oakland, Pittsburgh Penguins facing the Maple Leafs at Toronto and Minnesota North Stars colliding with the fast-moving Black Hawks at Chicago.

Thursday, Montreal is at Minnesota, New York visits Detroit, Pittsburgh plays at Philadelphia and Boston meets the Kings at Los Angeles.

Of the four rookie coaches, Ruel may be the one with the most pressure on him. He is expected to finish first in the Eastern Division and then win the Stanley Cup.

Ruel, who succeeded Toe Blake, watched his champions struggle to a 1-1 tie Saturday at Pittsburgh in the season opener for both teams. The Penguins generally are picked to finish in the Western Division basement.

Geoffrion, who relieved former manager-coach Emile Francis of the coaching duties, lost his opener 5-2 to Chicago Sunday. But the Black Hawks, with Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita signed, are undefeated in two games this season.

Replacing Bert Olmstead at Oakland, Glover has nowhere to go but up. The Seals finished a distant last in the Western Division last season.

In two starts this year, Oakland lost 5-1 to Minnesota and tied Los Angeles 4-4. Tonight's game will be their third start at home.

Looking ahead to Thursday, Gadsby's Red Wings will be trying to break a two-game losing streak. They lost 4-2 to Boston and 3-1 to Toronto.

Regan Will Wait To Learn of Fate

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, said Tuesday it may be some time before he decides what disciplinary action will be taken against Larry Regan, general manager of Los Angeles Kings, for a Sunday night altercation in Oakland with referee Bruce Hood.

Regan said Monday he faces possible suspension for punching Hood after a call Regan termed [illegible] the Kings 4-4 tie with the Seals Sunday night.

Both players drew two minutes for slashing, but Rolfe was assessed an additional five-minute major with less than five minutes remaining in the game. Oakland earned the tie with 68 seconds left to play.

OLYMPIC RULES DEFEAT PUERTO RICAN FIGHTER

Not a glove had been laid on Heriberto Cintron, a Puerto Rican flyweight.

But he had lost a decision to the Olympic rules. Officials had discovered, just as he entered the ring, that he was only 16 years old.

The Olympic minimum for boxing is 17.

The good-looking young Puerto Rican was ready to fight Artur Olech of Poland. Suddenly animated conversation broke out among the 15 boxing officers at ringside. After much rapid conversation, finger-waving and translation, Cintron was disqualified. Olech, 25, was advanced to the next round.

Gerela Boosts Margin

Field-goal specialist Ted Gerela kicked two more Monday in helping British Columbia Lions to a 13-4 interlocking win over Montreal Alouettes to extend his lead over Calgary's Larry Robinson to 10 points in the Western Football Conference scoring race.

Uvic Squads Set to Start WCIAA Play

By STEVE HUME

University of Victoria teams will see their first Western Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Association action this week in soccer and field hockey.

The women's varsity field hockey team left today for three days of competition at the annual WCIAA tournament in Regina.

Eight teams from UBC, University of Saskatchewan, University of Regina, University of Calgary, University of Winnipeg, University of Brandon, University of Manitoba and Uvic will compete in the tournament.

Varsity coach Jill Kelly said Tuesday she thinks west coast clubs will be teams to beat in the inter-collegiate affair.

"Last year the University of Saskatchewan took the tourney, but Uvic wasn't entered at all, and UBC, I suspect, sent only their second string," Mrs. Kelly said.

She said west coast teams have consistently dominated field hockey, and added that superiority should be more pronounced over prairie teams at the varsity level of play.

"UBC is going to be our toughest competition — they're experienced and fast," Mrs. Kelly said.

●

"But we're certainly not going to underestimate the Saskatchewan squad that won the tournament last year."

Uvic will hang hopes for a western Canadian collegiate field hockey crown on a core of six hold-overs expected to lead the team in experience and hustle.

A two-year veteran with the university side, Miss Seymour operated on the right wing until this season when coaches decided to give her a crack at the demanding centre spot.

The move appears to have paid off.

"When Heather was on the wing she played excellent field hockey but didn't constitute a scoring threat," Mrs. Kelly said.

"We moved her at the beginning of this season and she's already scored eight of the 12 goals we tallied in two of our first three games."

Uvic was shut out 1-0 in their league opener in Victoria play, then bounced back on the red-hot shooting of Miss Seymour for a pair of wins.

●

Backing up the new star and the other veterans will be seven rookies led by some sharp prospects in team captain Terry Neal and vice-captain Barbara Craig, the coach said.

The field hockey girls open action with three games Thursday, and the first challenge of the gruelling schedule will be Brandon.

Then comes Calgary and Regina, in that order.

Friday's action promises to be no easier, with Uvic facing encounters with Winnipeg, Saskatchewan and UBC as well as fitting in a match with Manitoba somewhere.

Other WCIAA action for the coming week involves the university's senior varsity soccer team.

The Vikings travel to Regina for WCIAA championship play Friday and Saturday, and they too, are expecting to be considered threats in the inter-varsity competition.

Clippers Edge Kings To Move Into Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore Clippers moved into first place in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League Tuesday night by edging Springfield Kings 5-4.

Baltimore led 4-1 at the end of the first period and 5-2 at the end of the second. But Springfield pulled to within 5-4 and then Baltimore's Jim Bartlett received a penalty with 1½ minutes to play.

Springfield coach Johnny Wilson yanked goalie Claude Hardy in favor of an extra attacker a few seconds later, and the Kings had a two-man advantage.

But the Clippers held on to preserve the victory, their third in five starts.

BUT EQUESTRIAN HAS YOUNG HORSE

Last Olympics at 66?

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The most noticeable thing about being the oldest competitor in the Olympic Games is that "one gets an unnecessary fuss made of one," says Mrs. Lorna Johnstone.

Mrs. Johnstone, who is competing for Britain in the equestrian dressage, is 66.

Mrs. Johnstone also competed in dressage in 1956, when the equestrian events were held in Stockholm.

"I wasn't very successful, but I had the distinction of being, I think, the only competitor with a horse I had bred myself. I rode his great-grandmother when I was a girl."

Mrs. Johnstone thinks this will probably be her last Olympics.

Nixon Launches Operation Extra Effort

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republican Richard M. Nixon claims he's leading the three-way presidential race in every major state and says he is driving for "the fastest finish in campaign history" for the Nov. 5 presidential election.

Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey elaborated on his North Vietnam bombing halt stand meanwhile Tuesday, and said he will not compromise his civil rights position regardless of the effect on his election chances.

And a Supreme Court decision putting George C. Wallace on Ohio's ballot has made him the first third-party candidate in modern U.S. political history to go on the ballot in every state.

Nixon expressed high confidence over his chances at a Miami news conference Tuesday but said he is taking steps to ward off over-confidence. He dubbed his drive between now and election day Operation Extra Effort.

"We are going to play it safe," he said. "We are going all out on the issues, on the appearances, on the activity, between now and election."

Nixon claimed Wallace "has topped out" at about 15 per cent of the popular vote and accused Humphrey of panicking into using "tactics of fear and smear."

Humphrey told cheering students in St. Louis, meanwhile, that polls show him losing votes when he makes civil rights statements—but he'll not change his stand.

He said that a century of deprivation requires not only equal opportunity for the underprivileged but even "a little extra help."

Earlier Humphrey appeared to add emphasis to his statement he would halt the bombing of North Vietnam as president, while repeating he would "look to" any evidence Hanoi was willing to neutralize the demilitarized zone.

"I said I would stop the bombing as an acceptable risk for peace-period," he said. ". . . But I said period, not comma or semicolon."

PAY INCREASE DUE FOR ARMED FORCES

OTTAWA (CP)—Pay increases for the armed forces will be announced in three to four weeks and will be retroactive to Oct. 1, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux said Tuesday.

Cadieux said the announcement will not involve service pensions. The aim is to adjust salaries "and do some catching up."

Oh Dad, Poor Dad Opens Theatre Guild's Season

A former president of the McGill University Players and National president of the Canadian University Drama League, is conducting final rehearsals for his first Victoria production.

The play—Arthur Kopit's modern farce, Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad—will also mark the opening of Victoria Theatre Guild's 36th season.

The director, Dr. Rod Symington, will also have the pleasure of seeing this production open a Langham Court Theatre that has tripled in comfort, convenience, efficiency and attractiveness since it closed on the Smile Show in mid-August.

In the interim, professional crews and member crews have worked against time to bring the theatre up to standards and refurbish it for the opening date, this Saturday.

Coming to Canada from England in 1964, Dr. Symington taught German at McGill and received his Phd. there, his thesus being on Brecht and Shakespeare.

OWN PROGRAM

He has directed Shakespeare's As You Like It, comedies by Frederick Durrenmatt and Two of the Seesaw, and has produced Endgame, Andora, The Lark, and Miss Julie.

He also organized a noon-hour theatre at McGill in which programs of one-act plays were presented under the title, Sandwich Theatre.

He came to Victoria 18 months ago and holds an assistant professorship at University of Victoria's department of Germanic languages and literature.

SYMINGTON
. . . director

Last season he impressed Guild audiences with his performance in two major roles in Shaffer's The Private Ear and the Public Eye.

An extremely funny and satirical play, Oh Dad, Poor Data has top Victoria actress Helen Smith in the leading role of Mrs. Rosepettle.

A special preview on Friday for an invited audience of patrons, dignitaries and press representatives, will be followed by the regular opening Saturday.

Oh Dad will continue nightly at 8:15 through Oct. 26.

BRILLIANT OPENING TO SERIES

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Josef Suk performed so brilliantly in the recital with which University of Victoria opened its evening series Monday, that none realized ill-health had forced him to curtail his rehearsal.

And only his artistic responsibility to the audience allowed him to play so well while he felt so ill.

Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata which comprised the second half of the program showed to perfection the complete sympathy which existed between Mr. Suk and his pianist Alfred Holecek.

RICH BASS

Only the piercing concert tone of the violin, the rich bass of the piano and the fact that the two artists had not been able to spend the time they had planned on checking the balance, made a few of the piano passages a trifle heavy.

The work was played by Mr. Suk with revealing understanding and the fast passages were accomplished with particular brilliance.

Janacek's Sonata, distinctive in its insistent rhythms and unusual harmonies was played with power and bright assurance by both artists.

A feeling of fidgety frequent adjustment was unavoidable in the Adagio movement where a waspish motif on muted strings was frequently required.

Though piano passages gave the violinist ample time to adjust his instrument, a more restful enjoyment could have been achieved if Janacek had written the passage for two violins one stopped and one not.

FORCEFUL ATTACK

The deepest concentration and most forceful attack was necessary in the fragmentary pizzicato interjections which demanded the most exact synchronization of the two instruments.

The fresh charming melodies of Dvorak's Sonatina in G with which the recital opened, brought back childhood memories to many

Despite his sickness Josef Suk played a gentle haunting encore which contrasted effectively with the presto race of the Beethoven which preceded it.

After graciously declining to play further encores the great Czech violinist left the applauding audience eager for more, but delighted with the program they had heard.

THREE IN BED JUST TOO MUCH

POPLAR, England (UPI)—Ferdinand Stewart told the judge in divorce court he did not mind his wife's twin moving into their small apartment because he knew the sisters were fond of each other.

But he said he objected when the three of them started sharing the same bed.

The judge granted him a divorce.

His Building Won't Quit . . . And Neither Will He

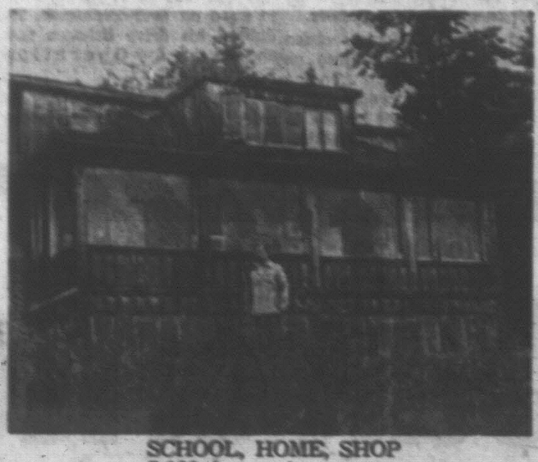
By ED GOULD

"I thought I'd just drop out of sight for a while," Dave Anderson said in answer to a question about what he'd been doing in the past year or so.

Anderson was the controversial director of the Victoria School of Art until a number of skirmishes with the hierarchy in the Greater Victoria Department of Adult Studies led to a mutual agreement to part company.

He retired, figuratively speaking, to his 10-acre property on Cromar Road in Deep Cove, "to think things over and work on my building."

The "building" is a gigantic wooden structure that won't quit. It already houses his wife and five children, has a basement full of litho stones and art materials of every description, plus an old Heidelberg press.

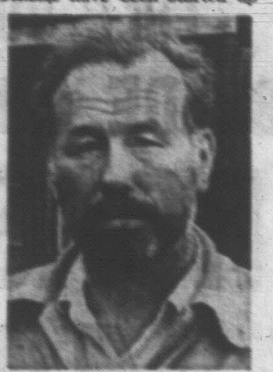


SCHOOL, HOME, SHOP
. . . 7,000 feet and more to come

With at least 7,000 square feet under one roof and lumber and windows to double that size, still no end is in view.

It's almost big enough to be a school. In fact, that's what it is going to be when it's finally completed: a new school of art.

"I've had good response to the idea of an art school here in Deep Cove and I want the best one around. Other art schools have been started up but nothing as permanent or year-round as I have planned," Mr. Anderson said.



ANDERSON

He figures there is a happy balance to be struck between working himself and teaching: "I always work better myself with others around. I get very disturbed when I'm not involved myself."

As well as the usual space and instruction for painting, there'll be room for graphic printing, stone lithography and a darkroom for photography.

A specialist in graphic arts and delicate reproduction of his own etchings from wood and stone, he worked in Toronto doing silkscreen art for an advertising firm before starting his own graphic arts school in Toronto.

Although his family had owned the Deep Cove property for a long time, he first came back here to become art director for CHEK-TV when it began.

A student of Arthur Lismer and Nicholas Hornyansky, Anderson claims to have had the "longest art training period ever supported by DVA." It allowed him to study in New York and Europe but there was a stipulation that he return to Canada eventually and teach art here.

"Not that I didn't want to," he says, "I'm very nationalistic but a bit of a rebel. I admire tradition in its own setting. We needn't mimic anyone else.

"But I'm rather disappointed in Canadians. We don't talk enough about our own work. If you are too enthusiastic you are not showing the proper modesty."

At various times he has taught art in night school classes in Victoria, Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Courtenay but hated driving all the time with no time left to paint.

"That's why I want the school here in this building. I've decided to let people come to me."

Artist friends are always suggesting he do something shocking and contemporary. "I don't feel there's any integrity in that," he said.

"A great deal of art is selection. What you leave out is just as important as what you leave in. A painting or sculpture should have an air of mystery about it."

He explained that much of the public reaction to modern art is negative because "they think you're pulling their leg and they don't like it."

About his leaving the Victoria School of Art — which he hoped would become self-governing — he said:

"I'm not happy teaching unless I'm leading the way."

Court Rejects Dismissal Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver man lost his British Columbia Supreme Court suit Tuesday for a court declaration that he was not required to join a union because of his religious convictions.

Clarence Mostert, a member of the Christian Reform Church, had sued International Association of Machinists, Local 692, and Hoffars Ltd. of Vancouver, seeking the ruling and also damages for what he alleged was wrongful dismissal.

Mr. Justice R. A. B. Wootton held that Mostert knew at the time he began to work at the engine parts and service firm in March, 1963, that joining the union within 30 days was a condition of employment. Mostert was dismissed in 1964, after working for the firm for 18 months.

Mostert said he could only join a union that upholds the Christian principles as found in the Bible and he had decided to refuse to join the union after studying its constitution.

Judge Wootton ruled, however that Mostert was entitled to notice before being dismissed and held that the notice should have been two weeks. He awarded Mostert $250 in wages against the firm.

Before the Magistrate

A 15-year-old boy who earlier pleaded guilty to three charges of breaking and entering and theft and one charge of theft was sentenced Tuesday to 10 to 18 months in the Young Offenders Unit at Oakalla.

"This is the last of three heartbreaking cases where young persons of tender age have appeared here within the last week," said Magistrate William Ostler in passing sentence.

They've had no real chance . . . no parental guidance. Now is the time to do something progressive for them he said.

The magistrate was referring to the cases of three juveniles, ages 15 and 16, who were recently raised to criminal court from the family and children's court for disposition of their cases.

The youth appearing Tuesday broke into a fish boat and two stores in September, police said at an earlier hearing. When arrested he was found intoxicated in Bastion Square and had 70 rounds of .22 ammunition in his possession. A large amount of pop and chocolate bars were taken from the stores.

Mr. Ostler noted that a pre-sentence report stated the boy had escaped eight times from Brannan Lake School for boys, and that he said he had stolen 200 cars and used drugs.

"What must be done now is to see if we can reverse the conduct of his life," the magistrate said. "Giving too short a sentence is fruitless. The boy has been rejected since birth . . . he needs guidance and counselling."

The two juveniles who were sentenced earlier received terms of 20 to 26 months and 9 to 18 months in the Young Offenders Unit.

Ian MacDonald, 26, of no fixed address, was fined $50 after he pleaded guilty to obtaining lodgings by fraud.

Court was told he left a downtown rooming house Oct. 2 leaving an unpaid bill of $72.50. The sum was later paid by MacDonald's father, Prosecutor Cory Stolte said.

When the man told Magistrate Ostler he was a social worker and worked with "runaway kids" he was told he was nothing but a "runaway kid" himself.

"It's like the blind leading the blind," said the magistrate.

MacDonald said he had a job now at Mother Hubbard's bakery in Vancouver and Mr. Ostler added as he left, "perhaps you can borrow the money from Mother Hubbard" to pay the fine.

A man who pleaded guilty to impaired driving and who police said showed a breathalyzer reading of .22 was fined $400.

Nirmal Bains, 1025 Tillicum, was also fined $200 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident. Court was told he struck a parked car on Bay Street Saturday, causing $350 damage.

Two other men who pleaded guilty to impaired driving were each fined $350.

Gerald Helm, of Campbell River, was found asleep in his car on Beach Drive Sunday and gave a breathalyzer reading of .17 police said.

John Clements, 440 Simcoe, was fined $300 when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Court was told he drove in an erratic manner on Yates Street Thursday and showed a breathalyzer reading of .18.

Cedar Hill Road Work Half Completed

Basic roadwork on Cedar Hill Cross Road is about half completed, Oak Bay works superintendent Ralph Fletcher said Tuesday night.

Deadline for the $221,000 project, which includes installation of sewers, water mains, storm drains, paving, curbing and forming of sidewalks, is in December.

The municipality is now selling several lots along the roadway east of Haro, and has already sold some near Henderson Road.

Recipe of the Week

Czechoslovakian Goulash

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Heat 3 tblsps. of lard in a 5-quart flameproof casserole until a light haze forms over it, then add 2 cups of finely chopped onions. For 8 to 10 minutes, cook them over medium heat, or until they are lightly colored. Remove from heat and stir in 1 tblsp. paprika, stir continually until the onions are well coated. Add 3 lbs. lean boneless beef chuck and pour one cup dry red wine and 1 cup beef stock, fresh or canned, over it. Stir in ½ tsp. salt and a few grindings of freshly ground black pepper. Bring this to a boil and then cover tightly and bake in the middle of the oven for 1 hour.

Remove the casserole from the oven and skim off about 2 tblsps. of the surface fat with a spoon. Combine 2 tblsps. of flour with this fat and stir the mixture into the casserole. Return the casserole to the oven and cook for 30 to 40 minutes or until the beef shows no resistance when pierced with the tip of a small sharp knife. After arranging the beef on a platter, skim the surface fat from the casserole, add the gherkins and heat for 2 or 3 minutes longer. Season to your taste, pour the sauce over the beef and serve.

Ottawa Plans New Merger Legislation

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government now has an up-to-date register of all corporation mergers in Canadian industry and it will help the government develop new legislation governing them, a report tabled in the Commons said Tuesday.

The director of investigation and research under the Combines Investigation Act, D. H. W. Henry, said in his annual report tabled by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Ron Basford that the register began with an inquiry into mergers started in 1961.

The research project studied questionnaires sent to companies involved in 1,827 mergers.

"This material, gathered on the basis that it would not be disclosed to competitors and others, is used within the (anti-combines) branch in assessing the likely effect upon competition of mergers which appear to raise a question under the Combines Investigation Act," Mr. Basford said in a statement.

"It will also be valuable in the development of future legislation respecting mergers."

OUTLINES NEW MOVE

Mr. Henry reported that a new practice of the branch, encouraging businessmen to discuss moves that might be in conflict with the act before committing themselves, has worked out well. The practice will be continued and intensified.

The anti-combines branch has made a fresh study of court findings on the question of what industries are exempt from the act's coverage. The act covers industries producing goods which may be the subject of trade and commerce.

One court has ruled that the rental of clean linen towels, uniforms and related products, is covered by the act, while another court has ruled that firms contracting for road surfacing are not covered.

Most service industries are not covered by the act, despite their growing importance in relation to the gross national product, Mr. Basford said.

The anti-combines branch's findings after studying the court decisions have been sent to the Economic Council of Canada for its use in preparing a report on competition policy.

At the Vancouver Public Aquarium over 100 striped sea perch were born during the summer of 1968. Both mothers and young are on display.

FOUND dead in his country home was night club entertainer Robin Douglas-Home, 36, nephew of former British prime minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home. The entertainer lived at West Chiltington.

'Not Reluctant To Any Change'

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Tuesday re-emphasized that he has an open mind on the radical transformations proposed by the Wootton Royal Commission Report on automobile insurance.

He said no group has outlined its reactions to him yet although he had noted press reports indicating differing opinions among individual lawyers regarding the radical change proposing prohibition of lawsuits to determine financial responsibility for a traffic accident based on apportionment of blame.

The commission also recommended scrapping of the third-party liability system of insuring a car owner against claims for damages in favor of a compulsory self-insurance plan for drivers to cover their households for traffic accident losses.

Asked for his personal views after reading some of the general reaction, Mr. Peterson declined to discuss the Wootton report specifically but declared himself "not reluctant to the idea of change or innovation."

He said government should "not be bound by traditional concepts in meeting the problems that confront us in the latter half of the 20th century" but neither should it rush headlong into change for its own sake.

FOR CENTRE

Women's View Needed

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

I am surprised and more than a little disappointed that Victoria's Mayor Hugh Stephen has not included a woman on the civic auditorium-convention centre committee he named last week.

Representation has been given to the Chamber of Commerce, arts council, labor, business and to the city's community services. In each case a well-qualified man was chosen.

* * *

What I do regret is that Mayor Stephen has failed to recognize that women are as interested as men in seeing a functional, well-planned auditorium-convention centre erected in Victoria. Or that in planning such an important community project the combined thinking of men and women could produce ideas that assure a high degree of success.

Women will use this centre frequently. They will bring conventions to its auditoriums. They will stage community gatherings just as often (if not more often) than the men.

Why then are women not asked to have a voice on this advisory committee?

In this year, five of the 50 conventions booked in at the Empress Hotel were women's gatherings. Some of the largest conventions held in the hotel have been organized by women.

It is conceivable that with an auditorium-convention centre even more women's national and international groups would choose Victoria for their meetings.

* * *

When they do it will be women who handle the program planning and the over-all arrangements. Not men.

In announcing names for the new committee Mayor Stephen said the men chosen would advise city council on features that should be built into the facility to ensure maximum community use.

He pointed out that for most of the year the centre would be available and used for community affairs. And he wanted to be sure, he said, that the complex incorporated all the design features necessary to this community role.

The mayor must know that some of the most successful community affairs in this city have been organized by women.

He must also know that women are expert at planning housekeeping details whether in a home or a community complex. That in many instances they see and point to important details that men, in their zeal for the over-all plan, completely overlook.

* * *

Finally, he must know there are women in Victoria well qualified to be named to this citizens' committee charged with the work of ironing out details on design of the proposed auditorium-convention centre at the rear of the Empress Hotel.

If he does not know them by name then he need only get in touch with any of the active women's groups in the city and he will be given many names from which to choose.

Why have all these facts been ignored? Why hasn't a woman been named to this new advisory committee?

Surely it is not because Victoria's very fine mayor does not believe women have a place in the important work of community planning.

I prefer to think (and it does seem more logical) that during the time he was considering names for this new committee, he may have had a temporary lapse of memory.

Mother Charged With Infanticide

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Brenda Ann Ruscitti, 22, of nearby Pickering, Tuesday was committed for trial on three charges of infanticide in the deaths of three of her young children.

Mrs. Ruscitti will appear Oct. 21.

Charged last May and held in custody since then at Toronto's Clarke Institute of Psychiatry, she elected to be tried by judge alone when she appeared at the preliminary hearing.

Two of the infants died in 1964 and another one last May 3.

Mrs. Ruscitti has two other children.

'Merger Plans Must Cut Taxes'

NORTH COWICHAN — Ald. John Cannon says he will not support the merging of the north and south ends of North Cowichan for recreational purposes unless it reduced the taxes in the south.

He and fellow aldermen Dennis Hogan and Tom Burge had convened a special press conference to refute criticism of the merging bylaw.

Mr. Cannon said he supported the merging clause being in the bylaw specifically so the south end would not be alienated from the industrial assessment at Crofton and Chemainus.

He said in regard to the $850,000 recreation bylaw to be voted upon Oct. 26 by the south end, Duncan and unorganized area ratepayers: "If the north and south end municipal recreation bylaws are merged it will reduce the tax load in the south."

At present the heavy industrial assessment of Crofton and Chemainus mills is only supporting the ice arena at Fullers Lake, Chemainus.

Ald. Hogan said: "There must be a parity in taxes between the two areas of the municipality before I go along with the bylaw (which is for a swimming pool and community centre building at Pioneer Park, Duncan)."

Mr. Burge said the alternatives to passing the bylaw are "dull and disturbing."

MAN CHARGED IN SHOOTING

DUNCAN — A Duncan man was charged with attempted murder Tuesday, the aftermath of a Saturday shooting affray.

Zookeeper Jim Oyen, 41, who was arrested at his home, was charged with attempting to shoot his wife Tosca. She was unhurt, police said.

Oyen was released on bail of two sureties of $500 each after being refused a 30-day remand for psychiatric examination.

Oyen was arrested at his trailer home about 8 P.M. Saturday after Duncan RCMP had been called to settle a quarrel.

Five shots from a .22 rifle had been fired inside the trailer but no one was hit.

A Dutch-born couple, the Oyens have lived in Canada 12 years and have operated Duncan Zoo for 10 years.

Additional Arrests Possible Say RCMP

LADYSMITH — There is a possibility of further arrests following a riot early Monday at Cassidy Drive-In Theatre, RCMP said today.

Sgt. Ken Sutherland said his detachment has received "certain information" regarding the dynamiting of the theatre screen and this is being followed up.

He said the police had word via "the grapevine" a few hours before the dynamite blast that it was likely to happen.

Sgt. Sutherland said: "We were told nothing would happen until after the show and we were prepared to take action but the blast went off an hour before the end of the second film."

He said the prior information about the possible dynamiting came from Nanaimo.

Sgt. Sutherland said his detachment has also heard several weeks ago threats that the threatre was to be burned Sunday night.

But he said: "There's nothing to burn except possibly the screen."

RARE COINS RECOVERED

NANAIMO (CP) — Two 15-year-old New Westminster boys were arrested Sunday after a break-in at Nanaimo's Bastion, an historic landmark, and theft of a $4,000 coin collection. The coins dated back to 1690.

The coins were recovered by the RCMP when the arrests were made in Nanaimo.

New Cowichan Air Strip Planned; $30,000 Federal Aid Anticipated

DUNCAN — Cowichan Airport Society is to build a new airstrip, and expects to get $30,000 assistance from the federal department of transport.

But in order to qualify for such a grant the request must come from a local authority.

Tuesday evening Duncan city council approved the idea in principle but referred it to the Cowichan Regional District Board for further action.

Mr. Walkey said the present strip at Glenora is inadequate to meet DOT standards because of the short runway and the fact that it is plagued by crosswinds.

CROWN LAND

He said: "Land for airport development is becoming almost impossible to find but we have located this piece of crown land at Deerholme.

"The department will assist us financially if we can get a body such as the city council to undertake to supervise the airport operation as a public service."

Mr. Walkey said the provincial lands department has said there are 80 acres availabe at the Vaux Road site at the nominal charge of $5 per acre a year.

He said the deputy minister of lands feels the airport should come under the authority of the regional district.

Mr. Walkey said: "The present airport is operating successfully and this new site could be even more successful."

Society flying instructor Cliff Hatch said only 50 to 55 acres would be required initially and the rest of the acres could be held on first refusal.

IDEAL LENGTH

He said there is ideal length and direction at the new site, and the department was willing to negotiate and swap land with neighbouring MacMillan, Bloedel Ltd. to get a required extra 400 foot strip for widening.

Mr. Hatch said the airstrip could be sub-leased to the society which would manage and operate it and contribute financially.

He said a $30,000 grant was anticipated because this was the smallest sum ever given by the department towards the establishment of a new airport in B.C.

The local society spent $3,000 and put in $7,000 worth of volunteer labor developing the present Glenora strip.

Mayor Jim Quaife said Tuesday: "There is no doubt in my mind, your previous efforts provided an asset to the district and we wish you luck with his new venture."

POLICE SEEK OLD WOODEN CROSS

By ED GOULD

GANGES — RCMP here have asked for assistance in tracing an old wooden cross which once stood over the grave of Private J. L. Price, the last Canadian soldier to be killed in the First World War.

The wooden marker, from a military cemetery near Mons, France was replaced with a permanent monument and sent to the soldier's parents who once lived on St. Mary Lake, Salt Spring Island.

The cross has disappeared from a barn on the former Price property now owned by Ken Byron, a soldier in the Canadian forces.

Mr. Byron is away from the property for long periods and has reported repeated vandalism from his home and outbuildings.

He said he did not realize the significance of the cross left behind by the Price's until he read about it in The Legionary, magazine of the Canadian Legion.

Colonel Strome Galloway, now serving in Germany, explained in a letter to the magazine that the cemetery near Mons contains the graves of Lt. Martin Dease, V.C., the first British soldier to die in the First World War, and Private Price, the last to die.

Lt. Dease died August 23, 1914 and Private price was killed at 10:58, November 11, 1918, two minutes before the Armistice took effect.

The RCMP have suggested the cross may have been removed from the barn by children and either destroyed or abandoned in nearby bushland. They are continuing an investigation.

The cross bears the name and identity of the soldier it commemorated, Mr. Bryon said he is interested in recovering it to donate to the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

"I am also interested in hearing from any readers who might know more about Private Price," he said.

Experts To Discuss Sewerage

A battery of experts has been lined up for a series of seven seminars which begins tonight to probe local waste disposal problems.

The adult education division of the Greater Victoria school board has organized the seminars under the title "You and Your Environment. "They will be held Wednesday from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Ewing Building common room at Lansdowne and Richmond. Fee for the seven sessions is $7.

Tonight's session will have Saanich municipal engineer N. W. Lile background Greater Victoria's waste disposal problems—what has gone on in the past, what is being done now and what is planned for the future.

John Priestman, consulting engineer with Ker, Priestman and Graeme Eng. Ltd., will talk about the sanitary sewage study for greater Victoria.

Future speakers include government officials, professors, lawyers and economists and they will deal with health hazards, alternative disposal methods and the economies of the problems among other jubjects.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

No woman can resist a good bargain. The best bargains in town this week can be found at the War Amputations Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue, on Thursday and Friday, from 1:30 to 9 p.m. Not only will you be able to choose from a selection of the most attractive craftwork available, you'll also be buying the dividends of joy and accomplishment for 54 of the city's disabled.

In case you haven't already guessed, these are the two days that the Arbutus Crafts for the Disabled will be holding their annual sale, at which they sell the items which the handicapped make at the centre on Vancouver Street.

The centre was a hive of activity when I visited it this week, with every staff member, volunteer and disabled user hurrying to finish articles for the sale. The wind was chilly outside but was quickly forgotten as you relished the warmth of friendship and self-satisfaction which shone in the faces of those at the tables. You don't have to be disabled to enjoy the therapy which the centre emanates.

Days of School Concerts Recalled

The excitement of the coming sale was akin to that felt by a youngster facing his first school concert. It was also infectious. I found myself as enthusiastic as the others as I viewed the articles to be sold.

In one section, teams of four packed and rolled some of the most colorful Christmas crackers to ever grace a table.

Every item in them, the wrappers and seasonal corsages have been made at the centre. This is the third year the centre has offered them for sale. You can easily see why. They're beautiful.

Weaving of every description was being readied for the Big Days. There were mats, tea cosies, oven holders, woolen scarfs and many other items. Silk-screened Christmas cards and nativity creches, complete with tiny free-mold ceramic figures, vied for attention. Basketry of every description, hooked rugs and woodwork were there in abundance.

About 40 to 50 volunteers assist the four staff members who are administrator Bob Knight, wood worker supervisor Peter Jonge, craft supervisor Mrs. Alastair Smillie and part-time occupational therapist Mrs. Dennis Davis.

Not on the official pay roll, but, perhaps more important than anyone is Mrs. Alan Sutton. It was she who 'sparkplugged' the whole conception of the centre several years ago. Today, she works as hard as anyone to make the centre a fulfilling and happy pivot around which many a disabled person's life revolves.

She explains how she was inspired to start the centre. "I first became interested when my husband, as executive director of the Polio Foundation, initiated swimming classes for the handicapped at Naden's pool. I met so many of them and realized that they lived lonely lives, often with nothing to do, and very few friends."

The first classes were held in the basement of her home, and, as the response grew, Mrs. Sutton moved them to the Oak Bay Guide Hall, enlisting the help of the Oak Bay Kiwaniannes as volunteers.

Came of Age in 1964

Then followed a year on Head Street, and finally the centre moved into its present location in November 1964. At the same time, the Arbutus Crafts Association was formed.

The Rehabilitation Foundation finances most of the centre's operation. But funds are needed to pay transportation costs of the bus which carries disabled enthusiasts to and from the centre from Monday to Friday. Money is also needed to pay the cost of materials. Any difference (profit) is given to those who made the articles for this week's sale.

Volunteers and centre users will be on hand Thursday and Friday to act as annual salesmen and also give demonstrations of basketry, cracker-making, silk screening, weaving and tile creation. As I said before, you'll get double value for every penny you spend.

And, if you really want to receive a bonus to beat all bonuses, you can make the best buy of your life by phoning the centre at 385-0445 to volunteer to drive users to and from the centre, or help them at the place which has given so many of them a fuller life than they ever hoped to have. Chances are, if you do this, you'll end up gaining more than they do.

Klondike Night Planned

The badminton hall of the Racquet Club of Victoria will be gay with life-size cartoons of Klondike characters this Saturday when the Racquettes (the club's Ladies' Auxiliary) sponsors a Klondike Night. Many of the guests and all of the committee members will be in appropriate costumes. There will be games of chance, dancing to the music of pianist Tommy Tucker and banjo player Orville Speed, and refreshments will be served. Mrs. E. L. Jones and Mrs. G. R. Bell are convening the event. Mr. Doug Hawkes is in charge of the games, Miss Heather Telfer is in charge of tickets, and decorations are being arranged by Mrs. L. Anderson. Refreshments will be made by the club's chef, James Kostourus. A large crowd is expected to attend the affair, which is the first social event of the new season.

ORIENTAL FLAVOR ADDED TO SCHOOL FAIR

Some of the customers who will attend the annual fun fair of St. Margaret's School may expect to sample baking with an Oriental touch. These four students, all from Hong Kong, are among the many preparing for Saturday's event, which will be held at the school on Fort Street from 2 to 5 p.m. Left to right, they are Margaret Wong, Mena Wu, Winnie Ng and Charlotte Wong. Mrs. George R. Pearkes, an "old girl" of the school, will officiate at the opening. The Teacup Trio will provide background music in the tearoom.

Africans Slow to Appreciate Value of Preserving Wildlife

Dr. John Bristol Foster told the Women's Canadian Club at their luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel Friday that the African has a closed mind toward wildlife ecology.

The assistant director of the Provincial Museum, who has recently returned from the University College in Nairobi where he was a lecturer said that this made his position there an "anomaly."

"I had 16 graduate students but none was African. Yet I was sent 7,000 miles to teach Africans the importance of wildlife ecology."

There are two reasons for this, he said. First, an African, once he has his bachelor of science degree can get a good job. He doesn't need further training.

Secondly, there is an African tradition of opposition to wildlife. The elephant and water buffalo must be chased away from the crops; they have more of a nuisance value than anything else. This gives wildlife studies a low status and graduate students would rather enter the fields of political science or medicine.

TOURIST ATTRACTION

"But Africans are protecting their natural parks very well, better than in British Columbia," he said. "This is because the politicians realize that tourism is East Africa's number two economic asset, and that the tourists are coming not so much to see scenery as to see animals."

This picture is changing as young African students are taken into the field to study how plants and animals interact. An American group, African Wildlife Leadership Organization, is sending busses of young children into the natural parks. "But it should have been done 30 years ago," said Dr. Foster.

While East Africa is a protein-poor country, there are "too many cattle" and a great number of game animals. This irony results from the taboos of the tribes, many of which consider cattle as status symbols to be milked and bled, but not killed for food. Other taboos prevent certain tribes from eating some kinds of game.

Dr. Foster discussed a program of cropping game animals which he says is "hardly off the ground." This program consists of killing certain numbers of game animals, for instance hippopotami, and selling the meat to the tribesmen. Some of the problems are transportation and storage of meat in the hot climate.

Disease is another problem. The game animals are immune to most of the diseases but cattle are still susceptible. Attempts by veterinarians to train the natives in herd hygiene often fail.

Dr. Foster said that the increased Africanization of East Africa is causing a decrease in efficiency. He suggested that while 10 years ago there was no university, in another 10 years the work he was doing might be impossible because of a lack of efficiency.

For those who might find themselves travelling to Nairobi, Mr. Foster had some encouraging words.

In five years, he said, he saw only about five snakes. "The Africans have been killing snakes for hundreds of years. Only the fast ones got away."

Lions, he reported, were usually too bored with people to open their eyes for photographs. Cheetahs aren't afraid of cars, but run from people.

There are incidents, "but they are famous because they are so rare."

The housewife would have fewer machines in her house, "but she would have three or four African servants working for $1 a day."

The climate, he said, was ideal. "Nairobi is one of the most fascinating spots in the world to live."

JUDY RESIGNS FROM NEW JOB

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Judy LaMarsh, former secretary of state, announced Tuesday that she has resigned as president of House of Harper Ltd., a city cosmetic firm. Miss LaMarsh said the resignation was effective Oct. 11. "After two weeks I decided this was not the place for me," she said, declining to elaborate.

Add Money-Making Project To Group's Annual Program

The Esquimalt Chapter, IODE, decided to make its rummage sale an annual event when the members met recently in the board room of Eaton's.

The sum of $85.32 was realized at a rummage sale and home-baking sale held in September.

A coffee party held early this month raised $185.16. The affair was held in the home of Mrs. J. A. Charles, Admiral's House, HMC Dockyard. A door prize and a decorated fruit cake were offered as prizes.

Letters of thanks were received from the Victorian Order of Nurses and from Goodwill Enterprises for assistance given by the chapter.

Education secretary Mrs. Lance Hall reported that Roy McVie of Esquimalt Secondary School was presented with a municipal bursary at the recent bursary tea and that the chapter will increase its donation to the municipal bursary from $75 to $100.

COMMUNITY WORK

Mrs. J. A. Brown, secretary for services at home and abroad, reported that during September flowers had been placed on the Esquimalt Cross of Sacrifice five times and that members gave 36 hours of service to the Red Cross Lodge at Veterans' Hospital.

Mrs. Brown will represent the chapter in placing the wreath on the Cross of Sacrifice Monday, November 11.

An afghan in pastel colors made for an elderly lady was displayed by Mrs. T. G. Clarke.

The work and philosophy of the Crimes Compensation Boards established in Saskatchewan and Newfoundland were described by Mrs. L. E. Callard, world affairs convener.

Mrs. J. Bryant was appointed standard bearer.

Regent Mrs. W. R. Jeffs announced a workshop will be held in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria this Saturday. R. R. Jeffels, dean of student affairs at the University of Victoria, will speak on unrest in universities today at one of the sessions.

CLUB CALENDAR

Workshop, Municipal Chapter IODE, Saturday, 10 a.m. at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. Open to all IODE members.

New Cleaner for Concrete Floors

By PENNY SAVER

This year the Saver winter works program is going to concentrate on the basement and garage areas. Over the years the sturdy cement floors of these areas have seen a series of pets and messy projects. Anything that might mar the floors and carpets of the upstairs has been relegated to one or the other so it is no surprise that the once-spotless cement floor is now stained and generally grubby. Now the dog is trained and the children older my husband had decided that it would be a good time to finish the basement. This consists of panelling the walls, painting the floor, and fitting out a room for unexpected guests or quiet contemplation. The garage, meanwhile, will be fitted to take the garden tools that now rest in the corner of the basement.

The first step in all his plans is the painting of the floor. This, he assures me, will keep down the dust even if the rest of the improvements never materialize. Before he can paint the floor, however, he has to give it a thorough cleaning. For this he is going to try a new product that is produced locally. It is a concrete cleaner for carports, patios or basements. More than anything, it reminds me of a carpet cleaner. The concrete area to be cleaned is hosed down then the cleaning compound sprinkled on liberally. It is then left for 15 or 20 minutes before being scrubbed off with water. This cleaner has a good antiseptic smell that reminds me of such clean places as hospitals and dentists' offices. A three-pound bag costing $2.49 is enough to clean approximately 300 square feet of concrete.

Tape Foils Curling Carpets

Curling carpets are a danger to health as well as an eyesore. I have fought for years with a carpet that is determined to curl. I have tried wedging the edges down with heavy furniture, but the shape of the room makes it impossible to hold down every edge this way without making the furniture as much of a hazard as the curling carpet. I didn't want to resort to carpet tacks unless I had to, but I was beginning to think this was the only way. I was, in fact, shopping for carpet tacks when I found a tape that would solve my problem with half the fuss. This tape is gummed on both sides. I ran a strip along each edge of the carpet then removed the backing and stuck it to the floor. The gum won't harm the floor the way tacks would, but it does keep my carpet from curling. A $1.19 roll was enough for my average-sized carpet.

When Mathilda went searching for a carpet she found just the pattern she wanted. Unfortunately it only came in hall-runner widths. She bought as much as she needed anyway and made it wide enough for her room by splicing the strips together. To do this she used a fabric tape that is 90 cents for a 15-foot roll. It is a wide tape in dark neutral green color. She found that what was left over could be used to mend other older carpets or even the torn spines of books that were threatening to fall apart.

Please call 382-3131 if you would like to know where to shop for these items.

DEAR ABBY . . .

No Such Thing as 'Must' Marriage

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our 20-year-old son has just told us that he must quickly marry the little girl with whom he has gone steady since high school. She is 19. They are both in college and hope to graduate. Of course our hearts are broken, but what can we do?

Abby, the girl is really a sweet child, and she has adored our son for years. Our boy has never been in any kind of trouble, and we have always been so proud of him.

Since this has come up so suddenly everyone suspects it is a "have to" wedding, so I am not going to deny it and look foolish seven months from now.

What do I say when people "congratulate" me, and kiddingly call me "Grandma?" Some have even tried to "comfort" me with stories of how they've had "have to" marriages in their families and things have worked out well. I am terribly hurt and don't know how I should act. Can you help me?

"GRANDMA" (SOON)

DEAR GRANDMA: To all congratulations, say "thank you." There is no such thing as a "have to" marriage. Every day pregnant girls are being deserted by bums who refuse to accept the responsibilities of marriage and a baby. No law in the land can "force" a man to marry a girl. If he marries her, it's because he wants to, not because he has to, so hold your head up, Grandma.

DEAR ABBY: I am 32, happily married to a wonderful man, and have three beautiful, healthy children. So what's my problem? My figure! I look good in my clothes, but without clothes I look like a tribeswoman of 71—thanks to having nursed three babies and the natural sagginess that comes with added years. Hasn't plastic surgery come up with anything new in breast surgery?

I asked my gynecologist about those silicone shots, and he said it was dangerous and against the law in this country, and if I even considered such a thing he would refuse me as a patient.

Abby, isn't there any hope for those of us who feel repulsive compared to those gorgeous, full-bosomed girls we see in the ads?

FLAT IN ATLANTA

DEAR FLAT: You're 32, happily married to a wonderful man, and have three beautiful, healthy children, so count your blessings, and subtract two. I agree with your gynecologist.

DEAR ABBY: I want to say something to that 14-year-old girl who "hated" her mother because she always nagged at her about her hair, her make-up, and her friends.

Well, I am 15-year-old girl who had the opposite problem. My mother never cared what I did or where I went. At seven years old I was out roaming the streets at midnight; and when I came home, nobody even asked me where I had been. I stole things out of stores, I lied, and did a lot of things I'm now ashamed of. I was never corrected or spanked or even bawled out.

My mother finally had a nervous breakdown, and I was sent from one foster home to another. I wasn't used to being corrected, so I'd keep running away. I am writing from a foster home now. It took a while for me to realize that my foster mother corrects me and punishes me when I do wrong because she loves me and wants to teach me right from wrong. I would rather live here than with my real parents, but I still love them.

Local Chapter To Hold Event

Queen City Chapter No. 5, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a bazaar and tea on Saturday, Oct. 26, in the K of P Hall, Cormorant Street. The event will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. and will feature stalls of Christmas gifts, novelties, toys, knitted baby wear, home cooking, delicatessen items, home produce, white elephants, candy and raffles.

Bingo will be played. Tea will be provided by the chapter's past matrons' club.

The local chapter supports the Order's Grand Chapter in providing cancer dressing stations, and the thousands of dressings needed throughout the province. It also contributes to cancer research.

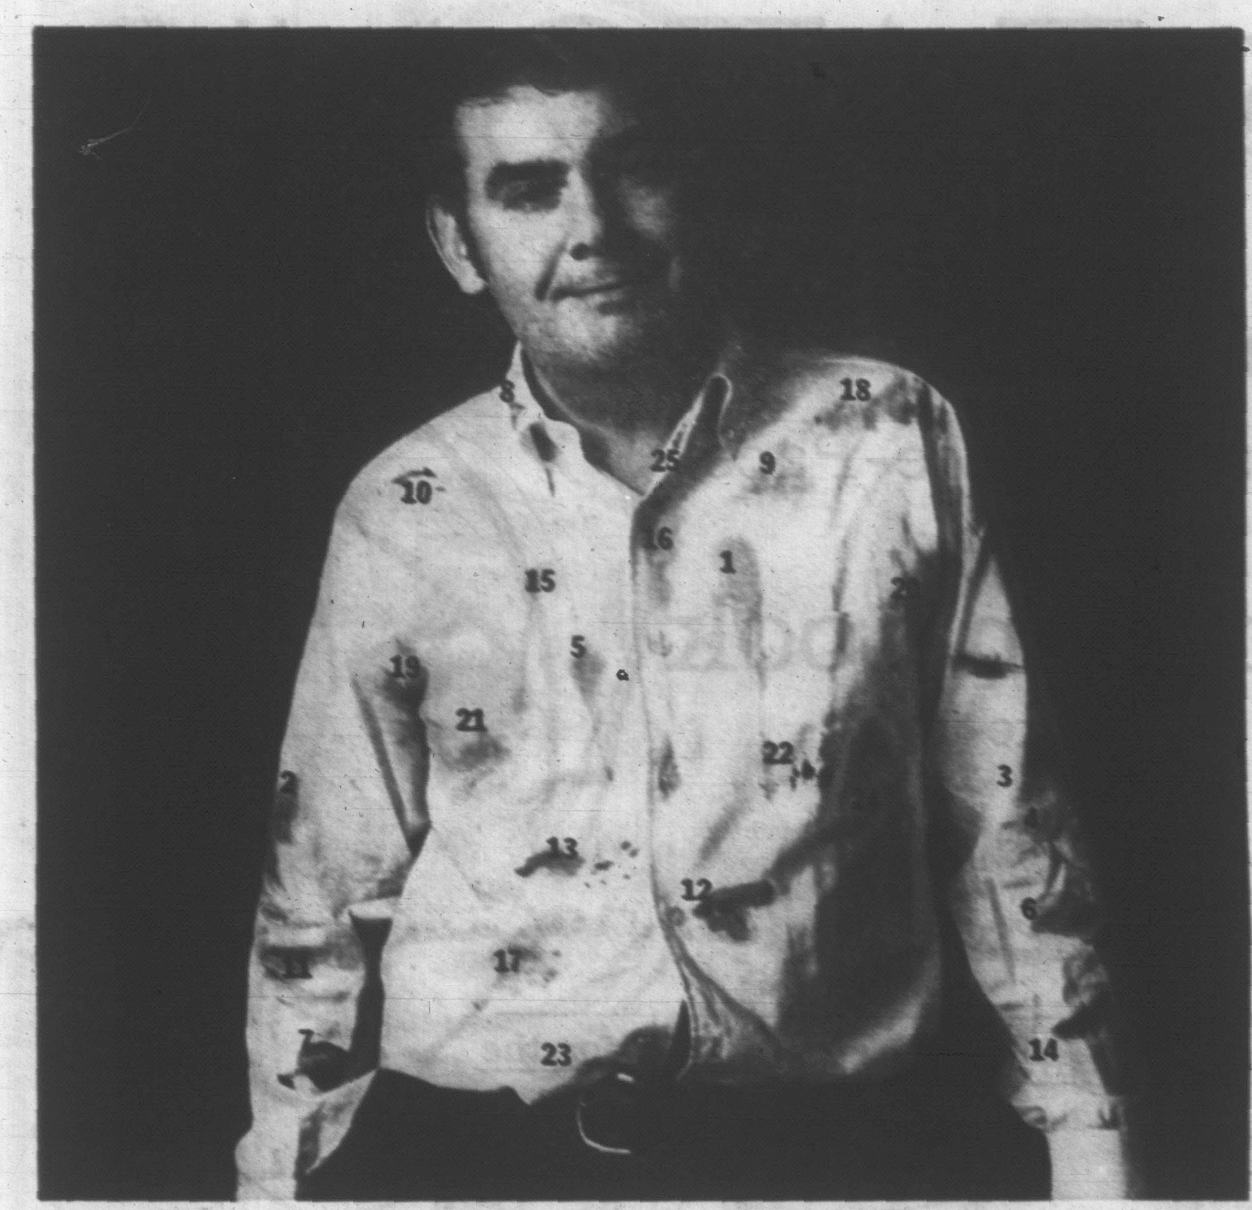
25 stains that are waiting to defeat you.

These are the Aggravators. The tough stains that make you want to cry. ‘Javex’® Bleach gets rid of 15 of them without soaking! The nastiest soak out in minutes. Read why no woman can risk a wash without ‘Javex’ Bleach.



‘Javex’ safely removes more different kinds of stains than any other stain remover you can buy. It doesn’t just cover stains, it actually removes them by taking apart their complex chemical structures. But ‘Javex’ is so safe it can’t damage fabrics used as directed.

Maybe it will surprise you, but 3/4 cup of ‘Javex’ mixed in your regular wash will get rid of 15 of the Aggravators without one minute of pre-soaking!

1 Coffee. Even with cream and sugar. Part greasy, part non-greasy. ‘Javex’ in your wash cleans it out. No soak!

2-4 Grass, Flower, Foliage Stains. Launder with ‘Javex’. If they’re on the knees of durable-press slacks, test the fabric for safety in ‘Javex’. Some of the less expensive kind will yellow in bleach. See the test below.

7 Catsup. Your regular ‘Javex’ wash will get it out when it’s fresh. If it’s dry—soak it.

9 Cosmetics. Most of the time, they’ll come out in the wash. If any stains remain, soak a few minutes in 1 oz. of ‘Javex’ and a quart of warm water.

11 Mayonnaise. Launder with ‘Javex’ and get rid of the stain and the bacteria in it. (20,000 bacteria may live in 1 square inch of freshly laundered fabric! Many actually digest cotton!)

12 Mustard. Before it dries, remove it with ‘Javex’ in your regular laundry. Set, it’ll take soaking.

14 Shoe Polish. ‘Javex’ in your laundry. Safe for cotton, synthetics and some permanent-press, but not wool socks.

So much for the Aggravators that need no soaking. What about the real toughies? Make this solution: 1 oz. of ‘Javex’ Bleach and 1 qt. of warm water and soak the following stains for 5 to 15 minutes.

18 Dyes. On white or colour-fast fabrics, soak out in ‘Javex’. Repeat if needed. But you won’t have to stretch washday into two days with a tiresome overnight soak.

21 Blueing. Why use it? ‘Javex’ removes the dull gray that deadens whites. Blueing covers it up. If you have a blueing stain, use the ‘Javex’ soak.

24 Scorch. Heavy scorch cannot be taken out. Most light scorch will come out in ‘Javex’. Try several times.

25 Blood. When fresh, cold water will flush it out. Follow up with the ‘Javex’ soak to clean out any residue.

If you’re not sure about the colour-fastness or the safety of fabric: mix 1 tsp. of ‘Javex’ Bleach in 1 cup of warm water. Apply some to an unseen area. If it does not discolour or turn yellow in about 5 minutes the colours and the fabric are safe in ‘Javex’ Bleach. Safe for stain removal. Safe for laundering every time. So start getting everything you can out of ‘Javex’.

Mammoth Bazaar Realizes Sum of $720

A resting 'hen' centred the head table when the Ladies' Auxiliary, Britannia Branch No. 7, Royal Canadian Legion, held its annual bazaar Saturday in the auditorium on Blanshard Street.

Each of the smaller tables was centred by a pair of 'chicks' nestled in blue and yellow net. All the decorations were designed and made by Mrs. M. Stewart.

Mrs. T. Clements, wife of the Victoria District zone commander opened the affair which raised $720. Convener was Mrs. G. Rabey and Mrs. D. McCulloch was co-convener.

The bazaar began with a cold-plate luncheon. Seated at the head table were Mrs. Clements, Mrs. Rabey, Mrs. McCulloch, Mrs. H. F. Jarvis, zone representative, Pacific Command; Mrs. I. Aitchison, auxiliary president; Mrs. W. Kane, wife of the branch manager; Mrs. M. Kendrew, honorary auxiliary president; Mrs. P. Darley, president of Prince Edward Branch Ladies' Auxiliary, Langford; and Mrs. T. Clark, president of Trafalgar Branch Ladies' Auxiliary.

Tea was served in the afternoon.

The members began working in March to make the items that filled the stalls. In charge of the fancywork were Mrs. E. Elliott, Mrs. M Guyatt, Mrs. I. Alexander and Mrs. R. Robinson.

STALL CONVENERS

Miss J. Barr and Mrs. A. McLeod manned the apron stall while Mrs. L. Sidston, Mrs. G. Shubrook and Mrs. A. Hadfield sold knitted items.

A popular home cooking stall was convened by Mrs. E. Smith and Mrs. M. Thewlis. The penny stall was directed by Mrs. M. Kendrew, Mrs. M. Wallis and Mrs. N. Holroyd, while Mrs. E. Fletcher and Mrs. S. McNab were in charge of the miscellaneous stall.

For the children there was a fish pond run by Mrs. V. Beckley, Mrs. M. Jackson and Mrs. M. Hamp, while garden-minded adults patronized the plants and flowers stall run by Mrs. E. Newton and Mrs. M. Mitchell.

Mrs. M. Kamann and Mrs. E. Winter were in charge of a grocery raffle while Mrs. E. Bullough sold tickets on the tombola.

Doll lovers bought tickets on a doll raffle. Mrs. I. Percival donated the doll and gave her a wardrobe filled with coats, hats, dresses and pantsuits, all sewn or knitted by hand.

Mrs. J. McMillan was in charge of the luncheon and tea arrangements.

Helping her were Mrs. D. Fisher, Mrs. G. Radbourne, Mrs. M. Rodseth, Mrs. M. Middleton, Mrs. P. Pierini and Mrs. A. Pellow.

Door receipts were handled by Miss M. Rhodes and Mrs. C. Forgues.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Consider Proper Fit First In Your Undergarments

Lowman

Of course the best way to have a lovely silhouette is to have a naturally good figure, without rolls of fat or slumping muscles, but never underestimate the importance of undergarments! These can improve even a good figure and can make a mediocre one appear stunning.

Today there is such a great variety in girdles and brassieres. There is the high-rise girdle and the long-line bra. Both slim the waistline. Then there is the all-in-one foundation which has been popular for a long time.

Since the current fashions allow the waistline to appear again as a part of the feminine anatomy, a woman cannot afford that roll over the girdle or a too-full diaphragm. While you are working to improve your figure, the right brassiere and the right girdle can make you happier than a candystick on a Christmas tree should.

Choose your bra and girdle or foundation carefully. If it is available, get expert advice. An experienced saleswoman in that department will take your measurements and give you intelligent guidance. Be sure to try several types (not saleswomen but girdles and brassieres). While trying one on sit when wearing it as well as stand and walk.

The bra-slip has been around for some time, but today it has adapted to the modern trend, and there are so many different kinds of bra-slips. Some are shaped to the body with a long-line stretch of elastic to slim down the middle of you. There are chemise types, starting with the bra or bandeau and shifting to a mini-skirt, straight from the cups.

Bra-slips are sized like brassieres. If you wear a 34B bra, that's your bra-slip size. However, try on more than one style, because designs differ. Wear a bra-slip with a long-line top under a dress that is belted or body-fitted from the bosom to waistline. The chemise type is good when worn under dresses with fairly full skirts.

Skirt length? Bra-slips are available in everything from mini to maxi. It depends on how long or how short you normally wear your skirts.

Here is an exercise to slim your waistline if it needs it. This is really an easy one and will be most effective if you do it correctly. Lie on your back with your arms resting on the floor overhead and your legs straight. Remain in this position as you swing both legs to the left AS FAR AS YOU POSSIBLY CAN, keeping the heels close to the floor and knees stiff. Swing back to place. Now swing them to the right. Continue, alternating.

Foundation garments can only do so much. If you are overweight, the best solution is to shed those extra pounds. Exercise is one of the best methods for doing this. For your free leaflet, "General Reducing Routine," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Conservative Women Arrange Autumn Tea

Mrs. Erie Makowski and Mrs. George Chatterton presided at the head table when the Victoria Women's Progressive Conservative Association held its autumn tea in the Douglas Room of the Bay Tuesday.

The tea table was centred by an arrangment of gold and bronze chrysanthemums flanked by orange candles. Arrangements of fall flowers were on other tables around the room.

Mrs. D. C. F. MacArthur was convener for the affair.

President, Mrs. J. F. Dobson, greeted guests at the door while treasurer, Mrs. A. B. McKinnon, was in charge of door receipts.

A home cooking table was convened by Mrs. A. Ashford assisted by Mrs. D. Cropp. Mrs. M. Arnott was in charge of a white elephant stall.

Helping with the tea arrangements were Mrs. W. C. Baddeley, Mrs. M. Thompson, Mrs. William Ellis, Mrs. H. A. Henderson and Miss Jessie Simson.

Among the guests was Mrs. Robert Pook of Ottawa.

U.S. NAVY Sealab II, looking like a gigantic surrealist tank car, sits on a barge in the naval shipyard at Long Beach, Calif., after a two-day trip from San Francisco. It will be submerged soon off San Clemente Island and during a 60-day experiment, nine-man teams of civilian and navy men will live and work at depths of 600 feet, using the Sealab as a base.

New Tremors Cause Damage In Australia

PERTH (Reuters) — New earth tremors rocked two eastern Australia townships today in a region declared a disaster area Tuesday.

Three tremors early this morning awakened residents who were sleeping in the open and in cars as a result of earlier earthquakes and geologists warned there may be more shocks in the area, 80 miles west of here.

One tremor caused more damage to the only hotel and several houses at Cunderdin, 15 miles from the almost completely-devastated township of Meckering.

Official estimates put earthquake damage in Meckering at about $2,250,000, as bulldozers moved in to clear the wreckage.

Meckering had all but two of its 50 buildings destroyed in tremors Monday which injured 31 persons.

Two more slight tremors were felt Tuesday after the government declared the area in a 10-mile radius of the township a disaster area.

Referendum Set

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Tuesday approved holding a fluoridation referendum Dec. 7 at the time of the annual municipal elections. Councillors did not make a recommendation on the fluoridation issue.

Students Win Larger Role In Control of Art College

TORONTO (CP) — A one-man inquiry into student disturbances last March at the Ontario College of Art has recommended far-reaching reforms in the school's administration to include students and faculty in decision-making positions.

Dr. Douglas Wright, chairman of Ontario's committee on university affairs, recommended in his 23-page report, made public Tuesday, that a new 18-member governing council should include nine members from the public at large, six from the faculty and three students.

Sydney Watson, art college principal, termed the report a "truly democratic distribution of responsibility" and said he would start immediately to introduce some reforms which do not need legislature approval.

Jeffery Fear, 22, president of the college's students' administrative council, said Dr. Wright seemed to agree with students in their contention that "participation by students . . . in all the decision-making processes of such an institution of higher learning is vital to its well being."

However, Mr. Fear said, the report would give the president the deciding vote if the nine faculty and student council members joined forces against the nine lay members.

Dr. Wright, 40, former dean of engineering at the University of Waterloo, prepared the report for Education Minister William Davis, who requested the study last March 27, after an eight-day student sit-in protesting the firing of two instructors.

Mr. Davis personally intervened to reinstate the two instructors, Aba Bayefsky and Eric Freifeld, who were fired after they had publicly supported students demonstrating against proposed curriculum changes.

In the report, Dr. Wright rejected the traditional Canadian pattern for university government of a board of governors and senate in favor of a single council.

U.K. Will Ban War Agitators

LONDON (AP) — The government today banned all foreign agitators from entering Britain for an anti-Vietnam demonstration Oct. 27, officials said.

Diplomatic missions in London have been told their citizens arrested during the mass protest match would be dealt with harshly.

The informants said immigration officials at entry posts have been advised of the ban and will be sent a list of students and others with records of violence. The list was compiled by Scotland Yard with the help of foreign police forces and Interpol, the international police organization.

British police prepared to meet what may be the most violent and massive demonstration against the Vietnamese war and the United States.

All leaves have been cancelled for the 6,000 police in the metropolitan area despite appeals from some organizers of the protest demonstration to "keep the cops away."

A host of leftist groups and organizations, some strongly opposed to each other, are taking part.

U.S. Transplant Dies, After Living 5 Months

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Doctors blamed apparent rejection of his transplanted heart for the death Monday night of Louis J. Fierro, 54, of Elmont, N.Y.

A St. Luke's Episcopal hospital spokesman said Fierro suffered a cardiac arrest and efforts to revive him were unavailing.

Surgeons transferred the heart of a teenager who died of a brain hemorrhage into Fierro's chest May 21. He was able to leave the hospital July 29 and went back to work here Aug. 13.

He and fellow heart transplant patient Everett C. Thomas, 47, of Phoenix, Ariz., both returned to St. Luke's last week, however, with what the hospital described as symptoms of rejection. A medical bulletin said these included a rapid pulse rate and low blood pressure.

Thomas remains in serious condition, the hospital said.

Fierro was the 15th among the 58 persons receiving heart transplants around the world. Twenty-seven now survive,

Red China Withdrawing Labor Force

HONG KONG (AP) — China has begun withdrawing some of the more than 50,000 labor troops sent into North Vietnam during the U.S. bombing campaign, qualified sources reported Tuesday.

The initial withdrawals were reported relatively small.

The labor troops worked mainly in the port of Haiphong, along the vital northeast rail and road lines from Hanoi to China and on the coastal highway network stretching south from Hanoi to the Mu Gia Pass, which enters Laos.

These worker troops were in addition to technical experts and the Chinese military forces which provided much of the muscle for Hanoi's air defence command. The strictly military men presumably are still on the scene.

Intelligence sources are unsure exactly when the withdrawal of labor forces began. Evidence of the move came into Western hands in the last few weeks.

REPAIRING DAMAGE

Since President Johnson ordered the end of U.S. bombing over much of North Vietnam on March 31 the North Vietnamese and the Chinese have been working to get the country's road and rail network back in operation.

This has been achieved along all the major routes, the experts contend.

Qualified observers are hesitant to interpret the withdrawals as evidence of the increasing friction between Hanoi and Peking. Nor is there any evidence that Peking contemplates anything more than relatively small withdrawals at this time.

NEW TOWN OF KIMBERLEY

KIMBERLEY (CP) — Taxpayers in Kimberley, Marysville and Chapman Camp voted overwhelmingly Tuesday in favor of amalgamation.

When the provincial government gives final authorization, British Columbia will have a new city of about 8,000 persons, to be known as Kimberley.

The vote Tuesday was 1,358 in favor, 246 against. A 60-per-cent majority was needed and the actual count was 84.6 per cent.

More Autonomy Aim of Indians

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Delegates representing 33 northern British Columbia Indian bands voted unanimously Tuesday for the power to control their destiny.

"The band councils should run their own affairs, especially in conducting business such as land leases," said Chief Nicolas Prince of the Nescoslie Band.

"Today, if a man wants to start a business like that, he has to wait and wait, sometimes for as long as five months before he gets any action from the government. He may lose his chance forever while he waits."

Delegates at the second day of a five-day hearing set up for B.C. and Yukon Indians by the Indian affairs department decided against drafting the exact wording of the call for more Indian autonomy until further discussions are held.

But they did approve a motion that "ways be found to broaden band council authority."

THREE RESOLUTIONS

Delegates also approved a number of other resolutions, including:

That Indians be allowed the right to put up personal possessions for loans. The lack of this right has long discouraged development on reserves;

That Indians be allowed to obtain a government loan by pledging their land, providing there are firm guarantees that such land would remain under band control;

That Indian bands be allowed the right to borrow money against wages and land-lease income as some Indian bands have done with special permission from the government.

The Indian representative said they have no desire to "opt out" of Canadian affairs, and voted to participate in the Canada Pension Plan.

Saanich Rejects Mount Tolmie Apartment Plan

A $1 million 90-suite apartment project was refused zoning approval by Saanich council Tuesday night.

A move to table a decision was rejected 6-to-2 and the motion to reject the application was approved by the same margin.

The project, planned by Ken Oliver of 3235 Beach Drive, would have been located on 6.62 acres of the old gravel pit at Richmond Road and Mayfair Drive near Mount Tolmie Park.

Twenty-five residents turned out and half of them spoke in opposition. There was no one in favor.

Objections included devaluation of surrounding property, the spreading of apartments, traffic problems, garbage burning, but chiefly that the residents in single-family houses in the area wished the area to remain that way.

Craig Oliver, speaking for the applicant, outlined what some council members called an imaginative plan. The Saanich Advisory Planning Commission said it would be a good land use and compatible with the surrounding area.

The project represented a density of about 14 suites per acre, well below the usual density, with three floors at a height of 27 feet set back into the hillside. Resident parking would be underground.

During the public hearing, Mr. Oliver said there are no plans for selling the property and a mortgage was prepared.

But one resident said the applicant is endeavoring to sell the site for $139,000 through the real estate multiple-listing service and an offer for this amount could not be refused if rezoning went through.

Mr. Oliver said the property was listed in this way, after talks with a mortgage company, to see what its worth could be subject to rezoning. In answer to one question, he said it was not the intention to sell.

Later, Ald. Foster Isherwood said this aspect should form no part of the judgment on the application because "most applicants before us have $100 options and when it is rezoned they put it on multiple listing."

Mr. Oliver told Ald. Alan Newberry the apartments would not allow children in them, to which Mr. Newberry replied "this is not helping our housing situation by keeping them out of apartments and forcing them into ghettoes."

Ald. Edith Gunning, along with Ald. William Campbell, supported rezoning—subject to further consideration of several items—and described the project as the most imaginative brought to council for some time.

Ald. Newberry, along with all other members of council except Mayor Hugh Curtis who was absent, was opposed.

He agreed it was an imaginative proposal "but not for this site," pointing to the hazards of entry and exit together, on a hill, on a scenic drive and near a main road.

Ald. Edward Lum wanted only single-family houses and duplexes and Ald. William Noel said "I somehow doubt the applicant's intention when he has the property listed (for sale) subject to rezoning. You could have someone come in and put up something entirely out of line with this proposal."

Also at the public hearing, council approved a small extension to the Racquet Club of Victoria, 3864 Gordon Head Road, and a doctor's office at 5176 Cordova Bay Road.

U.S. May Use N-Bomb To Prevent Big War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has given NATO allies a detailed outline of how demonstration-type nuclear bursts could be used to show an invading enemy that the West was not afraid to resort to such weapons.

The American document was carried to Europe last week by Defence Secretary Clark Clifford.

It assumes added interest due to the August Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia, although it was prepared before them.

Clifford submitted the paper to the seven-nation meeting of NATO's nuclear planning group, which advises the alliance how atomic weapons can be used in allied defences.

Conclusions of the study are secret. But in candid conversations with reporters, U.S. officials suggested one or two well-placed nuclear detonations could be considered in the early phase of a massive, uncontrollable assault by enemy forces over NATO borders.

'ECONOMICS CONTROLS SOCIETY'

By ALAN WHITE

The young generation is in revolt against an economic power structure which controls society, New Democratic Party leader Tommy Douglas told 400 University of Victoria students Tuesday.

Long hair and beards are just "symbols" of a generation which is "disenchanted," he said.

Youth recognizes that life does not consist merely of "an abundance of things ... and material possessions." They are rebelling against a situation in which society is ruled by an "economic oligarchy."

Mr. Douglas, candidate for the federal byelection to be held this year in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands riding, was the first speaker of the Uvic political forum series.

AGE OF REVOLUTION

He told the group — including a sprinkling of older persons from outside the university — they must realize this is an age of revolution to understand political problems today.

A new generation has come along recognizing that "ours is a society which is basically not a democratic society," Mr. Douglas said.

"Democracy is something which we must apply to all aspects of life or else it has no meaning. It must continue to grow."

The revolt today is aimed at pushing society into a third stage of democracy — one in which everyone participates.

Previous generations fought for basic human freedoms and then for the welfare state. But the young generation must now fight for a "participatory democracy," Mr. Douglas said.

"Not having a choice and a say in the process and decisions is a cause of much of the revolt. In the universities, some are asking if they shouldn't have a share and a voice in the basic decisions," he said.

A major reason why Canada is not democratic today is the strength of American economic power over industries here, he explained. Political power follows economic power and many economic decisions affecting Canada are being made in the U.S.

This country should have more power over its economy so it can make its own decisions, Mr. Douglas said.

In the same way, workers in industry should have more responsibility in making decisions affecting them.

TOUGH FIGHT

The generation coming into power now is going to have "the toughest fight of all," to find how democracy works in the present economic structure to give everyone a share, Mr. Douglas told the students.

During a question period following his half-hour speech, he told the audience he stood against an economic common market union with the U.S. as a solution to present economic control.

Canada would not share overall from the increased economic strength and would probably end up with poverty areas such as in some of the southern states, he said.

Queen, Prince Philip To See 6 Brazil Cities

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — The Queen and Prince Philip will see six Brazilian cities, watch a Sunday football match and attend the laying of the foundation stone of a giant new bridge during their visit to Brazil next month.

The Brazilian foreign ministry said Tuesday the Queen will fly from London to Recife Nov. 1 aboard an RAF jet and will be met there by Prince Philip who arrives the same day from Mexico where he now is attending the Olympic Games.

LOCKHEED 10A TUCKED UNDER WING OF GIANT DC8
. . . place of honor in Museum of Science and Technology

Fond Farewell to Pioneer Plane

OTTAWA (CP) — A host of government and Air Canada officials bid a fond farewell Tuesday to the airline's first plane, the 31-year-old CF-TCA.

The occasion was a ceremony at which airlines officials turned over the two-engine Lockheed 10A to the Museum of Science and Technology.

H. W. Seagrim, acting president of the airline, told a gathering of about 100 on the tarmac at Ottawa International Airport they were witnessing the final performance of the first new plane delivered to the then Trans-Canada Air Lines in 1937.

The aircraft was the first in which many of the original TCA pilots took their training. It cost about $73,000 and was used on the airline's first trans-continental flight from Vancouver to Montreal in April, 1939.

CF-TCA began as an airliner on the scheduled Vancouver-to-Seattle service. It carried 10 paying passengers who were nestled in short single files with a narrow aisle between them.

The aircraft saw service with the RCAF and then was owned by several parties. It made an around-the-world flight last year to commemorate the trip of aviation pioneer Amelia Earhart in 1937 in a sister ship.

Air Canada began searching for the aircraft in 1967, found it at Willow Run, Mich., and re-purchased it for $25,000. After 500 man hours it was deemed ready for its last flight to the museum here. It made the journey from Montreal in about an hour.

Saanich Considering Business Tax Plan

The possibility of a business tax in Saanich will be considered shortly by a special committee appointed at the beginning of the year.

Committee chairman Ald. Leslie Passmore said today he proposes to call a meeting, probably in the next 10 days, "to consider the advisability of establishing a business tax in Saanich.

"We have not gone into it at all so I can't say what it could be or who it could be applied against."

He expected the committee will study the business tax in the city of Victoria.

Expressing a personal opinion, Ald. Passmore said such a tax in Saanich should be for the tourist industry.

When Mayor Hugh Curtis appointed the committee last January, he stressed that it was with an open mind and no strong feeling for or against a business tax.

"A detailed study of this kind should reveal whether we are wise to continue on the present course or if some form of business taxation is likely to be required in the near future," he said at that time.

'Disastrous If Hospital Bylaw Fails'

North Saanich Mayor Jim Cumming said Tuesday it would be disastrous for the property owners in the regional district to reject the Oct. 26 hospital referendum.

The $9.2 million vote will clear the way to build 600 extended care beds which in turn will relieve the pressure now being felt in the acute care bed field.

The provincial government picks up 60 per cent of the $9.2 million if owner-electors approve the proposals.

"Lack of new construction in the past has created the existing desperate situation," said Mayor Cumming. "The fact that we need more hospital space cannot be disputed. As a result we cannot afford to reject the referendum."

Mayor Cumming admitted that there was some concern on the north end of the Saanich Peninsula that the needs of the population were in danger of being neglected.

'GOOD FAITH'

"But the minister of health has made it quite clear that he will only approve plans which best serve the area as a whole," he said. "We must take that promise in good faith.

"It is absolutely essential that we approve the Oct. 26 vote to provide help for the sick people among us who desperately need assistance."

In the meantime the Regional Hospital District Board has established an information centre to answer any questions referring to the referendum.

The number to call is 384-1444 from Sept. 17-26 between the hours of 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. The information bureau will be manned by members of the Gorge Road Hospital auxiliary with Mrs. W. K. Hardy in charge of the information program.

POETIC PAYMENT OF TAXES

ALBERT LEA, Minn. (UPI) — A Freeborn County taxpayer is both prompt and poetic with his real estate taxes, county treasurer Wilfred Knutson said Tuesday.

Knutson said the unidentified man always submits a poem with the second installment of his taxes.

This year's verse:

"From time to time I get together a little nest egg which I prize.
But pretty soon I hit a snag and the bill for taxes does arrive.
And by the time I get unhooked,
My little nest egg she is cooked."

Top-Selling Book Austerity Victim

HAMILTON (CP) — Judy LaMarsh, former state secretary, says booksellers are complaining because the Queen's Printer has refused to print more copies of a top-selling photographic book on Canada.

The deluxe picture book, Canada: The Year of the Land, was published a year ago with tax money. It was produced by the National Film Board and published by the Queen's Printer as a Centennial project.

All but a few of the 25,000 copies were sold by late spring this year.

A survey of booksellers by The Spectator showed determined buyers in Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Vancouver are paying from $40 to $150 a copy. The book cost $38 to print, was sold to bookstores at $15 a copy and originally cost the customer $25.

Five thousand of the books were printed with French captions.

REPRINT DENIED

A spokesman for the Queen's Printer in Ottawa said a planned reprint of the book was ruled out by the treasury board's austerity program.

"When you've got something that good you don't drop it," said Miss LaMarsh in a telephone interview from Niagara Falls, Ont. She said she tried to have the book reprinted during her last months in office before the June 25 federal election but met resistance from Roger Duhamel, Queen's Printer.

"He just wouldn't print any more. He said it wasn't in his estimates."

Miss LaMarsh said the book should have been advertised in the United States, England and Japan—"the really good markets for books of this type."

SCOTTISH ACTOR HERE; MAKING FILM OF SHIP

He has appeared in more than 40 films, including "Tight Little Island", "The Cruel Sea", "Thirty-Nine Steps" and "Beyond This Place".

This year he will be seen in a new film, "Ring of Bright Water", based on Gavin Maxwell's book "About Otters".

Mr. Clark is now working on a TV documentary concerning the liner Queen Elizabeth II, which will sail out of Clydebank, Scotland, on November 19.

Others Interested In Meals Service

The meals on wheels service which Saanich started two years ago for elderly shut-ins has sparked interest by other areas of southern Vancouver Island.

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health was told Tuesday inquiries have been received from elderly citizens in Langford, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Victoria.

Board chairman Gordon Lee said it is considered this service should, if possible, be developed throughout the urban area.

Such meals, guaranteeing the recipients eat at least one good cooked meal a day, assist in maintaining the nutrition of the elderly who are unable to care for themselves as far as preparing cooked meals is concerned.

The board agreed to send a letter to the Community Welfare Council asking it to investigate the possibility of extending "this vital service" throughout the urban area.

It was suggested also that the service could be provided at minimal cost through volunteer agencies such as Silver Threads.

Board member Ald. Lily Wilson, of Victoria said Silver Threads had been thinking about it and "I think it will come."

The Saanich service provides 20 to 25 cooked meals a day. The food is prepared in the kitchens of Goodwill Enterprises and delivered by a commercial company.

New Traffic Bylaw Needed, Say Aldermen

Victoria city council is preparing a new traffic bylaw designed to smooth the flow of traffic at intersections.

But it may run into heavy going in debate before it becomes law.

The bylaw, to follow closely an existing bylaw in Vancouver where it is regarded as a driving offence to be in an intersection after a traffic light turns amber, would make it virtually impossible to make left turns at busy intersections during rush hours.

Mayor Hugh Stephen told the city's traffic committee Tuesday morning that if such a bylaw is brought into force it would have to be enforced with great discretion.

"The police would have to be very tolerant in enforcing such a law," Mayor Stephen said. "Sometimes you ease out on a green light and find you can't make your turn until the lights change."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay indicated that he also had reservations but agreed that some form of control was necessary to eliminate the "bumper to bumper drivers who crowd into an intersection" and create traffic jams.

CHANGES

Other traffic changes receiving tentative approval but still requiring endorsation of full council included:

- No parking on the north side of Chapman east of Linden Avenue.
- No parking on the east side of Linden north of Chapman. Both regulations involve playground frontage.
- No stopping for 30 feet on the north side of Fort west of Douglas.
- No stopping between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. on the north side of Fort between Douglas and Broad.
- The erection of stop signs on the west side of Broad north of Yates and the east side of Broad south of Yates. Similar stop signs on Broad at Fort Street.
- No stopping for 57 feet on the south side of Yates east of Government.
- No parking for 71 feet on the west side of Rockland south of Oak Bay Avenue and no parking for 40 feet on the south side of Oak Bay Avenue west of Rockland.
- To ease the parking problem the committee endorsed recommendations permitting one-hour parking between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. on both sides of Government between Humboldt and Belleville and on Belleville between Government and Menzies.
- No stopping for 30 feet on the west side of Quadra north of Fort.
- No stopping on the west side of Quadra between Pandora and Johnson.
- No stopping on the west side of Quadra between 7 a.m. and 9 a.m. between Market Street and Courtney.

Trailer Courts, Camp Sites Must Conform to Ruling

All establishments covered by sewage and other regulations regarding trailer courts and camp sites will be required to conform to them.

Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health Tuesday decided to send letters asking all non-conforming premises to outline their plans.

The board was told the year-old regulations allowed a period of grace for existing establishments. Those which have not made alterations to meet the regulations will be required to do so by the end of the year.

With regard to motels, dye tests will be made and where obvious pollution on the Old Island Highway is taking place corrective action will be required.

The board was told that none of these commercial establishments are in the sewered area. Although View Royal is proposing to install a sewerage system, it may take several years because it must hook up with the main trunk line of the area to be built by the regional board.

A letter was received from the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Association requesting action be taken to prevent further pollution of ditches by commercial places on the Old Island Highway.

Six places were identified by name by the association — Fort Victoria Trailer Park, Centennial Trailer Park, Cambridge Motor Court, Pines Motel, Craigflower Motel and Big Ben Drive-in.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

West didn't have much of a hand and succeeded in misbidding it first and misdefending it later.

Let's look at the misbidding. After South redoubled North's one spade opening, West was correct in passing. East would get out of the trap into some suit. If the suit were clubs West could correct to one of his four-card suits. West would be happy if East bid hearts or diamonds.

Opening lead—♦2

East did get out into two diamonds and South bid three clubs. At this point West's hand should have begun to look good. He could see four diamonds to the king and what was almost surely a very valuable singleton. A jump to four diamonds would not have been much of an overbid. Failure to bid three diamonds was almost criminal.

North really should have bid, but decided to gamble that his side could not make a game. It was a mighty good decision. Playing at clubs the defence can take a diamond and two aces; playing at spades, a club lead will hold declarer to nine tricks. So would a diamond lead unless declarer played a low trump to force out East's singleton ace.

How did West manage to misdefend? He opened the deuce of diamonds. South won with the ace and drew trumps with three leads. This gave West a chance to make two discards and he threw first the four, then the deuce of hearts—falsely showing heart strength.

South led a spade to dummy's king. East took his ace and played the ace and another heart. This gave South a chance to discard dummy's second diamond and make five clubs instead of four.

STEPHEN LEWIS
. . . back from Biafra

End War First, Says MLA

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, just returned from a week-long visit to Biafra, said today Canada must press for an end to the Nigerian civil war since it is a "delusion" to hope that even massive relief can ward off starvation in Biafra.

"Relief food is coming into Biafra at a rate of about 30 to 40 tons a night, but the requirement is for 3,000 to 4,000 tons a night," the New Democratic Party member in the Ontario legislature for Scarborough West said in an interview.

"If anyone thinks even stepped-up relief can make a serious indent, they are suffering a self-delusion."

Mr. Lewis, 30, who spent six months in Biafra in 1960 as a school principal and returned there last week "to see myself what was occurring," arrived back at his home here Tuesday feeling "fairly worked up." He called arguments about genocide "specious when the result is the effective annihilation of a large number of people."

Growth Rate Record Urged

DUNCAN — A suggestion was made here Tuesday evening that school boards on Vancouver Island get together to try and obtain a 10 or 20 year projection of population growth.

Trustee Alistair MacDonald of Cowichan School Board said a valid projection would be a great help in planning a school expansion program.

He said: "In the past 15 years in this district I've been staggered at where there has been growth."

A pilot committee on school expansion and planning has been set up at Duncan and schools superintendent Eric Lewis said: "An island or regional projection is one of our major needs."

Acting chairman Ernest Goddard said the situation pointed up the need for closer cooperation with the district municipal councils in order to know as quickly as possible about plans for large housing developments.

Mr. Lewis reported departmental permission has been received to go ahead with classroom additions to the Koksilah, Somenos and Tansor elementary schools but they are being held up until the planning committee can examine the total picture.

15-Month Term For Getaway Crash Driver

A 23-year-old Toronto man was sentenced in Victoria Assize Court today to 15 months' imprisonment for criminal negligence in the operation of a motor car last May 11.

His driving licence was suspended for three years.

Robert Simpson was the driver of a car which slammed into a tree off the Old Island Highway at View Royal while being chased by Esquimalt police at speeds ranging from 50 to 90 miles an hour.

Robert Rickward, 20, a passenger in the car, died soon after the crash; Roger McEwan, 22, another passenger died later the same day. Simpson, the accused, suffered a broken foot and ankle and head injuries.

In Assize Court Saturday night, Simpson was found guilty of armed robbery and theft from Ernie's Fine Foods restaurant, 1616 Hillside, on May 10 last. He will be sentenced on this conviction Friday, Oct. 25, at 10 a.m.

SERIOUS OFFENCE

"Causing the death of another person is a serious offence even when it results from negligence," Mr. Justice Victor Dryer told Simpson in reference to the criminal negligence charge.

"You also endangered the lives of several persons on the highway."

Mr. Justice Dryer said Simpson's record was one of "lawlessness."

Crown prosecutor Louis Lindholm read a list of previous convictions including breaking and entering and theft of automobiles between 1965 and 1967.

Pleading for leniency, defence counsel David Shillings said that Robert Rickward, who died when Simpson's car crashed, could be considered a party to the accident, as the car was being chased by police.

Victoria Assize Court adjourned today until Monday, Oct. 28 at 11 a.m. when Gary Hugh McWhirter, 24, and Frederick James Murty, 28, will be charged with non-capital murder in the slaying of William Bruce Van Munster last March 15.

Van Munster's decomposed and partly mummified body was found by detectives off a dirt road near Prospect Lake, two weeks after he was reported missing.

British Variety Tonight

The show, on a North American tour, features David Whitfield whose recording of "Cara Mia" broke the million mark a few years ago.

Veteran honky-tonk performer Gladys Mills will perform some of the numbers that made her famous in the Second World War.

Singer Anne Shelton is another member of the cast. She began her singing career at 13 and, during the war, entertained troops stationed in Britain and Europe. One of her song hits was My Yiddish Mama.

Pupils Raise $75 For Biafran Relief

Students at St. Margaret's School, 1084 Fort St., have presented $75 to the Save the Children Fund which will be spent on Biafran relief.

Expensive Prisons 'A Waste of Money'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Large, expensive institutions like Haney Correctional Institute and Brannen Lake School for boys at Nanaimo are a waste of taxpayers' money because they don't produce results, Kenneth Richardson, assistant director of corrections, said Tuesday night.

"No facilities were spared at the Haney Correctional Institute and the tools and equipment are as good as those in any vocational school," he told a YMCA meeting.

"We have been spending a lot of your money teaching young offenders a trade and then finding them a job where they can put it to use. But our studies show most of them gave up their job and dropped their trade as soon as their parole was over.

"Big institutions seem to be a waste of money. Inmates get lost in the crowd and don't get enough counselling."

He said small prison camps established throughout the province provide a closer relationship between staff and inmates and "good results can be obtained from almost hopeless cases."

Liston KO Winner

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Former world heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston kept alive his hopes of another title Monday night with a third-round knockout of Sonny Moore, who was several pounds lighter than the 221-pound, 36-year-old Liston.

Increase in VD in Greater Victoria Alarms Health Board Officials

Figures show the total number of cases reported in nine months of this year are more than double the full period of 1967.

There were 303 cases this year up to Oct. 7, made up of 18 from syphilis and 285 from gonorrhoea.

In 1967, there were 128 cases—12 syphilis and 116 gonorrhoea.

"This could be taken as an alarming situation," said health board chairman Gordon Lee, mayor of Central Saanich.

Asked if there is an increase in other communities, senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said there is an increase throughout British Columbia and Canada.

"We don't know why one gets an increase of venereal disease in this area," he said.

"We are doing more follow-up and getting cases in as quickly as possible. There is excellent co-operation from the doctors."

Asked if schools are taking action to warn about the disease, he said the increase is in the older age group—late teens and 20s plus an increase in homosexual venereal disease.

There was a program in Grade 10 where VD was a subject matter. There were films and discussion.

Dr. Whitbread also said there was an increase in both new cases and repeaters—people who have had VD before.

And he disclosed the health board has a list of girls known to be promiscuous which he described as "not a big list."

Consideration was being given to a program of automatic doses of long-lasting penicillin to prevent them catching VD or passing the disease on to others.

Dr. Whitbread said the program would be on a voluntary basis with public health nurses persuading the promiscuous ladies to take their shot on a protective basis.

"It should be remembered that under the Venereal Disease Act we have the power to examine and treat anyone with venereal disease or anyone suspected of having the disease. We rarely use that power. Most people come in voluntarily."

One board member, Ald. Norma Sealey of Sidney, suggested a broader system of education instead of just those who attend school.

"This is something that should be developed," said Dr. Whitbread.

He said suggestion has been given to an appearance on a day-time local television program and "we might even develop a half-column in the newspaper once a month so we can bring to the public what our services are."

The health board, with offices at 1947 Cook Street, has a VD clinic every day between 11 a.m. and noon.

Rules for Fall Planting

By HILDA BEASTALL

Here are a few general guide rules to use when planting spring-blooming bulbs in the fall. The only fertilizer for adding now to the well-forked-over soil is bonemeal. This is slow acting, so that it shall not force the bulbs into growth as soon as their roots are formed.

Hilda

We don't want green tops all popping up and growing madly while winter is with us, but by mid-March a boost is beneficial.

Also, bonemeal continues to feed the leaves, and subsequently the bulbs, after flowers are finished, thus ensuring firm bulbs for later years.

Planting depths for spring bulbs vary with the kinds and the type of soil. In sandy or gravelly, well-drained soils, depth can be a little more than recommended for heavier clay loams.

Two to three-inches of soil over the top of daffodils (and all the narcissi) will suffice in heavier soils, while four is better in sandy loams.

Tulips should be three to four inches down and are thought to be more disease-free if planted at lower depths.

Smaller bulbs are planted with less soil over their heads. The small crocuses have about an inch-and-a-half depth.

Two inches below the surface will do for the lovely spring anemone blanda and A.appenina, each with inch-wide starry flowers looking more like sky blue daisies than their other relatives, windflowers.

These anemones and also the large, later blooming anemone coronaria, the poppy-anemones, have dried brown corms for their storage roots, and when you buy them you wonder how in earth to plant them.

The rounded smooth side is down, the bumpy side with knobs is up. If still in doubt, plant anemones on edge.

YOUR HEALTH

Keep Check On Coughs, TB Is Back

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

All people with chronic coughs and especially all people who have had tuberculosis in their youth, and then recovered, should be concerned if their health fails, and especially if then they have some cough and some sputum. Especially if they are living in a home where there are young people and children, they just must hurry and get their chests X-rayed and the sputum examined for tubercle bacilli, because if they have the germs, they can so easily kill their beloved children and grandchildren.

Alvarez

Recently, it has been found many of the elderly people who get active tuberculosis really have a flare-up of a disease which they had in their youth and which healed. It is so sad after almost disappearing in the United States, the disease has come back again. For a while it looked as if it were going to be wiped out almost entirely—like polio; but now I read in June, 1967, 30,000 beds in 348 hospitals of this land were occupied by patients suffering from tuberculosis.

As my good friend, Mr. George Shaka of the Chicago Tuberculosis Association, tells me, most of the people who accept his offer of a free X-ray examination of their chest accept, because they know they are all right. It is the ones who most need the X-ray studies who avoid having chest films made—perhaps fearing if it shows disease, they will lose their jobs or will have to go to a hospital. What is sad is the many persons who now choose to die with tuberculosis, endanger the young people and children who live with or near them.

A while ago I read health officers who had discovered half a dozen children in a schoolroom had developed acute tuberculosis, found they had gotten the disease from their teacher. She should never have gone on teaching with a chronic cough she had not had checked and had treated by a physician.

* * *

Scores of people write asking what to do for chronic catarrh. Catarrh is a term which was used when I was a small boy; it is a layman's term, and not a doctor's term. It does not mean anything definite to me, except I imagine the person is talking about something in his nose—perhaps a post-nasal drip, a sinusitis, some stuffiness, or some extra secretion.

No one can say what to do for it, until a good "nose man" looks in to see what is wrong. Most of the people who worry so much and fuss so much about a post-nasal drip, thinking it is pus, are mistaken. A few hundred times I have sent such a patient to a good nose man because of a post-nasal drip, and practically always the person came back with the report, "It is not pus, and it is not harmful: it is just a little mucus." The patient's main trouble was he or she was afraid of swallowing the mucus, for fear it might be harmful. It should be swallowed, because it is harmless, just like the white of egg, and when it reaches the stomach it is quickly digested.

In some cases, there is a chronic infection in one of the sinuses of the nose (cavities in the bone); and sometimes then an extra little outlet for the secretion has to be made so the sinus will drain better. Some people have polyps (little pea-sized nodules) in the nose, and they can easily be taken out. Some people have what's called a deflected septum in the nose, and this can be straightened by a nose specialist. Then the person can breathe more easily.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Was Riel Encouraged To Rebel by Howe?

By BOB BOWMAN

Joseph Howe always has a high place on any list of great Canadians. The self-educated Nova Scotian was a great writer and orator.

In 1835, single-handed, he won an outstanding victory for freedom of the press and was carried in triumph from the courtroom on the shoulders of his fellow citizens in Halifax. Howe also played an important part in getting responsible government for the British North American colonies.

Yet Howe did some strange things, difficult to reconcile with his reputation for greatness. After being one of the earliest workers for Confederation, he turned bitterly against it. He told a friend "If you had a circus and had got together a good show, how would you like it if that fellow, Tupper, came and stood by the door and collected the shillings?" Tupper was Premier of Nova Scotia and led that province into Confederation.

Yet Howe eventually joined Sir John A. Macdonald's government and his former friends and supporters would cross the street rather than speak to him.

COMPLETE FAILURE

Early in the Red River uprising in 1869, Sir John asked Howe to go to Fort Garry and try to make a deal with Louis Riel. His mission was a complete failure and some historians suspect that Howe actually encouraged Riel to continue his opposition to Canada acquiring the northwest from the Hudson's Bay company.

Howe had fought for better Confederation terms for Nova Scotia and it is believed that he told Riel to go on fighting for better terms for the northwest, instead of representing the case for the Canadian government.

Howe ended his mission to Red River Oc. 13, 1869, and returned east by way of St. Paul where there was a railway. On his way Howe met William McDougall who was going to Fort Garry to be the first lieutenant-governor of the northwest. Yet Howe did not warn McDougall of the trouble ahead.

Other events Oct. 16:

1689—Du Luth defeated Iroquois near Lake of Two Mountains.

1690—New England force led by William Phips was defeated by Frontenac while trying to capture Quebec.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you wish to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jo Ann Sacrcino, age 11, of Thorold, Ont., for her question:

Why do birds cast their feathers?

Discarded feathers are strewn around most often in the fall, after the nesting season, when many birds are preparing to fly south to warmer winter climates. We also find lots of their lost feathers in springtime, at the beginning of the nesting season. Almost always, the birds cast these feathers because new ones are growing in to replace them. A lost feather may appear, at least to our eyes, to be in good condition. You may think that it is sheer extravagance for the bird to cast away perfectly good clothing in this way. But this is not true at all. The voice of nature does not instruct her children to waste the good things provided for them. After months of heavy duty, each fragile feather is either worn or unsuitable for the months ahead.

Almost every discarded feather is a lovely little object to behold. But its true wonders are too small for our eyes to see and we need to view it under a microscope. Suppose you find a quill discarded by a pigeon. It is shaped like a long, stiff leaf and is light as a feather—naturally. Its leaf-like vein is a hollow, horny shaft bordered on both sides with fringes of soft hairs. Those hairs are springy barbs that tend to cling together like bands of silken ribbon.

Shed Feathers

This is because each barb is bordered with smaller barbules and each barbule has smaller barbicels and hooks. Our pigeon quill may have a hundred thousand barbules with many millions of barbicels and hooklets. All these microscopic fragments of the feathery finery can be hooked together and unhooked for cleaning and preening purposes. Feathers are warm and light and surprisingly durable. But imagine their heavy duties, the wear and tear of flying and other activities through wind and weather. The dainty threads are preened daily and usually smoothed with oily moisture, but broken and bruised pieces cannot be repaired. The average feather lasts a few months and some last a year. Then the bird discards it and a new one grows in to replace it.

The main reason why birds cast their feathers is because they are worn out. In spring, they may have another reason. Birds that stay around all winter need extra warm clothing. A sparrow may have 3,500 feathers in his winter plumage. This coat is far too warm for the summer so when spring comes he may cast away his excess winter feathers. Many male birds like to doll up in bright new outfits in the spring. When the courting season begins, they shed their shabby winter feathers and fresh ones replace them.

Every bird molts all his feathers at least once every year. As a rule the molting is done in stages over several weeks. Flying birds molt their important tail and wing feathers in pairs, one from the right and one from the left side. Other feathers fall out while newer ones are partly grown. A chicken wears about 8,000 feathers, a hummingbird has at least 1,000 and a swan has about 25,000. Songbirds wear from 1,100 to 4,600.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Billy Donahue, age 13, of Youngstown, Ohio, for his question:

What are reef builders?

We call them coral reefs because the small marine coral animals have a great deal to do with building them. These soft-bodied polyps enjoy life in warm and tropical oceans and each one builds himself a home of minerals extracted from seawater. The little house of hard coral material has a door and the small animal inside pokes out a handful of tentacles, always ready to grab a passing morsel of food. He lives and finally dies in his own home. When he departs, no relative moves into the empty house. Instead, every young coral builds a brand new home of his own. It is attached to other coral homes, some still occupied and many others left by departed relatives.

In warm, shallow seas, generations of assorted corals build great masses of stony reefs. They share their territory with seaweeds, fishes, crustaceans and other marine dwellers. Stony seaweeds that stiffen their foliage with seawater minerals add to the rocky underwater formations. They are classified with the corals as reef builders. The remains of crustaceans and shellfish and even tiny diatoms also contribute to the building of reefs and atoll islands.

HOTEL CARPET BURNED BY GASOLINE BOMB

MONTREAL (CP)—A gasoline bomb was thrown outside the main entrance of the Bonaventure Hotel early today, causing minor damage to stairway carpeting.

Guy Bordeleau, night manager of the hotel, said a security guard was approaching the entrance on Mansfield Street when he noticed the outside carpet on fire.

The guard went into the hotel, grabbed a fire extinguisher and put out the flames.

Guest Home Problem Still With Oak Bay

Oak Bay ratepayers got into a wrangle with council Tuesday night over guest houses and rest homes and just what the difference is.

A. B. Arnison, of 942 Newport, told council a guest home they were attempting to rezone was, in fact, a rest home or a nursing home.

And it should not be allowed in Oak Bay, he said.

He was referring to a house operated at 1062 Newport by Bill Scott. Council had introduced a bylaw to legally recognize the home, which is in a residential area.

The home is formed out of two buildings and has several elderly residents.

'REST HOME'

Mr. Arnison told council he was not objecting to the service offered by the guest home, but said that service was offered "at the expense of the residents" in the area.

It was being run as a rest home—offering accommodation for persons who should be under constant medical care—and should not be allowed, he said.

Mr. Scott countered he was operating a guest house which offered only food and lodging and moderate aid for persons who had difficulty managing by themselves.

The house had been a guest house since 1912 and under his ownership since 1939, he said. No complaints about the way he was running it or the service offered had ever been made in that time.

NON-CONFORMING

The surrounding area was zoned for residential in 1927, leaving the house non-conforming since then. Mr. Scott said he had been assured by Oak Bay council in 1946 he could operate despite the zoning irregularity.

He had recently applied for a provincial licence to operate a rest home on the advice of "officialdom" but had no intention of running his property other than as guest house.

Mayor Fred Hawes assured the ratepayers present the establishment could be run only as a guest home. Council was attempting to change the zoning only to permit them legally to enter the house to inspect it regularly.

STUDY WEATHER

He had an interest in studying weather and would install equipment to measure the speed and direction of the wind. He had the blessing of the department of transport, he said.

Several ratepayers expressed dismay at the prospect of such a dome and said it would interrupt their privacy.

Council reserved its decision on the bylaw pending further consideration.

In a meeting following the hearing they set a date for a hearing on a second nonconforming guest house for Nov. 4, at 7:30 p.m.

This home, operated on St. David St. by Mrs. Elsie Weber, has been run for several years in a residential area.

A change in the zoning to legally recognize it was voted down about four months ago in committee of the whole, with only Ald. Wallace and Ald Elford favoring it.

Nobel Prize For Medicine To U.S. Trio

STOCKHOLM (CP) — The 1968 Nobel prize for medicine today was awarded to Prof. Robert W. Holley, Prof. H. Gobind Khorana and Marshall W. Nirenberg, all from the United States.

The Caroline Institute said they awarded the prize to the three American professors for their interpretation of the genetic code and its function in protein synthesis.

Holley, 46, is from Cornell University; Khorana, 46, from the University of Wisconsin; and Nirenberg, 41, of the National Heart Institute in Bethesda, Md.

The world's most coveted medical distinction has a record cash value this year of about $70,000. The three share the sum equally.

The Caroline Institute said the three scientists had worked independently, but that their investigations converged toward the solution of a common problem.

Today's award was the second to be announced this year. Last Wednesday, the Norwegian parliament's Nobel Peace Prize committee honored French Prof. Rene Cassin, human rights pioneer.

The Caroline Institute said Nirenberg, a New Yorker, opened up the prize-winning research area by a simple but ingenious experiment and said by following up his breakthrough, he could clarify the general character of the genetic code.

Khorana, born in Raipur, India, in 1922, and Holley, born the same year in Urbana, Ill., investigated the fine structure of the genetic code and explained how it is used by the cell for the biosynthesis of proteins, the institute said.

Thanksgiving Rally 'Best Ever Held'

Over 300 alcoholics from the United States and Canada attended the three-day annual Alcoholics Anonymous convention at the Empress Hotel on the weekend.

The 18th annual Thanksgiving rally was described as "the most successful ever held."

The meetings were climaxed by an open meeting Sunday which 600 attended. Alcoholics told their individual stories of victory over the bottle.

On Monday, a group visited Wilkinson Road jail.

"We had a wonderful meeting with the boys there," said a spokesman.

The theme of the convention and the mood, said the spokesman, was "warm."

Over 200 conventioneers sat down to breakfast Sunday morning in the Empress banquet hall under a sign which read "Isn't It Swell Just Being Here."

Other highlights of the convention were a dinner and dance Saturday night and a speech by two San Francisco alcoholics on their fight with alcohol.

Science Pact

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuba and the Soviet Union have signed a five-year agreement for scientific collaboration, Havana Radio reported Tuesday. The accord calls for 90 Soviet scientists to visit Cuba and for Cubans to go to Russia for science training.

Inflation Check Forecast In Budget White Paper

Increase Due In Production

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Continued growth of the Canadian economy, with less inflation and more production of goods and services, is forecast in the pre-budget white paper Finance Minister Benson tabled in the Commons today.

The 220-page economic white paper, which forms the basis for the tax-setting budget speech he delivers Tuesday, Oct. 22, said the gross national product should increase at about the same rate in the next nine to 12 months as it is growing this year.

"However," it said, "more of the increase should be in quantity, and less in prices, than in 1967 and 1968."

The gross national product was running in April, May and June this year at an annual rate of $66,396,000,000, an increase of 6.8 per cent over the same period last year. The total value of all goods and services produced in the country, at current prices in 1967, also ran 6.8 per cent ahead of 1966.

Price increases this year, the report said, have been somewhat less than they were last year. But inflationary pressures have not been completely checked.

The white paper contained the principal figures on last fiscal year's federal government revenues and expenditures as announced Sept. 9: Revenues $9,076,589,447, and expenditures $9,868,991,666, leaving a budgetary deficit of $792,402,219, the highest in peacetime.

In his June 1, 1967, budget speech, former finance minister Mitchell Sharp had forecast a $740,000,000 deficit based on revenues of $8,960,000,000 and expenditures of $9,700,000,000 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

Mr. Sharp's last estimate of revenues and expenditures for the current fiscal year before becoming external affairs minister was for revenues of $10,185,000,000, expenditures of $10,225,000,000 and a $40,000,000 deficit.

Mr. Benson has since said he wants to hold spending this fiscal year to $10,300,000,000 and balance the budget. But the government has already tabled spending estimates totalling $10,670,920,398 and must write off $135,000,000 as the federal government's share of the Expo 67 deficit.

How Mr. Benson proposes to raise taxes or otherwise meet the government's spending commitments will be the key part of his budget speech. Because of the form of Canadian personal and corporation income taxes, federal government revenues tend to rise rapidly with increases in the gross national product, or GNP.

Highlights Of Report

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Current growth rate of gross national product to be maintained for next nine to 12 months.

Price increases moderating but rate is still unacceptable and better performance is crucial.

Net national debt climbs to $16,757,400,000 or $809 per capita at last March 31, compared with $795 a year earlier.

Exports, housing, centennial and Expo spending all helped keep economy out of recession in last 12 months.

Labor force growth tops most industrialized countries, but new jobs fail to keep pace.

Canadian dollar shared effects of international monetary disturbances in last 12 months but sense of crisis now past.

The white paper said that during the last 18 months the Canadian economy went through a period of adjustment. While some economic indicators turned downwards, others remained buoyant, so that the adjustment could not really be called a recession.

However, the outlook now was for continued moderate growth. The United States would feel the delayed effects of its tax increase and spending cut, but this should not seriously affect Canada.

"A rapid increase in GNP in the first two quarters of 1968 is expected to give way to more moderate rates of increase in the third and fourth quarters of the current year," the white paper said.

"While it is too early as yet to forecast the full year 1969, there are indications that moderate rates of growth will persist in the first half of 1969."

Business investment in new plant and equipment is expected to be up about three per cent this year. Total public and private investment is expected to increase six per cent. Housing activity will be greater in 1969 than in 1968, and an easing of interest rates will encourage it.

Personal expenditure on goods and services, which accounts for more than half the GNP, should continue to be strong in the year ahead, contributing to the strength of the whole economy.

Russ Rule Out Berlin Takeover

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times reports today that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has assured the United States there would be no East European threat to West Berlin in the foreseeable future.

In a dispatch from Washington, The Times says "responsible West European sources" reported Gromyko made the pledge in New York Oct. 6.

He is reported to have told State Secretary Dean Rusk that the Soviet government recognizes that the United States, Britain and France regard their rights in West Berlin as a matter of "state interest"—a diplomatic term used by Soviet officials for matters of the highest national priority.

The West European diplomats told The Times Gromyko's remarks mean that the Soviet Union will not permit East Germany to provoke a head-on confrontation with West Germany.

"When Mr. Gromyko says there's no Berlin crisis in the offing, he's also talking for the East Germans," one is quoted as saying.

The Soviet assurance was considered part of a Kremlin effort to cool the political climate in the wake of the Czechoslovakia invasion, The Times says. In a United Nations speech Oct. 2, Rusk warned that the United States and its Western allies would not tolerate the threat or use of force against West Berlin or West Germany.

Recreational Area Bypassed By Rail Route

VANCOUVER (CP) — An alternative rail route, which would bypass the Boundary Bay recreational area, was proposed today to link the planned Roberts Bank deepsea port to Canadian Pacific Railway lines at Mission.

The route was outlined in a report prepared by J. F. Broadbent, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

He said capital costs of his proposed rote would be $7,000,000 less than two other proposed rail links, one outlined by the British Columbia Power and Hydro Authority and the second advocated by the Lower Mainland Regional Planning Board.

The report was requested by Premier Bennett following criticism of the Hydro-proposed route, which would traverse the Boundary Bay recreation area.

INDUSTRIAL LAND

The planning board had suggested a route that would go through land reserved for industrial purposes along the South Arm of the Fraser River.

Mr. Broadbent, who announced his proposal at a news conference attended by the premier, said all three routes were of equal length. His suggested route would bypass the Boundary Bay recreational area favored by Hydro and would eliminate costly construction of low level swing bridges required if the route followed the South Arm of the Fraser River.

Premier Bennett said there are "a lot of good points in the report and the government will study it."

"I am sure the people will too," he added.

Premier Bennett said he expected the government would "act very quickly" on the report.

"We want action on the railroad and we want to start construction in one or two months."

Journey Raises Hopes

By ERIC WENTWORTH
The Washington Post

PARIS — Le Duc Tho, the top-ranking North Vietnamese official who advises his government's delegation at the peace talks here, left by plane Monday for Moscow on his way to Hanoi.

North Vietnamese sources described Tho's journey as a routine matter. Nonetheless, his departure at what could be a critical time for the long-stalled talks was bound to arouse speculation: either Tho was on some delicate diplomatic mission, or conversely he saw no immediate hope for bargaining progress here.

Hanoi delegation spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said nothing about Tho's departure at his news conference Monday morning.

Meanwhile, members of the U.S. delegation were beginning to show interest in what they regard as a possible new lull in enemy combat activity in South Vietnam.

There was nothing Monday to suggest the Americans viewed such a reduction in Communist ground action over the past week as having diplomatic relevance as yet.

KEEN SEARCH

But their interest, if nothing else, reflected their keen search for any evidence of Communist willingness to de-escalate. Such a move could lead President Johnson to halt the remaining bombing of North Vietnam and thus, hopefully, break the Paris bargaining deadlock.

RELUCTANT CZECHS SIGN

FIRST-DAY RESPONSE GOOD

Victorians responded well on the first day of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal's door-to-door canvass, an appeal spokesman said today.

"We haven't any figures yet, but the over-all response was good."

He added that the first total for the residential canvassing division will be available Friday.

"It's too early to feel pessimistic and it's too early to feel confident," chairman Robert Hutchison told his campaign division chairmen at their first major report meeting Tuesday.

He said although the campaign has collected more than $220,000 much more effort will be required to reach the "awesome" $655,000 target.

Most of the division chairmen, however, expressed optimism in their reports.

Jim Strong, Corporation Division chairman, reported the chartered banks section has surpassed its suggested goal—the first section to do so this year.

Dr. Jack Meteer, Individual Advance Gifts chairman, reported his division will likely reach its $85,300 objective by mid-November.

And William Henderson, General Firms chairman, said his division, which accounts for $41,900 of the objective, is making good progress.

He said his division has collected about $35,000 but quite possibly it will not reach its $50,000 quota.

Mr. Hutchison agreed that Federal division had a tough goal and said if it is not met the other eight divisions will have to take up the slack.

He added that there are enough community-minded people in the area to reach the $655,000 mark but they must be approached individually.

"We have to get out and talk eyeball to eyeball with these people," he said. "If we talk to enough of them we'll reach our target."

Pupil Revolt Falters; Two Schools Re-Open

MONTREAL (CP) — A week-long student revolt was faltering today following a warning from Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal that students will have to start their school year over again unless they return to classes shortly.

Students at two Montreal junior colleges, in the northern Ahuntsic and the northeastern Rosemount districts, voted Tuesday night to end their occupation of the buildings. Votes were being held in other colleges today.

Still in student hands were eight of the province's 23 new post-secondary colleges. Sympathizers boycotted classes in other institutions, but this type of support appeared to be crumbling.

At the University of Montreal, students of the philosophy and social science faculties were occupying their departments, but others returned to classes.

At Loyola College, where students had voted 874 to 617 in favor of study sessions to support the demands of junior college students, the administration refused to cancel classes on grounds that the vote was not representative of the 3,000-member student body.

The student revolt began last week at Lionel Groulx College in Ste. Therese de Blainville, 20 miles north of Montreal, when dissatisfied teen-agers took over the building.

The youthful strikers complained about a lack of university facilities and a revised student aid plan that includes a cutback in scholarship funds and higher interest rates on student loans.

They say there will not be enough university space to accommodate most of them when they complete the two-year junior college course next year.

Education Minister Cardinal has said that a promised second French-language university in Montreal will open on schedule next September, but nothing can be done about the student aid program because of a lack of money.

College administrators originally maintained a hands-off attitude toward student takeover tactics, but three of them indicated Tuesday they are adopting a get-tough policy.

In the Saguenay River city of Chicoutimi, administrators of the student-occupied college announced that classes will resume next Monday and students who do not show up will have to start their school year afresh.

U.K. Tries To Bypass Paris Veto

PARIS (Reuters) — The Western European Union today passed a resolution seen by observers as a warning to France that progress towards European unity can no longer wait for it.

The assembly of the union—a discussion forum for legislators of the six European Common Market nations and Britain, voted 36 to 2 to endorse a new attempt by Britain to outflank a French veto on its efforts to join the market.

French delegates abstained in the vote which called for a political conference to strengthen co-operation in foreign relations, defence technology and in any other field not covered by the Common Market treaty. Two Italian delegates voted against the resolution.

Outline Proposals

Island Pounded

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fidel Castro's "island of youth" was pounded today by the strongest winds in tropical storm Gladys as the 60-mile-an-hour gales gained strength and moved towards parts of Florida already on hurricane watch. The Isle of Pines, a colony of the young 30 miles south of Cuba, has about 30,000 residents.

Thousands Marching

Carrying banners and placards calling for "one man-one vote" and "freedom of speech," some 3,000 students paraded from Queen's University through the city centre.

Replace Leger?

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal newspapers say in stories from Paris that the federal government has decided to name Paul Beaulieu as ambassador to France, replacing Jules Leger. Mr. Beaulieu is a member of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations.

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) —An explosion ripped through the hull of the 2,000-ton freighter Ss. Norman P. Clement today injuring 11 men, one seriously. The men were working in the ship's bow.

Plane 'Wedged' in Mountain

The aircraft wedged in a crevice, 3,500 feet above the ground, and pilot Ayliffe (Pat) Carey, a Terrace magistrate, watched the engine tear loose from the fuselage and sail away into the snow.

The pilot and aircraft were left stranded on a snow-swept ledge.

Tuesday night, RCMP described the crash near this community 500 miles north of Vancouver as fantastic after Mr. Carey was rescued by mountain climbers and a helicopter.

"He flew right into a wedge-shaped gully about 3,500 feet up the mountain," said an RCMP spokesman.

"The plane went on until the wings bent and jammed. The motor went on by itself for another 100 feet into the gully.

"He was left on a tiny ledge with a 2,000 foot drop behind him. Ten feet either way and he would have been killed."

Mr. Carey was reported overdue after he failed to arrive at Leduc, 40 miles northwest of here, with a cargo of five drums of fuel for Granduc mines.

He was spotted by a helicopter crew 500 feet above the snow line on an 8,000-foot peak six miles from his destination.

They were unable to reach him, but four mountain climbers flown in later got a rope to Mr. Carey and then lowered him down the mountain face to a spot where he could be reached by helicopter.

He was flown to Stewart and then to Prince Rupert to have his cut treated.

The Otter aircraft, owned by Trans-Provincial Airlines, was a total loss.

U.S. TO SLASH CANADIAN BUYING

OTTAWA (CP) — The bloom is off the boom in Canada's export sales to the U.S. this year, says the pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons today by Finance Minister Benson.

The U.S. can be expected to scale down its purchases "substantially" from the first half of 1968 now that tax increases and government spending cuts are taking effect there.

The remarkable increase in sales to the U.S. — 25 per cent in the first half — more than compensated for declining sales to Italy, Japan and some other major buyers.

But the budget papers are not pessimistic about the trade balance for the year despite the expected slack in American buying.

Canada's merchandise trade surplus for the first half ran at an annual rate of more than $1,000,000,000, double the level of the same period last year.

Lower exports at year-end will offset only to an extent other favorable developments in the Canadian economy, such as easing price and cost pressures, inventory buildup, and rising business and housing investment.

Casting back to the 1967 export performance, the review says a recovery of sales in the fourth quarter was "extraordinary."

Wheat exports were in a slump and automotive sales affected by strikes. Other exports, however, rose about 13 per cent in the quarter as foreign demand increased, especially in Europe and the U.S. Sales of copper, iron and steel increased, reflecting strikes and potential strikes.

Export figures available since the budget papers were prepared show that the anticipated decline in sales to the U.S. had not taken hold to the end of September.

Sales during that month were up 26 per cent over the previous year. For the nine-month period, they were up 25.7 per cent.

Exports to all countries were 33 per cent higher in September and 18.4 per cent higher between January and September at $9,882,000,000.

Czechs Lose Democracy In New Pact

By KENNETH AMES
Special to The Washington Post

PRAGUE—If there still persist any doubts over true Soviet intentions toward Czechoslovakia, they should be dispelled by the full text of the secret Moscow "protocol" supposedly signed by the Czechoslovakian leaders.

It is this document which is the basic program for Soviet domination of Czechoslovakia. Any military treaty signed this week will be an appendix.

The 15-point protocol was originally signed by Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek and other Czechoslovak leaders under considerable pressure Aug. 26.

The full import of the protocol, until now, has been kept secret and the more recent visit by Dubcek to Moscow (Oct. 3-4) was merely to endorse this original "treaty," which puts the whole onus of action of the Czechoslovaks and binds the Russians to nothing.

HOPELESS

On the basis of this agreement, it is abundantly clear to observers here that Dubcek, in his address to the nation last Friday, was making the best of an almost hopeless situation—still attempting mild evasion and resistance to Soviet Diktat but admitting to the population that they have no serious alternative.

Perhaps the most sinister provision of all in the protocol is paragraph 14, which stipulates that "for the sake of Soviet-Czechoslovak friendship, it is agreed that all contacts between respective leaders after Aug. 20, including the present talks, shall be considered as strictly secret."

It was agreed that the Czechoslovak party presidium shall "review normalization of economic issues and the standard of living. They will reinforce party and state management and release those persons whose activities do not correspond with present requirements of these agreements."

"Priority," according to paragraph 4, "is to be given to control over mass media which must fully serve the cause of socialism." It agreed that the mass media shall discontinue anti-Socialist pronouncements and that an end will be made to activity of "groups advocating anti-socialist activities . . . the requisite personnel changes will be made in mass media and Soviet leaders expressed full solidarity with these measures."

FROM MOSCOW

Reports emanating from Moscow that the bulk of Soviet troops are expected to leave within the next few weeks are clearly not supported by paragraph 5 of the document, which is the basis for all subsequent decisions.

"Command of allied troops and the Czechoslovak army will immediately discuss questions concerning departure and movement of military units from towns and villages where local authorities can ensure public order." This is already an "escalation" of the originally professed intentions.

"The number of troops involved," the protocol continues, "their organization and deployment will be discussed with Czechoslovak army leaders."

GOVERNMENT LEVEL

Then follows the significant provision: "Supplies and medical services for the troops will be stipulated in an agreement with the ministries of national defence and foreign affairs. Major disputes will be settled at the government level."

The Soviet military command is already complaining that troops are being boycotted by the Czech and Slovak population, being denied food supplies, water and kindness. The implication is that these factors are now regarded as prerequisites for "normalization" of the situation.

Or, as some diplomatic sources put it, Soviet troops will not consider leaving until they have adequate proof that they are loved and accepted by the Czechoslovak civilian population. One Czech writer commented: "we should live so long."

Russians Insist On Purge

By The Washington Post

PRAGUE—In what appears to be a drive to gain political and operational control over the Czechoslovakian armed forces, the U.S.S.R. is pressing for removal of the present chief of staff and his replacement by a staunch Soviet henchman, it has been learned reliably.

At the same time, the Soviet Union is reported demanding a reduction in the Czechoslovak army of one-third. If the curtailment is conducted by a new pro-Russian commanding officer, it would doubtless provide for the discharge of officers known to be strongly sympathetic to the present regime of party first secretary Alexander Dubcek and the promotion of those with opposite leanings.

The Soviet plan, it is understood, calls for the restoration of Gen. Josef Rytir to the post of chief of staff which he held in the regime of former party leader Antonin Novotny. A few months after Dubcek toppled Novotny last January, he replaced Rytir and the then defence minister, Bohumil Lomsky.

Both men were known as undeviating co-operators with Kremlin military policy. Since their ouster last spring, they had remained out of the public eye.

Russians End Trek

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Two young Russians have just completed an 11,000-mile journey on reindeer and dog-drawn sleighs, horseback and rubber boat along the Soviet Union's Arctic coast.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the two, journalist Igor Zaporozhets, 27, and 30-year-old radio engineer Anton Makarenko, made the journey in honor of this month's 50th anniversary of the Soviet Communist Youth Organization.

They set out for the port of Archangel on the Bering Strait six months ago and completed their journey Tuesday.

. . . INFLATION

than usual attention to the domestic and international factors affecting the economy. Until recent years, it has been mainly a factual accounting of past experience, rather than an outlook for the future.

Some highlights:

—Productivity has improved this year in manufacturing and construction industries.

—Canada has had a startling increase in exports so far this year, and this rate of growth is bound to moderate.

—Revenues of all governments—federal, provincial and municipal—have risen rapidly in recent years because of economic growth and tax changes. Government expenditures rose too, but there now are signs of moderation in government spending.

The higher levels of unemployment in the last 2½ years are mainly the result of exceptional rates of growth in the labor force, 3.3 per cent in 1966 and 3.7 per cent last year. There now has been a turnaround in the movement of workers off the farms.

The financial accounts appended to the economic white paper showed that the $792,400,000 deficit for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1968, brought the net debt of the country on that date to $16,757,400,000.

At that time, the government had bonds and treasury bills outstanding totalling $20,379,875,034 and costing $1,042,140,800 in annual interest.

HORRORS! A PORTUGESE SPOON!

LONDON (Reuters) — A Labor member of Parliament told a select committee today he was horrified to discover that British MPs were stirring their tea with spoons made in Portugal.

William Baxter told a House of Commons committee on agriculture:

"I was stirring my cup of tea when, to my horror, I noticed the inscription.

"It was a new spoon just imported from Portugal—for the use of British members of Parliament in the British House of Commons."

Baxter said he is considering taking further the question of importing goods which could be manufactured in Britain.

Accountancy Student Wins Medal, Cash

Gordon A. Kallberg, 3674 Rutledge Street, has won the B.C. Institute of Chartered Accountants silver medal for the highest standing in B.C. intermediate exams.

He also won a $125 prize from the C. A. wives' association.

Seventy-one students from all over the province who have successfully completed their course will be presented diplomas at convocation ceremonies in Vancouver Saturday.

This year's gold medal, awarded for the highest standing in B.C. final uniform examinations, went to Brian Dennis Peets of Burnaby.

Grits Welcome 'An Old Friend'

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester Pearson received a round of applause today when he dropped in to the regular weekly meeting of the Liberal parliamentary caucus.

The handclapping broke out when the Liberal MPs and senators spotted the former prime minister coming through the door of the caucus room in the Parliament Buildings.

He was escorted by his successor as Liberal leader, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who succeeded him as prime minister April 20.

Grant Deachman, caucus secretary, said Mr. Pearson came as "an old friend" at the invitation of the caucus. Since he is neither an MP nor a senator he is not a caucus member.

Mr. Pearson, 71, jaunty and smiling, sat between Mr. Deachman and his old friend and colleague, Paul Martin, government Senate leader, at the head table.

Mr. Pearson's chief current task is his role as head of an investigation into international aid for the World Bank.

Breakthrough In Peace Talks Denied by U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House said today there has been no breakthrough in Vietnam war negotiations, despite widespread reports of a United States proposal to halt completely the bombing of North Vietnam.

"The position of the United States with respect to Vietnam remains as set forth by the president and the secretary of state," presidential press secretary George Christian said.

"There has been no basic change in the situation: No breakthrough," he added in a mid-morning statement prompted by reporters' queries following reports of a possible major new peace move from here, Paris and Saigon.

Meanwhile, in Paris, U.S. spokesman William J. Jorden said there had been some progress at the peace talks. He refused to elaborate.

A senior South Vietnamese political official said in Saigon earlier today the United States has proposed a full bombing halt and was discussing the proposal with the Saigon government.

South Vietnamese diplomats told reporters they understand the United States had made the proposal as an attempt to further peace negotiations.

ACKNOWLEDGE TALKS

Washington officials, although declining to say whether a final settlement has been reached, acknowledged the United States and North Vietnam have been discussing for several weeks a package plan to end the deadlocked talks in Paris.

The Washington officials said a key element of the package is North Vietnam's military restraint in return for a bombing halt.

Also being discussed, they said, is the way the South Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front—political arm of the Viet Cong—would be brought into the second phase of the Paris talks.

The report from Saigon followed two meetings today between U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu. Later Bunker met a third time with Thieu who, meanwhile, had met with his cabinet and top political, legislative and government figures.

The Saigon source said Thieu told top members of his regime the enemy must guarantee they will not escalate the war if a bombing halt is ordered.

NO BREAK SPOTTED

There was no indication during today's 26th meeting in Paris between U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators of any breakthrough in the talks.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, top U.S. negotiator there, told reporters after the session there had been no talk of the bombing issue.

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy declared: "The 26th meeting was just like the 25 preceding ones." During the session itself Thuy repeated Hanoi's formula for progress in the talks: a total, unconditional halt in U.S. attacks on the North.

The United States has insisted on mutual restraint by North Vietnam as a condition for a full bombing halt. Hanoi has yet to give any word or hint that the recent decline in its military activity is due to a deliberate decision to de-escalate the war.

There now is another of the periodic lulls in ground fighting in Vietnam and U.S. military estimates show the infiltration of men from the North into the South dropped roughly one-third last month from the summer high of 30,000.

Gaglardi Speaks Monday Night

Philip Gaglardi, minister without portfolio, will address the annual meeting of the Saanich and Gulf Island Social Credit Association Monday.

The former highways minister will speak at 6:30 p.m. before the annual banquet. He will discuss "B.C. in 1969." The banquet will take place at the Ingraham Hotel.

Move to Bolster UN Backed by Big Four

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Signs pointed today to Big Four acceptance of Secretary-General U Thant's proposal that their foreign ministers meet to discuss ways of bolstering the United Nations as a peace force.

However, UN delegates generally felt no date for a meeting could be set until after the Nov. 5 U.S. presidential election, noting that President Johnson could not commit the next administration to any such parley.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart of Britain told a news conference Monday he did not foresee a Big Four meeting before next year.

A spokesman for Thant said he had received unofficial reactions that were "not negative" from Stewart, French Foreign Minister Michel Debre, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and U.S. chief delegate J. R. Wiggins.

Thant made public Tuesday letters he had sent more than a week ago to the four foreign ministers. He talked with all four during their visits to the General Assembly for the current policy debate.

DISCUSS MIDDLE EAST

Elsewhere in the United Nations:

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Gunnar Jarring, Thant's Middle East envoy, talked at length Tuesday on Israel's nine-point plan for a Middle East settlement.

An Israeli spokesman said Eban gave Jarring a comprehensive account of Israel's views on points outlined in the foreign minister's policy statement before the assembly last week.

The head of the UN refugee agency in the Middle East said in his annual report to the assembly Tuesday that efforts to establish peace in the area will be jeopardized unless prospective contributions for refugee aid are increased 10 per cent.

Laurence Michelmore, commissioner-general of the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA), said his agency's financial situation remains precarious and the outlook bleak.

Labor Relations Chairman Named

Michael J. Griffin was re-elected chairman of the Mechanical Industrial Relations Association Tuesday night.

The labor relations arm of the Mechanical Contractors association also elected a new board of directors comprised of B. H. Johnson, A. F. Rawlings, B. T. Sprague, John T. Welham, H. J. Heighes and W. G. Meakes.

The elections were held at the annual dinner meeting of the association held at the Century Inn.

Christmas Moon Flight Gets Boost From Apollo

HOUSTON (AP) — Bearded, rested and feeling better, the Apollo 7 astronauts presented a televised lesson in space-age cooking and plumbing on the Wally, Walt and Donn Show today and then sped on toward the halfway point of their marathon space mission.

As they swept into their sixth day in orbit, their space chariot was performing so well that plans were being formed to send three men around the moon Christmas Day.

For the third straight morning, the tediousness of the flight was broken by the daily television. The TV show was shortened to nine minutes today from 11 minutes because of initial reception trouble at a receiving station at Corpus Christi, Tex.

MEET THIS WEEK

Top officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration scheduled a meeting later this week to lay plans for sending Apollo 8 on a swing around the moon.

The Apollo 8 spacecraft already is in place atop a mighty Saturn V rocket on a Cape Kennedy launching pad. It originally had been scheduled for an earth orbit flight, but the early excellent performance of Apollo 7 has prompted officials to consider the moon test, which would be a vital step toward a U.S. manned lunar landing next year.

One drawback is that the crew of Norman, Capt. James A. Lovell and Maj. William A. Anders has had only limited training for a lunar fly-around. Sources said they would undergo extensive training to get ready.

The plan could be wiped out altogether if something serious should go wrong in the final half of the Apollo 7 mission.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A violent storm in the Gulf of Alaska rocked the Queen Charlotte Islands with southeast gales this morning. Winds gusted as high as 70 miles per hour at Sandspit. A disturbance moving out of the storm centre will sweep rain and strong winds across the south coast by noon today.

Skies in the interior regions were mostly clear this morning under the influence of a strong ridge of high pressure. However, the disturbance is expected to drive the ridge into Alberta and spread precipitation into all regions by early Thursday morning. Cloudy showery weather will follow the disturbance on Thursday. Afternoon temperatures will range from 50 to 55 degrees in southern regions and from 40 to 50 in the north.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Winnipeg Grain Exchange closed today on a pattern of continuing strength in oilseeds and rye. Flax and rapeseed prices advanced two to three cents on thin offers.

Oats was on a fractionally weaker pattern.

Rye was following a stronger price pattern on the Chicago market and met with a fair volume of inter-month spreading.

CHICAGO (AP)—Commodity prices reacted sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade today to reports of possible peace manoeuvres over Viet Nam and subsequent cooling off of these rumors by President Johnson.

The initial effect of these various peace reports tended to advance wheat, corn and soybean prices about a cent within minutes of the opening.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto Ends Decline

Among the heaviest traders were Revenue Properties and Trizec.

AT TORONTO, Donlee rose ⅜ to 23½, Morse A ⅜ to 13, Universal sections ⅜ to 13, Seagrams ⅜ to 46 and BA Oil ⅜ to 46⅜.

Imperial Oil lost 1⅜ to 79⅜, Neon Products 1⅛ to 32⅝, Consolidated Textile 1 to 11⅜ and Thomson Newspapers ⅜ to 52⅝.

Leigh Instruments advanced 2⅜ to 43½ after the company said it has agreed to buy Quality Hermetic Seals Ltd. Bramalea slipped ⅜ to 12⅝. The company plans to build three shopping centres in the Niagara Peninsula in a joint venture with Steinbergs'.

In golds, Dome lost 1⅝ to 67⅝ and Upper Canada 34 cents to $2.76. The price of bullion was lower on the London free market.

Canadian Superior Oil fell 2 to 60, Charger Oil 1⅛ to 14½ and Canadian Gridoil ⅜ to 14⅜.

Bralsaman advanced 15 cents to a 1968 high at $3.00. A 51-per cent interest in the company has been sold to Resource Ventures Inc. of Cheyenne, Wyoming, at $2.00 a share by Transcontinental Resources Ltd.

Simpsons lost 4 to 37; Levy, 1⅜ to 30; Rothmans, 1 to 25, and Radio Engineering, ½ to 42⅜. Texaco added 1⅛ to 32⅜ on 225 shares.

North American Rare Metals picked up 8 cents to 73 cents on 234,000 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

AT LONDON the market continued its recovery on a modest scale today, but the threat of an engineering strike in Britain on Monday, tended to restrict business.

British funds were quietly firm. Equity leaders were mostly better.

Gains ranging to sixpence or so were recorded by ICI, Rank, Hudson's Bay, Courtaulds, Bowater, English Electric and GEC firmed slightly.

Golds were depressed with losses ranging to around 2s. Western Mining, up 6s 9d to 30s on its nickel exploration partnership with Sherritt Gordon Mines of Canada, led a widespread improvement in Australians.

Oils were firm.

Canadian stocks were mixed, although International Nickel gained nearly three points to 112⅝. Algoma, Alcan, Cominco and B-A Oil advanced about $1 each.

AT VANCOUVER prices of mining issues were mixed in heavy pre-noon trading today.

Dynasty was strong and rose .37 to $10.75 and Benson traded 109,500 shares to show a four-cent gain at .69. Buchanan was another active issue and was up .05 at .41 on 139,700 shares.

However, Arctic dipped .15 to $3, Northlode was down .25 to $3.80 and Magnet lost .08 to $1.77.

Bata traded 42,800 shares in the oils and put on .10 to $2.20, but in the industrials, Neon fell $1 to $33.50, EDP lost .50 to $23, Block Bros. was .50 stronger at $29.

Sweepstake Winner Hit by Tax Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) —In a case that took four years to advance to an Exchequer Court decision, a sweepstake winner recently was ordered to pay $11,000 gift tax on his $150,000 windfall.

It was a rare instance of effectiveness for the gift tax, which the Carter royal commission on taxation has described as "almost useless."

Even in this case, as the tax reporting authority CCH Canadian Ltd. advised this month, the individual could have beaten the tax by drafting a simple document when he put the $150,00 in the bank.

His mistake was to deposit the money in a joint account without proving that half of it was not intended for his wife.

Lacking evidence to the contrary, the Exchequer Court deemed half the deposit to be a gift and assessed the $11,000 tax against the husband as donor.

The couple said they understood the husband would be the only one to withdraw any money unless he was unable to do so, but the understanding did not hold up in court.

A written statement to this effect, or separate accounts, would have saved the day, said CCH Canadian Ltd.

EASY TO AVOID

The Carter commission report said existing gift and estate taxes are an anachronism. They can easily be avoided through the use of personal corporations, trust and exemptions.

Carter proposed bringing all gifts into a comprehensive tax base and taxing them at full progressive rates like all other additions to income.

Exemptions based on Carter's definition of the family unit and other annual and lifetime exemptions would mean that most people would never pay tax on any gifts or bequests.

But large gifts by wealthy people would be captured in the process and total revenues would more than double to $350,000,000 a year on the basis of 1962 figures.

Automation Helps Pair Build Ranch

PENTICTON (CP) — Two brothers from the United States who compare running a cattle ranch to the automotive industry, have invested more than $250,000 to prove their theories.

"Cars improve every year and so must a rancher's cattle," says 33-year-old Joe Rodgers. "You can't afford to stand pat without improvements to the models, which a rancher must achieve by better breeding."

Joe and brother Barry, 31, own and operate the 80-square-mile Shingle Creek ranch west of this Okanagan Valley city.

With machinery and two hired men, they have begun building an integrated, automated property out of their 51,000 acres, accomplishing in six years what would have taken an army of farm workers to achieve half a century ago.

Their goal, by 1973, is 700 commercial Herefords and a 300-head purebred herd. They now have a 500-head commercial herd and 150 purebreds—developed from 100 head on the ranch when they bought it.

They have put in 14 miles of fence, increased hay production to 1,000 tons a year from 180 tons, cleared land, put in irrigation, built new buildings—including two homes for themselves—dammed creeks, introduced pheasants and grouse, and created a small lake stocked with thousands of trout.

CUSTOMS STRANGE

"I suppose I never realized what I was getting into," said Linda. "When we first came here all there was was an old log cabin. I had never worked over a wood-burning stove and the men we hired wouldn't eat the meat I cooked."

She soon discovered that Canadian cowboys don't like rare beef. The reverse is true in the U.S.

When increasing the size and quality of their herds over the next few years, the brothers also will automate their feeding operation.

Four big silos are planned, and the ranch soon will start buying grain from the Peace River area and do its own milling and processing.

In the six years the brothers have owned the ranch, last summer was the first time Joe had found time to take a holiday.

"I admit that we have over $250,000 tied up in the ranch and to most this probably looks like we are rich," he said. "Most people have a holiday every year, and I wonder how many realize the work that goes into establishing a ranch and then running it. We've just been too busy."

Nixon Would End Restrictions

WASHINGTON (CP) — Richard Nixon, Republican presidential candidate in the Nov. 5 U.S. election, has sharpened his stated intention of ending the restrictions on foreign investment by the U.S.

The program made mandatory last Jan. 1 — exempting Canada, however, in March — is costing the U.S. money, Nixon says. He calls it "economic isolationism at its worst."

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07 1/20 for cheques, $1.06⅞ for cash, [illegible]. Sales were $1.07⅞ for cheques and $1.07⅝ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07 3/16. Pound sterling was up 1/16 at $2.56 7/16.

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 93 13/64 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was up 9/64 at $2.38 49/64.

Today, a letter from England with a return address that might have marched straight out of a novel by Charles Dickens. "The Dial House, 5 Ipswich Road, Norwich, Norfolk."

In The Dial House lives an expatriat Victorian, Catherine Jacobson, who sends a fond "Hello" to a city that will one day receive her again. She also encloses an early-October clipping from London's Daily Express.

"Canadians are proud folk, and rightly," the items commences. "So they will be intrigued to learn that their country has been scheduled by President de Gaulle as 'under-developed'."

"Politically, from the French point of view, it is.

"Which is why French scientist Alain Boselli, 26, will be whisked away to lecture there soon after his London wedding next April to pretty Sandra Shaw-Lawrence, 23."

"Alain, son of Count Bernard Boselli, member of one of France's oldest families, has to do National Service. He escapes the duck-green uniform of the French Army because of his special job.

"'Alain's pretty sure we will be spending our early married life in Canada—though it could be Tunisia, as that's also on the under-developed list,' said Sandra ..."

Intriguing indeed, and as one of those politically under-developed Canadians, I trust that our loss will become Tunisia's gain. We have enough de Gaulle developers meddling in Canada's domestic affairs without adding to the number.

Did you know that the familiar arbutus tree is a giant member of the heather family? I didn't, until a neat little book titled 'A Net of Naturalists' landed on my desk.

Publisher is Victoria Natural History Society, and the work of compiling and editing the book's 40 illustrated pages was undertaken by Ruth Chambers.

Most of the telescoped essays on various naturalists and the flora and fauna to which their names are attached were written by Natural History Society members.

Contained in Mrs. Chambers' 'Net' is Thomas Nuttal, an English naturalist so fervent and single-minded that capture by Indians and a close call with death from thirst on a later expedition could not deter him from his wilderness rovings. The Pacific dogwood (Cornus nuttalli) was named in his honor.

You will also find Archibald Menzies, who first classified our familiar arbutus, in 1792.

The book's a pleasant pocket companion. You'll find it on sale at the Provincial Museum and Francis Park nature-house at $1.35 plus tax.

By way of tying off a loose end, I am glad to report that John Thomas is back at University of Victoria as a second-year student.

Mr. Thomas, whose predicament I aired here on August 30, failed his freshman year twice in the early 60's ... a circumstance not to be wondered at, since he was supporting himself as a longshoreman at the same time.

You may also remember that he returned two years later with a woods-earned stake, but by failing to identify himself as a student already on the registration lists, landed on the wrong side of university rules.

Although his status became known to the Uvic administration last February, he was permitted to complete his year, which he did with first class honors. He was, however, barred from returning until 1969: standard procedure for cases of this sort.

In early September, the university senate considered his appeal, and upheld it. Result: a return to the campus on probation, to shoot for a Bachelor of Science degree in physics. Fair enough—and John Thomas, who hopes to become a teacher, may make it yet!

AIRBORNE DUMMY HAWK SCARES OFF FREE-LOADERS

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The B.C. department of agriculture believes it has finally found a way to stop birds from damaging farm crops.

The new weapon is a helium-filled balloon. Attached 30 feet below is a dummy hawk.

Tests were carried out last week on the nursery farm of Geof Vantreight, Tyndalle Avenue, where crows picked iris from their flats as fast as they were planted.

"It was so effective that not a bird was seen for miles around," said Mr. Vantreight.

* * *

Mr. Vantreight lost 20,000 iris bulbs to crows who picked them from their beds thinking they were walnuts. It represented a loss of $300.

"They drop them on the road," said Mr. Vantreight, "and leave them there when they see they don't break open."

The balloon is made of neoprene, a plastic material less porous than rubber. It takes about 11 cubic feet of gas and expands to about four or five feet.

Pay-to-Learn Agreement For Ferrymen

The provincial highways department and representatives of its 1,387 ferry employees signed an agreement today initiating a pay-to-learn clause.

The agreement, covering all aspects of working conditions except wages, concluded negotiations which began after last February's two-week strike by officers and unlicensed personnel.

It also provides for up to four months leave with pay for any employees undertaking "sustained study" in recognized courses to further their education or improve their working skill.

The agreement also includes an undertaking by the employees not to strike or engage in work stoppages—but these wih be outlawed in any event when the B.C. Mediation Act is proclaimed in December.

CHECKOFF

On its side, management agreed to a union dues checkoff - but this was given to the general civil service union last year by the the cabinet.

Juveniles Charged In Rash of Thefts

At least 10 juveniles were charged in family and children's court today following police investigation of a rash of break-ins in stores and residences over the weekend.

Nothing was reported stolen from the lumber company Monday and the arrests were made the next day. Police said goods had apparently been left behind in the building following the first break-in.

Another juvenile, age 13, was arrested following a break-in at 1346 Thurlow at the weekend. Police said a radio, valued at $85 was reported stolen. Entry was gained to the house through a window police said.

Test of Tow-Away Right Considered by Aldermen

He told the traffic committee Tuesday that he was extremely unhappy with the arbitrary decisions of some private parking lot operators to tow cars away at a cost of $8 to the owners.

"A few nights ago I came out of the Royal Theatre quite late at night to be confronted by a bewildered elderly couple whose car had disappeared," he said.

PRIVATE LAND

"They had inadvertently parked on the commercial lot at the rear and, while it may be true that they hadn't paid the 25 cents required, were now faced with what to them was a tragedy. Their car had gone and they had no idea where it had gone or what they had to do to reclaim it."

Ald. Ramsay was told by traffic engineer Dave Campbell that as parking lots were private property the owners had every right to tow vehicles away.

"You are using their property as a privilege," he said. "They can do what they want."

Ald. Ramsay asked if Mr. Campbell was giving a theoretical answer or an answer based on law.

"As far as I know the right has never been tested," answered Mr. Campbell.

"Maybe somebody should test it," said Ald. Ramsay. "We might have a whole new ball game."

LIKE A STORE

Mayor Hugh Stephen said he didn't feel it within the power of council to control how a private parking lot operator ran his lot.

"It's like a store," he said. "We can't control the way an individual runs his store."

Ald. Ramsay wasn't satisfied.

"Theoretically they may have the right," he said. "But I think they behave in a pretty high-handed and arbitrary way at times. And what is more I do not think there is any necessity for their actions.

"I'm not suggesting that people should be allowed to get way with violations. But I'm sure there's a better way than just the arbitrary towing away of a vehicle at a cost of eight dollars."

Ald Ramsay added that a check of some of the commercial lots in the city would reveal rate signs which are "confusing even to alert people, let alone the elderly."

The city engineer and the city solicitor will examine the situation and report to the committee at a later date.

Court Martial Leaves To Bring in Verdict

Judge Advocate Explains Charges

By JOHN SLINGER

A court martial hearing three charges of negligence against the captain of HMCS Saskatchewan retired today to consider its verdict.

The charges were laid against Commander Norman S. Jackson after his destroyer-escort ran aground September 8 in the foggy entrance to Active Pass. He pleaded not guilty. Testimony of 23 witnesses covered five days.

Before retiring, the court which acts as judge and jury heard a 70-minute direction from the judge advocate, Commander H. C. Ferne of Ottawa. The judge advocate does not sit with the court while it deliberates.

When the ship struck the rock on a return voyage to Esquimalt from Vancouver it sustained damages requiring $15,000 temporary repairs. Extensive repairs will be made when it goes into drydock early next year.

Under sections of the National Defence Act, it is charged that Commander Jackson "negligently hazarded" the ship, "negligently suffered" the ship to be hazarded and "negligently performed a military duty imposed on him" as captain.

Throughout the judge advocate's statement, Commander Jackson, a ruddy-faced 42-year-old, sat expressionless. He looked a little weary of the ordeal since he surrendered his sword to the court six days ago.

There was no indication when a verdict would be reached. There is provision for appeal to a justice of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

'Not One of Perfection'

In directing the court, Commander Ferne explained the principles of law involved in the case and the major points made by the defence. He emphasized to the court, headed by Captain Frederick C. Frewer, that the standard required of officers under Queen's Regulations "is not one of perfection."

He said the alleged negligence "must go beyond an error in judgment," and must include a lack of zeal a measure of indifference or an intentional failure to take proper precautions.

The central defence argument, as stated by the judge advocate, was that the prosecution failed to prove instances of negligence "beyond reasonable doubt."

In summing up the defence case, Commander J. L. Henderson said Tuesday Commander Jackson, as captain of the ship, had been "powerless" to avert the collision.

He said the incident resulted from "sheer coincidence."

"I submit strongly" the information Cmdr. Jackson received "was misleading" and he "was not getting information he should have been getting."

The ship was organized so that reports from one unit were checked by another unit.

"It is sheer coincidence" that at the time of collision, "all checks failed—there was a false report from the operations room and it was confirmed by the navigating officer."

The prosecutor, Major D. W. Ward agreed with defence testimony that Cmdr. Jackson "did all he could" in the last moments before the ship struck ground.

'Hadn't Done Anything Earlier'

"But the reason he had to do anything was that he hadn't done anything earlier" to prepare for the passage from Vancouver to Esquimalt.

He refuted the defence argument that Cmdr. Jackson had not committed the ship to going through Active Pass when it ran aground.

Cmdr. Jackson had testified that when he was "weighing the decision" to turn back from the foggy passage he did not know the ship was off course and in danger.

"I submit," said the prosecutor, "that if the ship had been dead on course it would have been too late" to have made a safe turnaround in the confined waters of the pass.

"It would, in fact, have been a very dangerous manoeuvre."

The prosecution suggested that the accident was largely the "result of deficiencies on the part" of the ship's navigating officer.

The deficiencies arose from a lack of qualifications and experience.

The defence replied that the court must assume the ship's officers were competent, "because they were posted to the ship;" and there was "no evidence of inexperience."

Cmdr. Henderson argued that there was no regulation calling for preparation of a "blind passage" plan for Active Pass.

Saskatchewan's plan was to go through the Pass using visual support and, for clear weather conditions, "the plan wasn't a bad one."

Plan Would Have Worked

He said the plan for going through the Pass would have worked had the ship's junior officers carried out their tasks properly.

He asked the court to remember naval regulations attempted, by giving certain responsibilities - to - subordinate officers, to leave the captain, in his "command position," free of a "myriad" minor responsibilities.

The prosecuting officer asked why Cmdr. Jackson, as a navigation specialist, had not recognized the "unsatisfactory features" of the planned course through Active Pass.

The navigator was faulted for failing to properly check out the ship's navigating equipment, for failing to take account of tides at the entrance to Active Pass, for failing to use a chart with a scale large enough to properly show the dangers and for failing to advise the captain that the ship was possibly in danger.

But the fact that some members of the crew were "dreadfully inexperienced" was a factor Cmdr. Jackson should "have taken into account."

When the ship approached the Pass and no land was visible, the captain immediately "should have reconsidered" his plan to go through.

The prosecutor said "all these omissions" on the part of the captain fell short of the standard—"a very high standard"—required of commanding officers of ships like Saskatchewan.

Major Ward commended the ship's operations officer for having carried out his duties "efficiently" and "to the best of his abilities" considering the shortage of qualified personnel aboard.

He said the defence contention was that the operations officer, Lieut. Bran Oudshoorn, "should have screamed or done something" to indicate his concern for impending danger.

That was not the way an operations officer was expected to "carry on.

POLL CLERKS SOUGHT FOR OCT. 26

Victoria city clerk Morran Waller is looking for 25 poll clerks to assist in the vote counting for the Oct. 26 $9.3 million hospitals referendum.

Mr. Waller said today that applicants for the available positions must apply at the city clerk's office, city hall, on Monday, Oct. 21 before 5 p.m.

"We do not accept telephone applications nor written applications," Mr. Waller said, "the application must be made in person to myself or one of my assistants."

Polling hours on Oct. 26 are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Jubilee Needs New Labs First

New laboratory facilities are the first priority on Royal Jubilee Hospital's new construction program.

Hospital board chairman Courtney Haddock said today replacement of the existing laboratory is essential if the hospital is to stay abreast of growing demands.

He was commenting on Jubilee's $1,263,870 share of the $9.3 million hospital construction, renovation and equipment bylaw which goes to the people on Oct. 26.

"A new laboratory has to be our number one project," Mr. Haddock said. "Anyone who has ever been inside the present lab and seen the archaic conditions the staff work under will realize that."

BLANK CHEQUE?

"I know that some people are saying it's like voting a blank cheque, but I don't think that criticism is valid. We have to trust somebody and I think the men and women administering the major hospitals in this area are people we can trust. I can assure you none of them are wasting money.

The breakdown of funds to be made available to the two major hospitals if the referendum receives 60 per cent or more of the votes cast, is as follows:

Jubilee: $169,000 for new construction; $468,000 for renovations to the existing plant; $626,870 for new equipment for a total of $1,263,870.

St. Joseph's Hospital: $227,348 for new construction; $347,700 for renovations and $587,329 for equipment for a total of $1,162,377.

Planning and land acquisition costs will add a further $400,000 to acute care cost estimates.

MORE BEDS

Extended care beds will take the bulk of the money made available if the $9.3 million referendum is approved.

Of the $8,650,000 required for extended care the breakdown is as follows:

Site acquisition, $115,000; a total of 450 beds, class "A" construction, $6,111,000; a total of 250 beds class "B" construction, $1,400,000; equipment, $786,000 supplies and working capital $238,000.

Regional Hospital District Board executive director William Long notes that the apparent discrepancy between the totals listed and the $9.3 million to be raised is brought about by the application of federal grants and provincial government equipment grants.

There are included in the total amount to be spent in developing hospital needs, but are not included in the amount to be raised by the referendum.

GRANTS DUE

Mr. Long also stressed that of the $9.3 million to be raised the owner-electors eligible to vote would be responsible for only 40 per cent of that total.

With more than 81,000 owner electors eligible to vote advance polling stations will be open between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Oct. 24-25 at eleven locations.

Q. Recently I was much impressed by Paul Scofield's acting in "A Man for All Seasons." Could you tell me something about his acting background and his address?—W.J.

A. (David) Paul Scofield was born Jan. 21, 1922. He received his early education at the Varndean School for Boys. His specialized theatre training was with the Croydon Repertory (1939) and the London Mask Theatre School (1940). Among the more famous theatres he has appeared in are the Phoenix, Stratford-on-Avon and the Globe. In 1955 he played the part of Hamlet in Moscow. Among his Shakespearean credits are Hamlet, King Lear, MacBeth, Much Ado About Nothing. He made the movie "A Man for All Seasons" in 1966. He has been a member of the Royal Shakespearean Directorate in England since 1966. His address is The Gables, Balcombe, Sussex, England.

Navy Man Guilty On One Charge

The court ruled Cdr. Jackson "negligently hazarded one of Her Majesty's Canadian ships" while navigating Active Pass. (See earlier story Page 13.)

The court returned to deliver its verdict after two hours and 30 minutes of deliberations.

They ordered proceedings stayed on a third charge that Cdr. Jackson "negligently suffered to be hazarded" his ship.

Recreational Area Bypassed By Rail Route

VANCOUVER (CP) — An alternative rail route, which would bypass the Boundary Bay recreational area, was proposed today to link the planned Roberts Bank deepsea port to Canadian Pacific Railway lines at Mission.

The route was outlined in a report prepared by J. F. Broadbent, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

He said capital costs of his proposed route would be $7,000,000 less than two other proposed rail links, one outlined by the British Columbia Power and Hydro Authority and the second advocated by the Lower Mainland Regional Planning Board.

The report was requested by Premier Bennett following criticism of the Hydro-proposed route, which would traverse the Boundary Bay recreation area.

INDUSTRIAL LAND

The planning board had suggested a route that would go through land reserved for industrial purposes along the South Arm of the Fraser River.

Mr. Broadbent, who announced his proposal at a news conference attended by the premier, said all three routes were of equal length. His suggested route would bypass the Boundary Bay recreational area favored by Hydro and would eliminate costly construction of low level swing bridges required if the route followed the South Arm of the Fraser River.

Premier Bennett said there are "a lot of good points in the report and the government will study it."

"I am sure the people will too," he added.

Premier Bennett said he expected the government would "act very quickly" on the report.

"We want action on the railroad and we want to start construction in one or two months."

Journey Raises Hopes

By ERIC WENTWORTH
The Washington Post

PARIS — Le Duc Tho, the top-ranking North Vietnamese official who advises his government's delegation at the peace talks here, left by plane Monday for Moscow on his way to Hanoi.

North Vietnamese sources described Tho's journey as a routine matter. Nonetheless, his departure at what could be a critical time for the long-stalled talks was bound to arouse speculation: either Tho was on some delicate diplomatic mission, or conversely he saw no immediate hope for bargaining progress here.

Hanoi delegation spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said nothing about Tho's departure at his news conference Monday morning.

Meanwhile, members of the U.S. delegation were beginning to show interest in what they regard as a possible new lull in enemy combat activity in South Vietnam.

There was nothing Monday to suggest the Americans viewed such a reduction in Communist ground action over the past week as having diplomatic relevance as yet.

KEEN SEARCH

But their interest, if nothing else, reflected their keen search for any evidence of Communist willingness to de-escalate. Such a move could lead President Johnson to halt the remaining bombing of North Vietnam and thus, hopefully, break the Paris bargaining deadlock.

FIRST-DAY RESPONSE GOOD

Victorians responded well on the first day of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal's door-to-door canvass, an appeal spokesman said today.

"We haven't any figures yet, but the over-all response was good."

He added that the first total for the residential canvassing division will be available Friday.

"It's too early to feel pessimistic and it's too early to feel confident," chairman Robert Hutchison told his campaign division chairmen at their first major report meeting Tuesday.

He said although the campaign has collected more than $230,000 much more effort will be required to reach the "awesome" $655,000 target.

Jim Strong, Corporation Division chairman, reported the chartered banks section has surpassed its suggested goal—the first section to do so this year.

Dr. Jack Mercer, Individual Advance Gifts chairman, reported his division will likely reach its $65,500 objective by mid-November.

And William Henderson, General Firms chairman, said his division, which accounts for $41,900 of the objective, is making good progress.

He said his division has collected about $35,000 but quite possibly it will not reach its $50,000 quota.

Mr. Hutchison agreed that Federal division had a tough goal and said if it is not met the other eight divisions will have to take up the slack.

He added that there are enough community-minded people in the area to reach the $655,000 mark but they must be approached individually.

"We have to get out and talk eyeball to eyeball with these people," he said. "If we talk to enough of them we'll reach our target."

Pupil Revolt Falters; Two Schools Re-Open

U.K. Tries To Bypass Paris Veto

PARIS (Reuters) — The Western European Union today passed a resolution seen by observers as a warning to France that progress towards European unity can no longer wait for it.

The assembly of the union—a discussion forum for legislators of the six European Common Market nations and Britain, voted 56 to 2 to endorse a new attempt by Britain to outflank a French veto on its efforts to join the market.

French delegates abstained in the vote which called for a political conference to strengthen co-operation in foreign relations, defence technology and in any other field not covered by the Common Market treaty. Two Italian delegates voted against the resolution.

MONTREAL (CP) — A week-long student revolt was faltering today following a warning from Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal that students will have to start their school year over again unless they return to classes shortly.

Students at two Montreal junior colleges, in the northern Ahuntsic and the northeastern Rosemount districts, voted Tuesday night to end their occupation of the buildings. Votes were being held in other colleges today.

Still in student hands were eight of the province's 23 new post-secondary colleges. Sympathizers boycotted classes in other institutions, but this type of support appeared to be crumbling.

At the University of Montreal, students of the philosophy and social science faculties were occupying their departments, but others returned to classes.

At Loyola College, where students had voted 874 to 617 in favor of study sessions to support the demands of junior college students, the administration refused to cancel classes on grounds that the vote was not representative of the 3,000-member student body.

The student revolt began last week at Lionel Groulx College in Ste. Therese de Blainville, 20 miles north of Montreal, when dissatisfied teen-agers took over the building.

The youthful strikers complained about a lack of university facilities and a revised student aid plan that includes a cutback in scholarship funds and higher interest rates on student loans.

They say there will not be enough university space to accommodate most of them when they complete the two-year junior college course next year.

Education Minister Cardinal has said that a promised second French-language university in Montreal will open on schedule next September, but nothing can be done about the student aid program because of a lack of money.

College administrators originally maintained a hands-off attitude toward student takeover tactics, but three of them indicated Tuesday they are adopting a get-tough policy.

In the Saguenay River city of Chicoutimi, administrators of the student-occupied college announced that classes will resume next Monday and students who do not show up will have to start their school year afresh.

Increase Due In Production

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Continued growth of the Canadian economy, with less inflation and more production of goods and services, is forecast in the pre-budget white paper Finance Minister Benson tabled in the Commons today.

The 220-page economic white paper, which forms the basis for the tax-setting budget speech he delivers Tuesday, Oct. 22, said the gross national product should increase at about the same rate in the next nine to 12 months as it is growing this year.

"However," it said, "more of the increase should be in quantity, and less in prices, than in 1967 and 1968."

The gross national product was running in April, May and June this year at an annual rate of $66,396,000,000, an increase of 6.8 per cent over the same period last year. The total value of all goods and services produced in the country, at current prices in 1967, also ran 6.8 per cent ahead of 1966.

Price increases this year, the report said, have been somewhat less than they were last year. But inflationary pressures have not been completely checked.

The white paper contained the principal figures on last fiscal year's federal government revenues and expenditures as announced Sept. 9: Revenues $9,076,589,447, and expenditures $9,868,991,686, leaving a budgetary deficit of $792,402,239, the highest in peacetime.

In his June 1, 1967, budget speech former finance minister Mitchell Sharp had forecast a $740,000,000 deficit based on revenues of $8,960,000,000 and expenditures of $9,700,000,000 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

Mr. Sharp's last estimate of revenues and expenditures for the current fiscal year before becoming external affairs minister was for revenues of $10,185,000,000, expenditures of $10,225,000,000 and a $40,000,000 deficit.

Mr. Benson has since said he wants to hold spending this fiscal year to $10,300,000,000 and balance the budget. But the government has already tabled spending estimates totalling $10,670,930,586 and must write off $138,000,000 as the federal government's share of the Expo 67 deficit.

How Mr. Benson proposes to raise taxes or otherwise meet the government's spending commitments will be the key part of his budget speech. Because of the form of Canadian personal and corporation income taxes, federal government revenues tend to rise rapidly with increases in the gross national product, or GNP.

Highlights Of Report

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Current growth rate of gross national product to be maintained for next nine to 12 months.

Price increases moderating but rate is still unacceptable and better performance is crucial.

Net national debt climbs to $16,757,400,000 or $809 per capita at last March 31, compared with $785 a year earlier.

Exports, housing, centennial and Expo spending all helped keep economy out of recession in last 18 months.

Labor force growth tops most industrialized countries, but new jobs fail to keep pace.

Canadian dollar shared effects of international monetary disturbances in last 12 months but sense of crisis now past.

The white paper said that during the last 18 months, the Canadian economy went through a period of adjustment. While some economic indicators turned downwards, others remained buoyant, so that the adjustment could not really be called a recession.

However, the outlook now was for continued moderate growth. The United States would feel the delayed effects of its tax increase and spending cut, but this should not seriously affect Canada.

"A rapid increase in GNP in the first two quarters of 1968 is expected to give way to more moderate rates of increase in the third and fourth quarters of the current year," the white paper said.

"While it is too early as yet to forecast the full year 1969, there are indications that moderate rates of growth will persist in the first half of 1969."

Business investment in new plant and equipment is expected to be up about three per cent this year. Total public and private investment is expected to increase six per cent. Housing activity will be greater in 1969 than in 1968, and an easing of interest rates will encourage it.

Personal expenditure on goods and services, which accounts for more than half the GNP, should continue to be strong in the year ahead, contributing to the strength of the whole economy.

U.S. TO SLASH CANADIAN BUYING

OTTAWA (CP) — The bloom is off the boom in Canada's export sales to the U.S. this year, says the pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons today by Finance Minister Benson.

The U.S. can be expected to scale down its purchases "substantially" from the first half of 1968 now that tax increases and government spending cuts are taking effect there.

The remarkable increase in sales to the U.S. — 25 per cent in the first half — more than compensated for declining sales to Italy, Japan and some other major buyers.

But the budget papers are not pessimistic about the trade balance for the year despite the expected slack in American buying.

Canada's merchandise trade surplus for the first half ran at an annual rate of more than $1,000,000,000, double the level of the same period last year.

Lower exports at year-end will offset only to an extent other favorable developments in the Canadian economy, such as easing price and cost pressures, inventory building, and rising business and housing investment.

Casting back to the 1967 export performance, the review says a recovery of sales in the fourth quarter was "extraordinary."

Wheat exports were in a slump and automotive sales affected by strikes. Other exports, however, rose about 13 per cent in the quarter as foreign demand increased, especially in Europe and the U.S. Sales of copper, iron and steel increased, reflecting strikes and potential strikes.

Export figures available since the budget papers were prepared show that the anticipated decline in sales to the U.S. had not taken hold to the end of September.

Sales during that month were up 26 per cent over the previous year. For the nine-month period, they were up 25.7 per cent.

Exports to all countries were 33 per cent higher in September and 18.4 per cent higher between January and September at $9,882,000,000.

Plane 'Wedged' in Mountain

The aircraft wedged in a crevice, 3,500 feet above the ground, and pilot Ayliffe (Pat) Carey, a Terrace magistrate, watched the engine tear loose from the fuselage and sail away into the snow.

Tuesday night, RCMP described the crash near this community 500 miles north of Vancouver as fantastic after Mr. Carey was rescued by mountain climbers and a helicopter.

"He flew right into a wedge-shaped gully about 3,500 feet up the mountain," said an RCMP spokesman.

"The plane went on until the wings bent and jammed. The motor went on by itself for another 100 feet into the gully.

"He was left on a tiny ledge with a 2,000 foot drop behind him. Ten feet either way and he would have been killed."

Mr. Carey was reported overdue after he failed to arrive at Leduc, 40 miles northwest of here, with a cargo of five drums of fuel for Granduc mines.

He was spotted by a helicopter crew 500 feet above the snow line on an 8,000-foot peak six miles from his destination.

They were unable to reach him, but four mountain climbers flown in later got a rope to Mr. Carey and then lowered him down the mountain face to a spot where he could be reached by helicopter.

He was flown to Stewart and then to Prince Rupert to have his cut treated.

The Economist

The one sure thing about this divided world is that whatever else you can do with it, you can't just climb off it.

After 20 years of the cold war, it should not need to be said that the single most important fact about the second half of the twentieth century is the division of the world between Communists and non-Communists, and that we are all caught up in the consequences of this division.

Yet it is necessary to say it, because the climbers-off are having a go at it again.

The fact that both the Americans and the Russians are simultaneously unpopular, because of Vietnam and Czechoslovakia, has made quite a lot of people say that they want nothing to do with the great ideological clash that caused the crises in Vietnam and Czechoslovakia.

Lenin

Can't Stand Aloof

The same sort of thing happened in the 1950s, when a group of Asian and African politicians tried to argue that there was a thing called the "third world" which could stand aloof from the great east-west quarrel. There wasn't, and it couldn't.

It happened again in the mid-1960s, when it was General de Gaulle's turn to try to find the non-existent place away from it all. Now it is happening for a third time, as the young people on the new left wing of politics take up the search for the ideological Shangri La that Mr. Nehru and General de Gaulle could not find.

It was impossible then, and it's impossible now, because there is no third centre of power in the world that is capable of sustaining the search for a third way between the communist and western systems.

Of course, it is possible for individual countries to be militarily neutral. It is possible for them to trade with both sides and even — though this is getting steadily harder — to be given money and food and steel mills by both sides. But it is not possible to be politically neuter.

There are at bottom two ways, and only two, in which countries today organize their economic and political life.

One is Lenin's way, as it has been inherited by the 14 Communist governments in the world, which puts all important decisions in all fields of life into the hands of a single, centralized and highly disciplined Communist party. The other is the pluralist system of the west, which is based on competition between several independent centres of economic and-or political power.

There is no country that does not fall pretty decisively into one category or the other.

There are differences of degree within each group, but they are less important than the yawning gulf between the two sides: for all their differences, Albania and Yugoslavia have more in common, in the essentials of the way they organize themselves, than either of them has with any non-Communist country.

Not All Democratic

It is perfectly true that many countries in the non-Marxist part of the world are pluralist in their economic life without being pluralist in their politics — that is, they are capitalist but not democratic.

It is something that western radicals should be rapping their consciences about twice daily before breakfast. But it does not remove the essential difference between the two parts of the world.

What the Russians have done to Czechoslovakia makes it clear that this difference remains as large as ever. Until August 21st it had been possible to believe, on the basis of what had been happening first in Yugoslavia and then in Czechoslovakia, that a new variant of Communism was taking shape in eastern Europe that would combine the principle of public ownership with a slow but steady progress towards a pluralist system in economics and even, eventually, in politics.

The invasion of Czechoslovakia has smashed that belief. It is only in Yugoslavia that a real attempt is still being made to liberalize Communism, and even in Yugoslavia it has yet to be proved that the Russians will let the experiment continue or that the experiment will actually work if they do.

Until more open-minded men come to power in Moscow — the fact remains that all the world's real working democracies are on the non-Marxist side of the great dividing line.

The evidence is that pluralism in politics, which is what makes democracy possible, grows best out of the soil of a pluralist economic system. It may not be conclusive evidence, but it is what we have to be going on with.

Fundamental Split

What the invasion of Czechoslovakia has done is to remind people that this is the really fundamental division of today's world. It has destroyed General de Gaulle's argument that the difference between Communists and non-Communists in Europe is less important than the difference between Europeans and Americans.

The central issue of the next 20 years is not a matter of what continent you come from, or what color your skin is. It is which of the two rival systems of ideas, Lenin's centralism or western pluralism, most people are going to be living under a generation from now. We have been driven back to the heart of the matter.

This is not the only thing the invasion of Czechoslovakia has done. It has also made people remember where the centre of gravity lies in each of the two great power-systems.

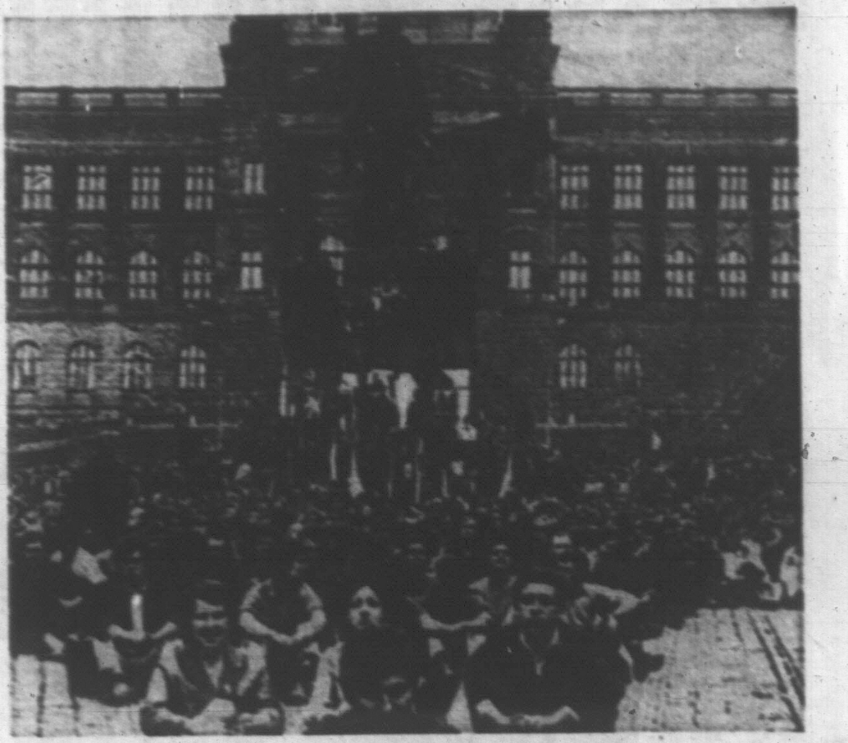
None Independent

It lies in America and Russia; and it will stay there so long as these two countries maintain their present preponderance of economic and military strength. No other country is wholly independent of one or the other of them.

Every other country relies, to some extent, on one of the two giants for trade, for economic help, for technological stimulus and, in the last resort, for military protection.

The channels of power lead back to either Moscow or Washington. It is not an ideal world, but it is the world we have got.

It will not change until some new centre of power comes into being, in Europe or Japan or China, which can perform the same function. That has not happened yet.



RUSSIAN INVASION of Czechoslovakia made clear that differences between Communists and Western systems is as great as ever, despite hopes that gap had been narrowing. Czechs like these who sat in Prague Square in front of Statue of King Wenceslaus in passive demonstration against Soviet occupying forces had hoped to find middle way but discovered it was impossible.

And until it does happen it is as pointless to resent the way the world works as it would be to resent the fact that the earth goes round the sun.

The probability is that the world is going to stay a two-system place, with two dominant centres of power, for a long time to come.

Separate Questions

It therefore matters very much, to those who are concerned about political liberty, how the two super-powers conduct their relations with the lesser powers within their orbit.

This involves two separate questions. The first is under what conditions the United States and Russia will let a country cross the dividing line between one camp and the other without trying to prevent it.

The second is what range of political choice a country can hope to enjoy within the limits imposed by the fact that it belongs to one system and not the other.

Pravda answered the first question for the Russians on September 26th, bluntly and unequivocally. A Communist country is free to do certain things, said the Pravda article, but it is not free to depart from Communism.

This presumably means that even if a Communist electorate were to reject the single list of candidates the party puts in front of it at election time, which in all conscience is unlikely enough, the party would call on whatever force was necessary to maintain itself in power. It is an extraordinary arrogant assertion, and it differs markedly from the American position.

The American say they will do nothing to prevent a Communist party taking power in a non-Communist country if the change takes place according to the democratic forms.

The interventions in the Dominican Republic and Vietnam are not incompatible with this: the Americans sent troops into those countries because they claimed that the Communists were trying to take power by force, and without the consent of a majority of the population.

Of course one is entitled to wonder what the Americans would really do if a majority of Italians or Frenchmen voted a Communist government into power. They might not live up to their promise to keep their hands off. But at least the commitment is there in principle. Pravda's isn't.

How Wide a Range?

In any case, there are not likely to be many countries that are going to risk making the jump from one system to the other. The more important test is how wide a range of political choice is available to the members of each system short of leaving it altogether.

For most countries on the non-Communist side of the dividing line the answer is fairly plain. They can vary their governments over a range that extends from the far right to the middling-far left — up to and including, as Finland shows, a Communist share in a coalition government — without any objections from the United States.

This is not true everywhere. It is a perfectly fair criticism of the Americans that in parts of Asia and Latin America they have been willing to lend their moral (or rather immoral) support to right-wing dictators who give their people no political choice at all.

Army Around Neck

But this shabby politicking is a very different thing from sending armies of tanks rolling across frontiers. By invading Czechoslovakia the Russians have made it plain that they will not let any member of the Communist alliance diverge in any important way from Russia's idea of how a Communist country ought to be run.

Mr. Dubcek was pretty certainly not trying to change the essentials of the Communist system in Czechoslovakia. He was trying to make it more liberal, and therefore more efficient. He got a Russian army around his neck for his pains. The difference cannot be ignored.

The essential political choice for the rest of this century is going to be between two rival systems of organizing a country's life. If the Russians' action in Czechoslovakia is an indication of what they have in mind for their system, the choice is not a hard one.

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

The writing and publishing of books on Canadian politics is accelerating. Most of us are waiting impatiently for the coming books of Peter Newman and Judy LaMarsh on the Pearson period.

Fisher

Meanwhile we've just galloped through three recent books, one of which, Richard Gwyn's Smallwood: The Unlikely Revolutionary, is almost a great book, as entertaining as Neil McKenty's Mitch Hepburn, as fast-paced as Newman's Renegade In Power (though not so thorough or comprehensive).

The gift Richard Gwyn showing in the Shape of Scandal (1965) for meshing detail, description of events and persons in a smooth continuity is still evident but the subject here, a rich personality, is a greater challenge and opportunity than the series of disasters which rocked the Pearson government in its first three years of office.

Crowe

The first third of the Smallwood book covers Mr. Smallwood's career to his marvellous accomplishment of confederation with Canada in 1948. This saga is little known to Canadians outside Newfoundland.

•

It may be the weakest in accuracy and the most biased in the premier's favor. We can't judge that but until confederation Joey comes through as every bit the "folk hero", the description which Mr. Gwyn believes the rest of Canada still holds of him.

The gist of the rest of the book (at least to us) is that the folk hero is pretty shabby morally and more distinguished by failures or shortfall successes than his overwhelming electoral triumphs in provincial elections would indicate.

Clearly, Mr. Smallwood co-operated thoroughly with Mr. Gwyn and we don't think the author deliberately set out to degrade or impugn his subject. The details of the Wabush story (iron and John Doyle) and the Churchill Falls story (Jean Lesage, Robert Winters, and the Rothschilds) are gem chapters about a ruthless, resolute, unconquerable spirit.

The following excerpts describing Smallwood, the domineering politician, and his methods are only samples of many which have a cumulative effect. They leave one with the difficult question: Is total political success and a continuing, exciting impact on the people of both Newfoundland and Canada a justification for methods which are corrupt and corrupting?

"In public, he was openly contemptuous of his subordinates. In private, he tolerated no personal relationship except sycophancy.

"Quick to score off others, Smallwood tolerated little humor at his own expense and his colleagues; when they ribbed him, did so with painful circumspection.

"Fear itself is nothing new in the island. For centuries, Newfoundland had suffered the untrammelled power of the 'fishing admirals,' of merchants, of colonial government and of clerics. But systematic intimidation by a political machine which responded to the will of a single man was new and terrifying.

•

SMALLWOOD

"Political debate, once a bawdy Newfoundland art form, was driven underground, to be voiced only in taverns and private homes . . . the miasma of fear pervaded everywhere.

"The Liberal Party's demands for election funds was insatiable, and the penalties for niggardliness were severe.

"The real cost of corruption was moral. Cynicism by government invited public cynicism.

"Like most populists, who love the mass rather than the individual it was always in Smallwood's nature to become a dictator.

"Although a public fund raising campaign brought in less than $1,000, the advance sale of senatorships proved lucrative. The going price was $10,000 and two were purchased, though unhappily one donor became involved in an income tax case and never reached the red chamber."

Two notable Ottawa politicians, Jack Pickersgill and Davie Fulton, fare rather poorly in the book, the Tory for his failure to resign over the decision of the Diefenbaker government not to support him and send RCMP reinforcements into the loggers' strike, the Grit through being cast mainly and repeatedly as the premier's tool in levering more money out of the Federal Government.

•

Both are gone for the moment from active politics and Mr. Gwyn's conclusion is that Joey is almost gone and his like won't be seen again in Newfoundland. His memorial is really the certainty, according to Mr. Gwyn, that the new generation of Newfoundlanders owe their freedom to Joey Smallwood, the man who, paradoxically, denied it to them for so long.

Is the CBC Giving You The Olympics You Want?

By ART STOTT

When the CBC was working on the build-up for coverage of the current Olympic Games in Mexico, it carried three extended programs dealing with previous Olympiads. I saw two and thought they were excellent. One feature of the second, however, left me a little confused. At the end of that presentation two photography critics discussed the camera techniques, particularly those used in the Berlin Games. The criticism left the viewer feeling that the person who handled the photography was artistically lacking.

Stott

To my eyes, the production was splendid. It showed the events as they took place. You saw the competitors in action. You shared their exertions, their triumphs their personal tragedies. It seemed to me that the photography critics had missed the whole point of the Olympics, which is not a show staged for the benefit of the lens. The picture report is incidental and, I believe, adequate if it presents the events as they occurred.

In some of the CBC programs from Mexico I've had the unpleasant suspicion that too much concern is probably being shown by the Canadian television crew for the arty side of the thing. We get frescoes, girls' volley-ball, more girl's volley-ball and weight lifting. The girls look very attractive. The weight-lifters look like weight-lifters, with facial expressions not very dissimilar to mine when I raise the kitchen stove to slip the linoleum under it.

* * *

I would like to have seen Canadian treatment of Harry Jerome in the final of the 100 metres sprint. When the rowing events were staged, it was interesting enough to see the New Zealand eight winning, but something less than satisfactory to me to be told that Canada had a shell in the race that finished far back—out of contention. Possibly Canadian viewers would have appreciated a view of the boat, to see how far back it was and to estimate what has to be done to bring our crews up to the standard Frank Read gave UBC.

Nor am I enormously impressed by the picture of a Canadian at a desk carrying a sign identified with the Olympics in Mexico City, reading off Canadian results as easily as a desk man in Vancouver or Victoria could have read the wire copy transmitted at little expense. He's an attractive young man, but I'd rather see Canadian athletes in action.

No doubt the kind of coverage some us hoped for will emerge as the Games progress. We have enough faith in people like Ted Reynolds to expect that. Or maybe we have the wrong idea about the whole thing. Maybe television coverage of the Games is more important from the point of camera technique than from the presentation of what we consider the gut matter—the actual contests, geared by CBC to suit the interest of Canadian viewers. Maybe the art of the picture is more significant than the striving of the athletes.

Of course the problem of TV coverage is complex. Events are staged in different locations. Cameramen cannot be everywhere at once. Transmission difficulties arise. But we take it that the CBC crew is composed of pros who recognize the difficulties involved and can anticipate them.

* * *

On other similar occasions of earlier date Canadians have frequently criticized American coverage. The argument has been that the U.S. cameramen and reporters were overweighting their production to highlight mediocre Americans while giving top-flight contenders from other countries less than they deserved. The reply to that argument was simple: American reporters were providing for Americans the reportage they wanted. Perhaps, without being entirely chauvinistic, we might look for some of that national emphasis from the Canadian television people. Sure, we want to see the winners and the champions. We also want to know what our athletes have been doing and to see it in pictures, not voiced as it might be relayed from the telegraph wire.

I think it can be done. When Andy Gillespie attended the Rome Olympics, he had a zoom camera which he focussed on Harry Jerome in the 100 metres sprint when Harry pulled off the track into the infield. The picture was right there. Andy is not a professional in that field. But he provided what a lot of us wanted to see.

If, in the fulness of time, CBC comes up with an award-winning film on the Mexico Olympics, full of technical excellence and art, so much the better. I'd settle though, for a good, clear paicture of Canadian effort shown as it happens, or immediately after, dovetailed into an overall picture of the Olympiad, with the champions and near champions also given adequate coverage. In a strictly personal assessment, I'd say the medium is not the message at this point.

CHICAGO (AP)—Commodity prices reacted sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade today to reports of possible peace manoeuvres over Viet Nam and subsequent cooling off of these rumors by President Johnson.

The initial effect of these various peace reports tended to advance wheat, corn and soybean prices about a cent within minutes of the opening.

'Should Do Own Work'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Mediation Commission was accused Tuesday night of asking unions to "stool-pigeon" on themselves by requesting detailed information on agreements, certifications and bargaining units.

"As far as I, personally, am concerned I don't want to assist the commission because I don't think it should be there in the first place," William Stewart of the Marine and Boilermakers Union told Vancouver Labor council.

"The commission is asking the trade union movement to stoolpigeon on itself."

He said that under the provisions of the Labor Relations Act the information is on file with the department and labor should not have to do the work of the commission.

Toronto Ends Decline

Among the heaviest traders were Revenue Properties and Trizec.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Leigh Instruments gained 2 to 43¼, Dylex Diversified 1⅝ to 45⅝ and Levy 1¼ to 31½. Maclean-Hunter fell 1¼ to 14 and Imperial Oil 1¼ to 80.

Pine Point rose 2⅛ to 46½, Preston 1 to 23¼ and Placer ⅝ to 32⅝.

Canadian Superior Oil dropped 1¼ to 60⅝, Charter Oil 1 to 14⅝ and Canadian Gridoil ½ to 15.

Simpsons lost 4 to 37; Levy, 1⅜ to 30; Rothmans, 1 to 25, and Radio Engineering, ½ to 42½. Texaco added 1⅛ to 32⅝ on 225 shares.

North American Rare Metals picked up 8 cents to 73 cents on 234,000 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

AT LONDON the market continued its recovery on a modest scale today, but the threat of an engineering strike in Britain on Monday, tended to restrict business.

British funds were quietly firm. Equity leaders were mostly better.

Gains ranging to sixpence or so were recorded by ICI, Rank, Hudson's Bay, Courtaulds, Bowater, English Electric and GEC firmed slightly.

Golds were depressed with losses ranging to around 2s. Western Mining, up 6s 9d to 101s on its nickel exploration partnership with Sherritt Gordon Mines of Canada, led a widespread improvement in Australians.

Oils were firm.

Canadian stocks were mixed, although International Nickel gained nearly three points to 112½. Algoma, Alcan, Cominco and B-A Oil advanced about $1 each.

AT VANCOUVER prices of mining issues were mixed in heavy pre-noon trading today.

Dynasty was strong and rose .37 to $10.75 and Benson traded 109,500 shares to show a four-cent gain at .69. Buchanan was another active issue and was up .05 at .41 on 139,700 shares.

However, Arctic dipped .15 to $3, Northlode was down .25 to $3.80 and Magnet lost .08 to $1.77.

Bata traded 42,800 shares in the oils and put on .10 to $2.20, but in the industrials, Neon fell $1 to $33.50, EDP lost .50 to $23, Block Bros. was .50 stronger at $19.

Sweepstake Winner Hit by Tax Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) —In a case that took four years to advance to an Exchequer Court decision, a sweepstake winner recently was ordered to pay $11,000 gift tax on his $150,000 windfall.

It was a rare instance of effectiveness for the gift tax, which the Carter royal commission on taxation has described as "almost useless."

Even in this case, as the tax reporting authority CCH Canadian Ltd. advised this month, the individual could have beaten the tax by drafting a simple document when he put the $150,00 in the bank.

His mistake was to deposit the money in a joint account, without proving that half of it was not intended for his wife.

Lacking evidence to the contrary, the Exchequer Court deemed half the deposit to be a gift and assessed the $11,000 tax against the husband as donor.

The couple said they understood the husband would be the only one to withdraw any money unless he was unable to do so, but the understanding did not hold up in court.

A written statement to this effect, or separate accounts, would have saved the day, said CCH Canadian Ltd.

EASY TO AVOID

The Carter commission report said existing gift and estate taxes are an anarchronism. They can easily be avoided through the use of personal corporations, trust and exemptions.

Carter proposed bringing all gifts into a comprehensive tax base and taxing them at full progressive rates like all other additions to income.

Exemptions based on Carter's definition of the family unit and other annual and lifetime exemptions would mean that most people would never pay tax on any gifts or bequests.

But large gifts by wealthy people would be captured in the process and total revenues would more than double to $350,000,000 a year on the basis of 1962 figures.

Automation Helps Pair Build Ranch

PENTICTON (CP) — Two brothers from the United States who compare running a cattle ranch to the automotive industry, have invested more than $250,000 to prove their theories.

"Cars improve every year and so must a rancher's cattle," says 33-year-old Joe Rodgers. "You can't afford to stand pat without improvements to the models, which a rancher must achieve by better breeding."

Joe and brother Barry, 31, own and operate the 80-square-mile Shingle Creek ranch west of this Okanagan Valley city.

With machinery and two hired men, they have begun building an integrated, automated property out of their 51,000 acres, accomplishing in six years what would have taken an army of farm workers to achieve half a century ago.

Their goal, by 1973, is 700 commercial Herefords and a 300-head purebred herd. They now have a 500-head commercial herd and 150 purebreds—developed from 100 head on the ranch when they bought it.

They have put in 14 miles of fence, increased hay production to 1,000 tons a year from 180 tons, cleared land, put in irrigation, built new buildings—including two homes for themselves—dammed creeks, introduced pheasants and grouse, and created a small lake stocked with thousands of trout.

CUSTOMS STRANGE

"I suppose I never realized what I was getting into," said Linda. "When we first came here all there was was an old log cabin. I had never worked over a wood-burning stove and the men we hired wouldn't eat the meat I cooked."

She soon discovered that Canadian cowboys don't like rare beef. The reverse is true in the U.S.

When increasing the size and quality of their herds over the next few years, the brothers also will automate their feeding operation.

Four big silos are planned, and the ranch soon will start buying grain from the Peace River area and do its own milling and processing.

In the six years the brothers have owned the ranch, last summer was the first time Joe had found time to take a holiday.

"I admit that we have over $250,000 tied up in the ranch and to most this probably looks like we are rich," he said. "Most people have a holiday every year, and I wonder how many realize the work that goes into establishing a ranch and then running it. We've just been too busy."

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07 1/32 for cheques, $1.06¾ for cash, $1.05¾ for silver. Sales were $1.07¾ for cheques and $1.07¾ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07 5/16. Pound sterling was up 1/16 at $2.56 7/16.

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 93 13/64 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was up 3/64 at $2.38 63/64.

Available with ice-grip studs for only $6 extra per tire during this sale

- ✓ Our most popular winter tire at reduced prices for a limited time only. Save $2.14 to $6.14 per pair, up to $8.14 when you buy them with studs
- ✓ Premium Traction's wide, deep tread digs into the snow, gets you moving and keeps you moving in severest of Canadian winter conditions
- ✓ Built with 4-plies of Du Pont nylon cord for sure protection against penetration and heat build-up. Meets all official safety standards
- ✓ Tread compound is fortified with Dynatuf to provide a stable ride at today's super-highway speeds and to make this a longer wearing snow tire
- ✓ For extra safety on ice, buy your tires equipped with tungsten steel studs

ALLSTATE WEAROUT GUARANTEE

We will replace tire, charging only for months of use. If period of guarantee has expired, adjustment will be based on amount of tread remaining. This applies only to passenger tires, not to tires used commercially.

Get Extra Safety with Studs
